

RALEIGH WINNER OVER BULL CITY

High Baseball Teams Clash Here For Class A Championship.

With Allen Bailey pitching shut-out ball, Raleigh high beat Durham here yesterday 5-0, and thereby won the eastern title and right to play Charlotte high here Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the class A high school baseball championship of the state.

Pitcher Bailey hogged the limelight by a large margin, but got fast and consistent support from the whole smart Raleigh nine. Bailey held Durham to three hits, one an infield tap, and never let a Durham man get as far even as third. Not content with the pitching glory, he hit a triple and two singles for four times up, and drove in three of Raleigh's five runs.

The smart Durham team executed three double plays and played consistently good ball afield, but couldn't find Bailey for the hits necessary to win.

ANNUAL CHECKER TOURNAMENT PLANNED

The eleventh annual tourney of the North Carolina Checker Association will take place at Laurinburg on July 4 and 5, it was announced here yesterday by Edward Scheidt, secretary of the association.

Each year North Carolina's strongest checker players gather in a meet to determine the checker championship of the state. It has been held by Scheidt for the past two years. In 1928 he defeated the late George Anderson of Salisbury for the honor, and last year he won in the finals from Curtis Efrid of Albemarle.

Former champions who will figure prominently in the tourney are H. O. McNair of Maxton, Coit M. Robinson of Lowell, and Harry Anderson of Winston-Salem. Other strong players who will be out to win are: Beverly McIntyre of Laurinburg, I. F. Sampson of Winston-Salem, Curtis Efrid of Albemarle, J. P. Murray of Moyock, D. W. Freeman of Durham and A. F. Bowen and C. C. Gunn, both of Raleigh.

Looking Them Over

by Browning Roach

It looks as though the 9.4 clocking of Frank Wykoff, California sprinter, will go unrecognized for a time yet. His performance was too recent for consideration by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Sprint records, like a well known brand of Kentucky burley, evidently must be aged in the wood before they are to be given to the public.

Because he used starting blocks, George Simpson's time of 9 2-5 last year was not recognized at the I. A. A. F. meeting at Berlin Tuesday. Eddie Tolan, University of Michigan negro, was officially hailed as the 100-yard champ. His mark of 9.5 in the western conference championships at Evanston, Ill., May 25, 1929, met with the approval of the I. A. A. F. and was specified as the only mark to come under the former 9.6 record which has been equaled on several occasions. Charlie Paddock once ran the 100 in 9.5, but at that time tenth-second watches were not approved by the I. A. A. F. and his time was thrown out.

Three other records of interest made by American athletes are: 163 feet 8 3/4 inches for the discus throw made by Eric Krenz of Stanford; 14 feet, 1 1/2 inches for the pole vault made by Lee Barnes, former U. S. C. star; and 3 minutes 13.4 seconds for the one-mile relay made by the American Olympic quartet in a dual meet with Great Britain shortly after the last Olympics.

To appreciate properly the above records take a glance at the Carolina and southern records for the same events. Just about three-quarters of a foot in the vault, 3-10 of a second in the dash, nearly 30 feet in the discus and around 10 seconds in the mile relay.

A few things that have caught our eye at the ball games this year—

Nap Lufty crossing home plate on every trip between his position at third and the bench.

Jimmie Maus' peg to pitcher when things aren't going to suit him.

Billy Brown's speed on the base lines and his pose at first.

Rat Whitehead's delivery to first, or home, or any old place from any old position.

Jimmie Maus' whistle.

Piggy Potter's chatter—rivals that of Billy Brown.

Cecil Longest's physique and running form.

Shorty Branch's luck-shots over second.

Obie Davis' swing at a high outside ball.

Phil Sher's griping on the bench—and with reason.

Cloyd Blythe's contented expression when pinch-hitting.

Casey Jackson—I'll bite—what?

The whole squad, when at bat—looking toward the bench for Ashmore's signal when the count is two strikes and one ball.

Would-be big leaguers fishing for applause by snagging fish-pops in the stands.

The Gentlemen of the Press—taking a ballot to decide between a hit or an error—the hits usually get it.

Players, managers, base umpires and base coaches continually craning their necks toward the sections of the stands where the females are most abundant, and sometimes emitting sighs for field glasses.

Racquet Stars

The Carolina Tennis team has gone through a most successful season. After having defeated all the good teams in the state by large scores, the team took a trip through the South in search of more opposition. The Tar Heel racquetmen won all their matches but one there, defeating the U. of Tennessee 5-0, Sewanee 4-2, Georgia Tech 7-0, U. of Alabama 4-3, and tied the strong Tulane team 3-3.

The team has won 12 matches, tied one, and lost none, this giving them undisputed claim to the state title.

Carolina Racquetmen To Give Exhibition Match At Sedgefield

The Sedgefield Country Club has invited three varsity and three freshman tennis players of Carolina to give an exhibition match on the club courts this Sunday.

Hinky Hendlin will oppose Bryan Grant, southern men's champ, in one match; Phil Liskin will meet Wilmer Hines, southern junior champ, in another; and Captain Bill Grant other; and Captain Bill Merritt will play Lenoir Wright, Virginia prep school champ, in the final singles match. Hendlin and Liskin will meet Grant and Hines in the only doubles match of the afternoon.

