

RALEIGH MEETS CHARLOTTE HIGH FOR STATE TITLE

Fast Mound Duel Between Bailey and Gadd Expected In Class A Championship Game This Afternoon.

Two of the best high school pitchers developed in North Carolina in years will be seen in action in what should be a corking good mound duel when Charlotte and Raleigh high teams meet on Emerson field here this afternoon at 3 o'clock for the class A high school baseball title of the state.

Reference is to Captain Tom Gadd of Charlotte and Allen Bailey of Raleigh, who are slated to oppose one another on the mound in this final championship battle.

Gadd, who is reported to be under close surveillance by the Big League scouts already, has been doing sensational hurling for Charlotte all season. Bailey in his last game, in which Raleigh beat Durham 5-0 for the eastern title, held Durham to three hits and struck out seven men to show once again his high calibre as a pitcher.

Both men, oddly enough, rank with their teams' best hitters and hit in the clean-up post. And indeed, Bailey drove in three of Raleigh's five runs in the victory over Durham for the eastern title. Their meeting here today will not only decide the much-discussed question of which is the better high school pitcher, but also of which is the better hitter.

Charlotte arrived at the Hill yesterday in time for a workout on Emerson field in the afternoon, but the Raleigh nine is not expected until today. Neither team last night had announced the lineups that would be started around the rival aces Gadd and Bailey.

DECATHLON FOR INTRAMURAL MEN MONDAY-TUESDAY

The decathlon, which is staged annually by the intramural department will be held Monday and Tuesday of next week. This meet will be divided into two sections, the open decathlon for all students in the University regardless of past athletic experience, and the novice decathlon for all those who have never made a numeral or a letter in track athletics at the University.

The events of the meet are to be the 100 yard dash, 120 low hurdles, quarter-mile run, three-quarters mile run, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus, and javelin. In order to make the meet run as smoothly as possible, it has been arranged that the events continue for two days.

Those events which will be staged Monday afternoon beginning at 3:00 are as follows: 100 yard dash, quarter-mile run, high jump, shot put, and discus. All of the remaining events will be run off on the following afternoon.

It looks like the frosh baseballers are headed places with the intention of doing things in a big way next year. A record of twelve victories and five defeats, with the majority of the defeats in early season, should bring good cheer to Coach Ashmore's heart. He can use some of those speedy pitchers, and the whole club bristles with heavy hitters to fill the holes left in varsity ranks.

"Coach Bob" Fetzter will also have some good new material to draw on for his track team. Drane, Marland, and Wornom in the sprints, Davis and Stafford in the hurdles, Jensen and Jones in the middle distance runs, Corde in the two mile, and Mitcham and Watkins in the 440 should certainly add to the strength of the Tar Heel cinder squad next year.

An odd reversal in the publicity tactics of the two leading candidates for the world's heavyweight boxing championship has occurred recently. Jack Sharkey has stepped out of his usual role of the "Garrulous Gob"—in fact he hasn't even named the round in which he will knock Schmeling out—and Schmeling, casting aside his custom of deep silence, has been announcing far and wide that he is going to take the title back to the Fatherland when "Der Max" returns home.

The people who said that Babe Ruth was through certainly ought to look for something to hide under. Six home runs in two days constitutes an all time record for major league boundary busters, and when the four baggers were made off the star pitching staff of the world's champions, it is surely to be doubted that Ruth is washed up as a major leaguer.

George Simpson will soon have a chance to prove to the I.A.A.F. that his mark of 9 2-5 seconds for the 100 yards, made with starting blocks, was not a fluke and should be given precedence as a world's record over Eddie Tolan's 9.5 second 100 yards, made without starting blocks, when he and Tolan meet in the sprints of the Big Ten track meet. Last year Tolan beat Simpson in the 100 in this meet in 9.5, but Simpson came back to win the 220 in the record time of 20.6 seconds. Since the questioning of the legality of several of the marks made by Simpson last year with the aid of starting blocks, Simpson has been waging a sort of vindication campaign to prove the authenticity of his marks. In the Penn Relays, he equalled his record of last year—which was still under discussion as to its approval because of the use of the blocks—covering the 100 in 9 3-5 seconds. He will run in the conference meet against the Michigan negro without starting blocks in an attempt to again cross the finish in 9 2-5.

Dusty Cooke, Yankee recruit and former star of George Whitted's Durham Bulls who was played up to high heaven by the pre-season dopesters, has become much more like a placid cow than a fiery bull. At the last reading, Dusty had the enormous total of three singles to his credit, and was leading Hines' 57 varieties in the batting averages by 12 points, having a percentage of exactly .069.

Mrs. Elms 9-7, 6-1, 6-4; Mary Lewis Carpenter lost to Mrs. Page 6-1, 6-0; Clyde Johnson and Mary L. Carpenter (C) won from Mrs. Page and Ann Lawrence 6-3, 6-5.

