

UNIVERSITY DAY CELEBRATION TO BE OCTOBER 11TH

R. R. Williams and L. P. McLendon Announced as Speakers by President Graham.

The University will celebrate its 137th birthday with appropriate exercises in the Methodist Church auditorium next Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Because October 12th, which is University Day, falls this year on Sunday, the ceremonies are to be held on October 11th.

Speakers at the exercises will be R. R. Williams, of Asheville, and L. P. McLendon, of Durham, both prominent alumni, announced President Frank Graham yesterday. It is an established custom in University Day exercises at Chapel Hill to invite prominent alumni to deliver the addresses.

R. R. Williams is a graduate of the University class of 1902. Later he studied law in 1903-04. As an undergraduate he was prominent in student activities and in scholarship. A varsity football player, yet he maintained a Phi Beta Kappa average in his studies and was elected to membership in that organization. Following his graduation he taught in the Bingham School until he returned to the University for his law. He located in Newton, his home town, but removed to Asheville in 1906 where he has since practiced law. During the World War he captained Battery C of the 316th

TWO GRADUATES ON LEGAL BOARD

Two Law School Graduates Are Investigating Federal Courts.

Two graduates of the law school of the University have been recommended to do work in connection with the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement. Neil S. Sowers of Statesville and Henry Bane of Durham are the men recommended and have received appointments to make investigations and studies in the North Carolina Federal District Courts.

The National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, of which Geo. W. Wickersham is chairman, was appointed over a year ago by Herbert C. Hoover, President of the United States, to carry on an investigation of crime. The Commission has recently entered upon a study of Federal litigation.

This group has selected a number of judges, and law school teachers under the chairmanship of Dean Charles E. Clark of the Yale Law School to organize and carry through this study of federal litigation.

At the request of Dean Clark, the University of North Carolina law school has recommended the appointment of Messrs. Sowers and Bane, recent graduates, as investigators to conduct this study in one or more of the N. C. Federal District Courts. The young men will devote eight months to this work.

The young men will make detailed studies of the cases with respect to the classes of litigation, number of cases, and the length of time required to dispose of each of them, and will cover the business of the Federal courts during the last five years.

NUMBER OF MEN IN ENGINEERING WORK INCREASED

According to Dean G. M. Braune, of the school of engineering, that department has a marked increase in enrollment this year. In the school as a whole there is about 20 per cent increase, and in the freshman class about 70 per cent.

The school was first listed in the catalogue of the University in 1853 as the "School of Application of Science to the Arts" and it included a civil engineering department headed by Charles Phillips. The department continued its work, suspending only during the time the University was closed from 1868 to 1875. The separate school of engineering was established in 1922 and at present includes departments of civil, electrical, mechanical, and chemical engineering.

LARGE STAFF IS ORGANIZED FOR DAILY TAR HEEL

Almost Fifty Persons on Largest Reportorial Staff in History; New Policies Outlined.

The managing-editor of the Daily Tar Heel has chosen almost fifty persons to serve on the reportorial staff of the publication, which number is the largest ever to serve the paper. Membership on the staff will depend, because of the competition that such a large number naturally means, upon consistency and faithfulness in the performance of duty. All beats will have to be covered each day.

Any reporter failing to have copy accepted for publication during any two week period will be dropped from the staff. All members of the staff are required to attend weekly twenty-minute meetings which are scheduled for 7:15. City editors will meet at seven o'clock each meeting night.

It is planned to have the assignment editor stay in the office every afternoon from 1:30 until 3:30. All reporters who fail to get any news from their beats will be requested to report to the assignment editor between these hours. He will assign stories to all who failed to secure any from their beats.

Although the present staff of reporters seems to be rather large, there is still room for good writers. Persons desiring to join the staff may do so by applying to Jack Dungan.

Those who are now on the staff of the Daily Tar Heel in addition to the editor and managing editor are: city editors J. M. Little, W. A. Shulenberg, G. E. French, Rhoulac Hamilton, Wm. McKee, and E. C. Daniel. Those on the editorial staff are: Beverly Moore, associate editor; J. C. Williams, associate editor; Vass Shepard, Elise Roberts, J. H. Davis, and E. F. Yarborough. The sports staff consists of K. C. Ramsay, editor; Hugh Wilson, assistant sports editor; and Jack Bessen, assistant. George Wilson, Don Shoemaker, and Peter Hairston are desk men, and Charles Rose, assignment editor. Sam Silverstein is librarian.

