

Student Body Overwhelms Opposition To Daily By 33-1

W. MEDFORD IS NEW LEADER OF DIALECTIC BODY

Literary Society Chooses Officers At Tranquil Meeting.

At the executive session of the Di Senate last night officers for the fall quarter were elected. Senator W. G. Medford was elected president to succeed Beatty Rector, the present incumbent. Senator J. M. Little was unanimously elected president pro-tem. Senator James Kenan received the position of sergeant-at-arms against no opposition. Henry Wood was elected clerk, and K. C. Ramsay was elected critic.

At a previous meeting Senator Jack Dungan was elected treasurer for the three sessions of the senate next year.

Previous to the elections, reports were received from the finance and ways and means committees. Senator Pat Patterson reported that the senate had a balance of $33 at the end of this year. Senator Medford, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported concerning the work of his committee. Senator Dungan reported for the constitution committee.

New members received their engraved membership certificates following their initiation last week.

BOOK BARREL IN LIBRARY LOBBY

A "conscience barrel" will be placed in the entrance lobby of the library during the examination period next week for the receipt of "outlaw" books, according to library officials. No questions will be asked concerning the return of these erring members of the library book family; guards and spies will not be posted behind pillars to watch the barrel.

"Library books have a way of disappearing from the shelves," said a member of the library staff. "Some are 'borrowed' with the intention of their being brought right back; others are deliberately stolen—a nicer and worse name for the same sort of thing. Many have been left about in the Y, fraternity houses, dormitories, and elsewhere, and have been picked up and appropriated. Books missing for years suddenly show up after being returned on the sly by a conscience-smitten 'patron.' On the other hand, for fear of embarrassing consequences many of the contraband books are never brought in.

"The barrel is not meant as an easy way for all borrowers to evade their library responsibilities. It is intended for the return of those books which are lost, stolen or strayed—and no questions asked."

ENGLISH CLASS IN EXPERIMENT

A novel experiment will be undertaken Thursday night by the class of Mr. W. A. Olsen in English 16. All new members may secure their cards at the same time. A limited number of vacancies remain in the club and these will be filled in order of application. Those desiring to submit applications should send in checks for ten dollars immediately.

The annual awards night was held in Gerrard hall Monday night before a capacity crowd. Awards were presented to more than three hundred students for distinctive work on the athletic field, publication staffs and various other activities.

"Red" Greene, the president of the student body, was in charge of the meeting. At the opening Ray Farris made a short talk, and later in the program Coach Bob Fetzer made a speech before presenting the athletic awards.

The presenting of the Grail cups was probably the most important part of the evening. Donald R. Waugh got the intramural cup; A. K. Davis the freshman cup; Aubrey Parsley the football medal; R. J. Ruble the track medal; S. M. Cohen the boxing medal; and B. U. Whitehead the baseball medal. These awards are made to athletes with the highest scholastic standing in their respective sports.

Gordan Gray presented keys to the 39 members of this year's Phi Beta Kappa organization.

Murder Trial Is Feature Of Session; Minor Fines Imposed.

Eight cases were tried at the meeting of the recorder's court last Monday. The most serious case was one of attempted murder.

As the story goes, John Norwood, a colored farmer, had asked his son-in-law, Willie Alston, to go out and cut some wood. When Alston refused to obey the order, Norwood rushed at him with a chair and declared that he would kill him. According to a witness the leg of the chair was covered with blood. Alston appeared in court with a bandaged head. The case was found to have probable cause and was held over for the June term of the Orange county superior court.

Mrs. W. E. Trotman, proprietor of the Welcome In Cafeteria, was found not guilty for issuing a worthless check. It came out in the trial that she had informed the recipient that she would give him the check, but that there were no funds to cover it.

H. F. Comer, Y. M. C. A. secretary, was found guilty of violating the parking ordinance near the Y. M. C. A., and was assessed the court costs.

Cases pertaining to violation of the prohibition law predominated in the session. S. T. Wimberly, white farmer and laborer, was found not guilty on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Pete Pendergrass, colored employee of R. R. Benson, brought up on the charge of possessing liquor, was taxed the cost and

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING TO BE RENOVATED

Ceiling To Be Prepared, Walls Painted, New Curtains, Rugs And Radio To Be Purchased.

The members of the Y.M.C.A. held a short call meeting Tuesday night at 7:15 in the Y building. The hillside meeting was the last regular meeting but a special meeting was called for the purpose of discussing plans for Blue Ridge and for building repairs.

The president called to the attention of the members again the importance of the Blue Ridge training in next year's work. The leadership training that the members get there will be very valuable to them when they return next year. During the last few years this organization has had a very good representation at the Blue Ridge meetings and have served as leaders at these meetings. This year it seems that they will not have as large a delegation. Twenty men have made definite plans for the meeting and several more are undecided. All men who are interested are requested to call by the Y office and get information.

The second part of the meeting was devoted to the discussion of plans for making the Y building more attractive for next year. Because of the dangerous condition of the plastering on the ceilings the University repair department has thought it necessary to cover the ceilings with heavy board. They have also agreed to tint the walls with a prettier color. The next thing necessary is some rugs for the floors. Mr. Comer has agreed to hold in this problem. A canvas of the dormitories, fraternities, and private homes is going to be made in which old winter clothes that are useless will be taken up. These will be sent to the Olson Rug Company where they will be made into rugs. Rugs made from old woolen materials are very good and will last a long time. A few years ago the seniors at V. P. I. gave their uniforms for this purpose and secured very fine rugs. No matter what condition the material is in it is useful, since it is washed and the dye is removed before it is made into rugs. The members are calling on all the students to give as much as possible. When you go to pack your trunks for home, just throw out all the old, worn, and soiled winter clothes or clothes that are mostly woolen and the Y. will be glad to send a student around to collect them. If you have any call the Y office, 5011, and give your address. This should not seem such a big request. You must surely have a few things which you will not have any use for this summer and which will only be a bother to you. It will not be so very

STUDENT COUNCIL PROPOSITION ALSO COMES THROUGH

Carries By Large Vote; Means Nine Members of Council.

The Carolina student body, yesterday, by means of the ballot box expressed itself as completely in favor of the continuance of the Daily Tar Heel. By an overwhelming vote of 438 to 13 the increase in the publication fee of 33 1-3 cents per quarter was passed. This is the most overwhelming triumph of any measure brought before the student body in the past decade and possibly the history of the University.

The second proposition voted upon, that of adding an additional member of the student council, was passed by a vote of 330 to 82. This, too, was carried by a decisive though not so overwhelming majority. In accordance with the plan, the ninth student councilman will be elected from their number by the retiring council.

The vote on the two questions was light, only about one-third of the students casting ballots. This was due probably to the fact that the students saw no clearly defined issue. Only one out of every thirty-three who cast ballots were opposed to the Daily Tar Heel. This showed a decided trend in the minds of students in favor of the daily, for last year, when no increase in fees was asked, more than 200 voted to retain the tri-weekly in place of having the proposed daily.

A week ago yesterday the student activities committee, representing all the activities on the campus, met at a banquet and decided to submit the Daily Tar Heel question to the vote of the students. Since then no campaigning has been done by anybody either for or against the continuance of the daily paper. The Daily Tar Heel, itself, conducted a campaign through its columns for its continuance and attempted to show the public that its value to it required that the increase in fees be passed. The student council, which submitted the question of its increased membership to the students also received hearty support in attempting to serve Carolina students better.