JENSEN BOASTS ENVIABLE RECORD

Carolina Freshman Holds Many National and State Prep School Records.

(By Dan Kelly)

In looking over the list of outstanding freshman performers on the Carolina track this past year, the author finds that Clarence Jensen is the fastest distance man on the squad.

Jensen comes from East Orange, N. J., where running is in style, and he truly shows that he is not to be trifled with as a competitor. Jensen began his track career four years ago while a student at Newark Prep School. While in school there, he competed in many major meets, winning the state championship in the cross country two-mile race in 1926. He was also one of the four trackmen who won first place in the mile relay for prep schools during the Ohio State relays. At the University of Chicago and at Yale, Jensen won first places in distance contests, in the prep school meets held there. He held the distance championship of his native county for three successive years.

Continuing his prep school track work in 1928, Jensen won all dual meet cross country events that he entered and defeated the state champion of New York prep schools. He won the eastern interscholastic two-mile run, and captured third place in the mile 15 minutes later. In the cross country race held at Columbia University, he placed third in a field of over 400 competitors from various eastern states. In the Middle Atlantic prep school championships held at Philadelphia, Jensen succeeded in breasting the tape in record time, defeating the best runners in the eastern prep schools. At Bowdoin College and at Boston U., he finished first in the distance runs, climaxing a successful prep school record.

Since entering the University of North Carolina last fall as a freshman, Jensen has continued his stellar performances on the cinder path and has been beaten only once, which defeat he avenged later. The race he lost was on a strange and difficult track with which his opponent was familiar. His opponent met him later and was beaten by a wide margin.

Jensen has been one of the representatives of the North Carolina freshman relay racers at the Georgia Tech relays and Greensboro freshman relays held recently. In those races the North Carolina freshmen won first place in record time.

In one of the most interesting races which was held this past season, Jensen defeated the former champion American miler and former University of North Carolina star, Galen Elliott, in a three-quarter mile race completed in 3 minutes 16 seconds.

MAJOR LEAGUES SIGN FIVE DUKE DIAMOND STARS

Coach Jack Coombs, former Big Time Star, Instrumental In Getting Attention Of Scouts; Two Sign With Minors.

Big league scouts who have trailed the Duke University baseball team ever since Jack Coombs, former big time star, took over the coaching reins, reaped the fruit of their efforts recently by signing five of the finishing Blue Devils for big time baseball. Two others were signed by minor league clubs.

The men signed, their positions and home towns follow: Bill Werber, shortstop, Berwyn, Md., New York Yankees. Roland Farley, third baseman, Danville, Va., St. Louis Cardinals.

Henry Kistler, first base, Charlotte, and Ernest Jenkins, pitcher, Gastonia, Philadelphia Athletics.

Gene Belue, pitcher, Gaffney, S. C., Pittsburgh Pirates.

L. A. (Nick) Warren, catcher, Durham, Baltimore Orioles. Lee Hawkins, pitcher, Charlotte, Charlotte (Sally League).

Bill Werber, sensational shortstop for the Devils, signed a contract with the Yankees that any college ball player could be proud of. It is said that the young Duke star got a huge bonus as well as a good salary.

Werber reports to the Yankees at Chicago on June 3. It is reported that he got $2,400 for signing the contract and also that there was a "not to be farmed out" clause in the document. Werber had a batting record of an even .400 this season.

Farley, who signed with the Cardinals, has left to join the Cardinals at St. Louis. He is also said to have received a handsome figure for signing, a bonus and a good salary. He batted .486 during the past season.

Kistler, Duke's fence-busting king, and Ernest Jenkins, the star southpaw pitcher, were taken in by Ira Thomas, a former battery mate of Coach Coombs when the two played for the Athletics. Following examinations the two will report at Philadelphia. It is likely that they will be farmed out for further seasoning, but their destination was not learned. Kistler hit over .400 for the second consecutive season.

Warren, of Durham, captained the Duke team through the past season and has been varsity catcher for three years. The past year was perhaps the greatest of his career and he signed with Baltimore only after refusing another offer in the International League. He receives a bonus and will get a good salary. He batted .354 last season.

Lee Hawkins, hard hitting pitcher-outfielder, lives in Charlotte and had been assured the contract some time ago. His work on the pitching staff was a help to the Devils this year, as his list of victories by far outnumbered the number of defeats counted against him. He is a lefthander.

Belue, another southpaw, rounded out Duke's veteran pitching crew this year. He was approached by the Pirates before entering Duke and after four years here formally signed the contract last night.

Miss Margaret McConnell, of Gastonia, a student at N. C. C. W., came up last week end for the dances and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lear.