PROFESSOR AIDS IN TRACK WORK

All during the past track season J. P. Harland, professor of archaeology here, has been assisting in coaching sprinters and others in starts.

Mr. Harland was a member of the class of 1913 at Princeton University and ran the 100 and 220 yard dashes for that school. Although his chief interest at the present is archaeology, Mr. Harland says that he gets quite a bit of pleasure by assisting the track coaches here.

Particularly with Charlie Farmer has Mr. Harland been working, and he intends to continue to work with him for the rest of this quarter since Carolina's 10 point man is planning to enter the A. A. U. Amateur Championship meet in Chicago about June 14.

New Track Records

Three more new world's records were added last week to Wykoff's 100-yard record of 9.4 without starting blocks. The records were in the shot put, discus throw, and mile run.

Eric Krenz, giant blonde weightman of Stanford University, hurled the discus 167 feet 5 inches, breaking his own world record by over three feet, in the annual California intercollegiate meet.

Herman Brix, former University of Washington weight star representing the Los Angeles A. C., heaved the shot 52 feet 4 inches in a meet last week, breaking the former mark by several inches.

Crowley, running for Allentown Preparatory School of Allentown, Pa., in the University of Pennsylvania Interscholastics last Saturday, broke the accepted world's schoolboy record for the mile, set by Bill Cox of Mercersburg Academy in 1924, when he sped over the distance in 4 minutes 21.4 seconds.

Athletic Pictures

Members of athletic teams and squads who have had their pictures taken this year for the News Bureau or Yackety Yack may get copies by calling at the Tar Heel office between 4 and 5 p. m. today and tomorrow.

Tennis Players Here Take Up Pajama Fad

People sleep in pajamas, go to the beaches in pajamas, sometimes even walk about the streets in pajamas, and now an aspiring Tar Heel reporter has discovered that they play tennis in pajamas.

Getting up a half hour earlier than usual, he—the aspiring reporter—looked out of his window in Everett yesterday morning and saw what appeared to be two pajama-clad figures playing tennis. Upon closer investigation these figures turned out to be Philip K. Kaufman and Benjamin Winik, two Everett dormers. When questioned, the two nature lovers finally admitted that they arose at 6:30 every morning and indulged in two sets of strenuous tennis before going to classes.

They go to sleep each night with their tennis racquets beneath their pillows so that when the alarm rings at 6:30, they have merely to put on their slippers, grab their racquets, and they are ready for action.

If this fad turns into a general habit, the school will become a training ground for tennis players in the embryo. It is rumored that a scout for the U. S. Davis Cup squad has been seen snooping about the school courts in the early hours of the morning looking for material.

SPARROW'S POOL ATTRACTS MANY

customed to wearing suits when they swim at home may rent one of the popular Jantzen suits for a quarter, and if he—or she likes it well enough, there are suits on sale at a nominal price. And lastly, let's not forget the refreshment stand, where such intoxicating liquors as Coca Cola and Orange are sold, along with such bad habits as Hershey's, Milky Ways, and the brands of cigarettes such as "I'd walk a mile for a," "Not a Cough in a carload," and "They satisfy."

So on to Sparrow's, men and boys!

PRESS BOOK HAS IMPORTANT DATA

Heer's Book Treats of Income And Wages In South; Clarifies Numerous Questions.

(By Jack Riley)

"Income and Wages in the South," by Clarence Heer of the University institute for research in social science, has been issued by the University Press. With the aid of his wife, Dean Carroll, and Professor Odum, Mr. Heer has compiled much valuable statistical data concerning the industrial and agricultural conditions in the south.

In the last few years the south has made much progress in industry and has gained many new mills and factories. This spread of industry in the south has caused many questions that call for exact quantitative information rather than speculation and controversy.

In the less than 100 pages of the little book by Mr. Heer is given a panoramic picture of the present conditions in the south. Numerous questions that have caused continual controversy are clarified.

The industrial conditions in the south have room for much improvement, but until the critical condition of the southern farmers is remedied there is little hope for the industrial worker. All the industrial workers in the south only make up about 17 per cent of the population. The greater part are farmers, and until the farmers get better returns the others must wait.

For the last eighty years the condition of the southern farmer has been a question of general comment. At present, the author finds, the average income of the south is less than one-half that in the other states. Mr. Heer shows that of the ten states having the largest ratio of rural population, six of these are in the south, and that of the ten states showing the lowest per capita wealth, eight are southern. Mr. Heer points out that the reason for the low wages is the fact that nearly half the population in the south depends on unprofitable agriculture as a source of livelihood.

So long as there remains the high amount of poorly paid labor in the south, there will remain the low rates of income. The only way to better these conditions is to better living conditions and to increase the income of the workers.

Track Pictures

Pictures of both freshman and varsity track squads will be made at Emerson field this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Grail Installs Officers

At a recent meeting of the Order of the Grail, officers for next year were elected. John Slater was chosen president; Mayne Albright, treasurer; John Clinard, assistant treasurer; and Hayward Weeks, secretary. These men have taken the places of Marion Follin, who was president this year; "Red" Greene, treasurer; Mayne Albright, assistant treasurer; and Ed Hamer, secretary.
