

SEVEN CAROLINA STUDENTS ENJOY EUROPEAN TOUR

Trip Under the Direction of Dr. Lyons This Summer Proved Very Successful.

Seven students of the University under the direction of Dr. J. C. Lyons, of the French department, made a tour of Europe this past summer for the purpose of studying French in a few of the French universities. The students from here who made the trip were: Bob Brawley, Dave Craig, Tom Craig, Bill Draper, Tom Wright, D. C. McCotter, and J. M. McCotter.

From reports, however, it was only a few women-school teachers, who also made the tour, that did any of the studying in the famous French universities. The remainder of the crowd seemed to have gone sight-seeing, which from all reports, was enjoyed by those taking part.

At midnig on June 13, the tour was to begin. Very much excited over the trip, the crowd went to bed early, expecting to awake in the morning on the ocean. But, much to their dismay, when they awoke the following morning, they were in the same position that they had been the previous night. And, because of a heavy fog, the trip did not get under way until mid-day of the 14th.

After ten days of bad sailing, due to the roughness of the sea, the ship, The Amsterdam, docked in L'Harve, France. Going from there to Paris, the party remained a week or so in France's capital, enjoying the sights of the city as well as the night cabarets.

At Grenoble, the next stop, the party was divided; the school-teachers and those wishing to do work in the universities there, remained, while Tom Wright, Tom and Dave Craig, and Bill Draper took a special two weeks tour of Italy. These four toured all of the important Italian cities, and also went up into Austria and Hungary.

The party was united again at Grenoble for a four day trip up the French Riviera. At Monte Carlo, few of the party tried their luck, but did not fare so well.

Grenoble was visited again, and the party then made a short tour of Italy. Dr. Lyons stated that he was very much surprised with the cleanliness with which the streets of Italy were kept. He commented on the police service, stating that practically no beggars were allowed on the streets now, whereas formerly, the avenues were thick with them. He was of the opinion that Mussolini had made Italy one of the big countries in the world today. To use his expression, the French professor declared that Italy was "hitting on all four" at present.

Leaving Italy behind, the group made a trip over to Switzerland. The party was carried up the Jungfrau, which was covered with snow in the middle of the summer. It was here that Dr. Lyons was the receiver of someone's snowball, a wound which he nursed for quite a while.

Thence the party went to Munich, Heidelberg, down the Rhine to Cologne, to Brussels, and then to Holland, where, they spent a week-end. The tour did not include the Dutch trip, but the party did not regret taking it. They were fascinated with the queer costume of the Hollanders.

After spending two days in England, the party took a boat for the "States," and landed in New York on the 23rd of August. Part of them, however, remained longer in England, Scotland, and Ireland, and came

COMMITTEE PUTS OFF EXAMINATION OF THE BUDGET

At Monday's Meeting Trustees Will Consider Only Matters of Routine

The executive committee of the University's board of trustees will meet at 11 o'clock Monday morning in the Governor's office in Raleigh.

It was expected that the budget would be considered at this meeting, but it has not yet been made up. All of the state institutions are filing their budgets later this year than two years ago. Monday the trustees' attention will be directed principally to matters of routine, such as appointments to the faculty, resignations, leaves of absence, and the admission of students who do not comply with the strict requirements as to age but who, according to established practice, may be admitted if the trustees approve.

In a notice sent out from Raleigh early last month by the state budget bureau, of which Governor Gardner is chairman, the heads of all institutions were informed of the condition of the state's finances and were directed to cut their estimates to the lowest possible figures.

With the notice was a statement to the effect that the estimates of state revenue for this fiscal year (1930-1931) was lower by about $2,140,000 than the estimate made when the state budget was prepared two years ago. However, a report from the revenue commissioner for the first quarter of this fiscal year (July, August, and September) does not indicate such a large decrease. This report, published in summary in the newspapers of day before yesterday, shows a decrease of $79,000 in the collections for the general fund in the quarter just ended as compared with the collections in the corresponding three-months period of 1929. For last year the figure was $3,163,000, for this year it is $3,084,000.

INVESTIGATION SHOWS COLLEGE PAYS DIVIDENDS

this time in the Bell System. He found that high scholarship in college, substantial activity in writing, debating, athletics and other campus affairs, early graduation from college and immediate employment all had a direct connection with success in this business. To put his findings into advice, we arrive at four precepts: (1) Make high grades on your work, (2) Get into the work and play on the campus, (3) Go to college as soon as you can, and (4) Get into your job as soon as you can. The first precept knocks in the head an old fallacy to the effect that a boy can loaf in college and then get down to work later. He may do this, but all his after life he will pay the price of this loafing period in the formative years of his life.

The second precept offers encouragement to the boy who fears that he may not have time for campus activities outside his studies. He must learn to work both in the classroom and on the campus.

The third precept will clear up the fears of many parents that their boys are too young for college. Those who enter college early succeed best in college.

The fourth precept encourages the college graduate to find his job without delay.

An interesting and important development in modern education is the vocational guidance and placement in college students. We are making great progress in this field. The colleges and the business organizations of the country are working together on the problem of getting good men, training them, and getting jobs for them.

It is becoming increasingly important for boys to get into college and to do good work in college.

Those confined to the infirmary are as follows: S. S. Eanes, W. D. Merritt, Worth Baldwin, Robert Greenburg and C. E. Boyle.
