

NEW GOVERNMENT IS INDUCTED INTO OFFICE IN CHAPEL

Farris Officially Turns Over Reins To Greene In Impressive Ceremony.

At the usual weekly freshman chapel meeting yesterday morning, the new student council members were formally installed by Ray Farris, retiring president of the student body.

Before introducing the incoming council members, President Farris expressed appreciation to the student body for the support which he has received during his term of office.

Speaking on the honor system of the University, the former president stated that the system of this university stood head and shoulders above that of any other institution in the country. He was of the opinion that although much advancement had been made in the past, that there is still room for more individual cooperation on the part of the students.

"In order for this honor system to succeed," declared President Farris, "it is necessary that each student take it upon himself to report every man that is seen 'cribbing' or cheating on exams or 'quizzes'."

The retiring president impressed upon his audience the wonderful experience that he had gotten from his term as president, and offered his entire support to the new regime which was about to take its place.

President Farris then formally turned over his duties to his successor, "Red" Greene, who introduced to the group the new councilmen who are to work during the year 1930-31. Those on the new council are: Harper Barnes of the rising sophomore class, Bill Uzzell of the rising Junior class, Mayne Albright of the rising senior class, Robert Graham of the old council, Scott Benton of the law school, Lexie Barefoot of the pharmacy school, and John Quickel of the medical school, with President "Red" Greene as chairman of the group.

The new president began his inaugural address by giving a history of the council. He explained that in 1795 a system of monitors was used in which members of the faculty would go around to the rooms of the student regularly to see if all was going well. This system was soon abolished and for some time government was in the hands of the literary societies. All members of the student body were required to join either of the two societies, and if a student was expelled from one of the societies, it meant that he was expelled from school. This method was done away with in 1904 when a revolt was made against it.

Since this time it has been customary for the presidents of each of the classes to compose the council which would have the same power that had formerly been invested in the literary societies.

Up until 1921 the president of the senior class acted as chairman of the council, but in that year a student body president was elected for the first time and he was made head of the council.

NEGRO JANITORS ENDORSE PARKER

University Dormitory Caretakers Wire Senator Overman Supporting Proposed Judicial Appointment.

The Negro Janitors Association of the University of North Carolina, which is made up of the 46 colored servants who wait on the students in dormitories, held a meeting last night and wired Senator Lee S. Overman a resolution expressing the view that Judge John J. Parker "will be fair according to law to all classes and races" and the "hope that he will be confirmed as judge of the supreme court."

Many of the darkies, all of whom signed the resolution, knew Judge Parker when he was a student here and several of them waited on him. The resolution was signed by Kennon Cheek, president of the janitors' association.

"We know Judge Parker as our friend," the resolution concluded. "We served him as a student. We have followed his career as a citizen and as a judge. Some of us voted for him for governor. We want to express our confidence in him now."

ASTRONOMY CLASS WATCHES ECLIPSE

Crowd Looks On While Pictures Are Made From Roof Of Phillips.

From all parts of the campus the partial eclipse of the sun was watched yesterday afternoon. The center of observation was, however, the roof of Phillips hall where Dr. K. H. Fussler and his astronomy class were taking photographs.

Aided by his astronomy class and student-assistants of the physics department, H. H. Zurburg and W. D. Whitaker, Dr. Fussler set up a telescope and a camera on the roof of the building. During the eclipse a group of about fifty persons assembled there to watch the sun and the taking of photographs. Eight or ten pictures were taken at intervals of about three minutes.

The eclipse was quite visible to the naked eye here. About one-fourth of the sun's surface was covered during the height of the eclipse at 3:19 o'clock. It began at 2:09 p. m. and ended at 4:24. Up to the highest point of the eclipse, the weather conditions were fine, but afterward clouds passed across the sun.

Since the eclipse was only partial here, one of the most interesting features was the enormous sun spot that was visible through the telescope. It was the largest sun spot that has been noticed here in a long time. Although it was hardly discernible to the naked eye, it could be noticed very easily on the lower part of the sun through the telescope.

GRAHAM SPEAKS BEFORE N. C. CLUB

Says North Carolina Has Been Definitely Industrialized.

"Social Legislation as a Method of Social Adjustment" was the topic of Frank Graham's address to the North Carolina Club last night in Bingham hall.

Mr. Graham, who has conducted an accurate survey of social and economic conditions in this state, offered statistics which prove that North Carolina has undoubtedly become an industrial commonwealth. He furthermore showed that there is need for social and industrial adjustment, and presents four working principles for this adjustment; they are: liberty; religious, political, commercial, and industrial organization; study and analysis; and social legislation.

In his speech last night Mr. Graham said that England's rise from economic chaos to sound social legislation was a strong point in favor of this policy. He contends that due to the industrialization of North Carolina, agricultural and industrial organization is not only a necessity but a certainty.

An interesting discussion of present-day conditions in industry followed Mr. Graham's informal address.

U. S. GOVERNMENT AID TO BUSINESS PARKER CONTENTS

New Yorker Here For Lecture Series Being Sponsored By University Law School.

Delivering the first of a series of three lectures before the University law school here last night, Junius Parker, prominent New York lawyer and formerly chairman of the board of directors of the American Tobacco Company, discussed the activities of the state in aid or regulation of business with special attention to the activities of the federal government, including the protective tariff, the Federal Reserve System, and the national regulation of interstate carriers.

The general topic of Mr. Parker's lectures, which are to be continued tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the law school building, was announced as "Business and the State."

In his lecture last night Mr. Parker advanced the view that "business reasons and business motives, more than any other, induced the making of our Constitution."

"There had been a loosely knit confederation of states, each one of which was regulating commerce and currency as it saw fit," he said. "Business was in turmoil, disorder and decay, not for want of regulation, but from over-regulation by the state."

From the foundation of our national government, he said, "it has been a cardinal and practical belief of many of our statesmen that it should encourage and give aid to certain business activities."

Mr. Parker's lecture tonight will deal with the Sherman anti-trust law, the Clayton act, and the federal trade commission act.

Accompanied by his sister, Miss Mamie Parker, Mr. Parker

Y CABINETS HEAR CONFERENCE MEN

Three Conventions Are Reported On By Retiring Delegates.

The program of the meeting of the Y cabinets last night was the challenge given the members by Mr. Comer's account of the North Carolina Conference for Social Legislation held at Charlotte on April 13 to 15. According to Mr. Comer, the people of Charlotte were surprised at the sincerity of the conference. Professor Frank Graham of the University stirred the conference with his fiery speeches against the now prevalent tendency toward profit-making only.

In his speeches he showed how the majority of people throughout the United States lived on the idea of doing only what they thought would help them. Mr. Comer threw out the challenge to the Y members to stop this attitude on this campus. The Charlotte conference was kindled by the speeches made by the noted English Socialist Sir Herbert Grey when he was at the University several months ago.

The meeting last night was conducted by F. M. James in the absence of the president, vice-president and secretary. Attention was called to the coming