STATISTICS OF FRESHMAN CLASS SHOW MANY INTERESTING FACTS

First Year Class Is the Largest in History—Besides Being Largely Self-Supporting; Many Out-of-State Students Enrolled; Charlotte Leads North Carolina Cities.

In numbers the largest on record, self-supporting to a great extent, with more Baptists than Methodists and with more merchants' sons than farmers' sons for the first time, and with 25 per cent of the new men coming from other states, the present freshman class at the University possesses many unique characteristics, according to a survey of the new students made by the Alumni Review, magazine devoted to the interests of former students. The conclusions were based in a careful study of matriculation cards.

To begin with, the class set a new record in enrollment. The number of around 900, whereas the previous record, set in 1927, was 845.

Many Self-Help Students
The exigencies of the present financial situation is reflected by the fact that more than 30 per cent of the class have applied for loans from the student loan fund. Up to a few days before registration 840 applications for work had been received by the self-help bureau of the Y. M. C. A.

Dean of Students F. F. Bradshaw, who is in charge of the loan funds, says that many cases of desperate financial plight have been discovered among the new men. One of the most pitiable was that of a freshman who came into his office and confessed that he had eaten only one meal in three days. He had come to the University with only enough money to pay his way down here, confidently expecting that he would immediately secure enough work to enable him to pay all his expenses. He did not land a job as quickly as he had expected to, and hunger was becoming a terrible reality when he met a Jewish boy from Brooklyn who volunteered to lend him two dollars. Fortified by a good meal, he summoned enough courage to go to Dean Bradshaw's office, and he has been taken care of through the student loan fund and the self-help bureau.

How They Are Helped

Another freshman ad saved $200 during the summer, but lent it to his father with the understanding that it was to be repaid during the boy's first week at the University. Adverse circumstances, however, prevented the father from repaying the money, and the boy was faced with the prospect of losing the money he had expended for matriculation and room rent. His situation was relieved through the loan fund, and the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club has taken steps to secure more money for him from the Kiwanis Club in his home town.

Another unusual fact about the incoming class is that 200 of

MEMORIAL BUILT TO WESTINGHOUSE

Founder of Great Electrical Industries Honored by His Employers.

There has been erected in Schenley Park, Pittsburgh Pennsylvania, by those who were associated with him and by the 60 thousand employees of the world-wide industries he founded, a memorial to George Westinghouse as an evidence of their esteem and affection.

George Westinghouse was one of those great figures who at rare intervals cross the pages of history.

It is impossible to measure him in terms that apply to ordinary men.

He patented over 400 inventions, including one of the most important of all inventions—the air-brake—but he was not primarily an inventor.

He founded scores of successful companies, but he was in no sense a promoter.

He made millions for himself and others, but he cared nothing for money for its own sake.

He directed many vast engineering undertakings, but he cannot be considered merely an engineer.

He was a great creative force—a constructive genius—and he applied his gifts of vision, courage, and ability always for the benefit of humanity.

The purposes of this memorial are:

To pay tribute to the inventive genius of him who contributed so greatly to the material development of his country, and the world at large, in adding to the happiness, comfort and security of its people.

CHAPEL DEVOTED TO CANDIDATES

Aspirants for Chief Cheerleader's Job Give Short Talks.

At sophomore chapel exercises held in Gerrard hall yesterday morning, the three candidates for premier cheer leader, namely Howard Henry, Billy Arthur, and George Brown gave short and snappy talks on cheering and sportsmanship together with several famous Carolina cheers. Each man talked about the different principles of the cheering phase of athletics, and told what he would do if elected chief cheer-leader. Billy Arthur explained to everybody present that if he was elected or if he was not, he was going to make a cheering section out of the student body of which every college in the south would be envious. He also claims that there have been too many pessimists writing in the papers about Carolina's apparent lack of enthusiasm, and reminded all those present that we had quite a bit more, cheering at the the game with Wake Forest than the game of last year. Monday is election day for the cheer-leaders.

After the three politicians had eulogized themselves up to a pinnacle of publicity, John Lang, president of the State Student Federation gave a short talk. His subject was magnanimous sportsmanship, and how and when to demonstrate it. He told briefly of the efforts of the State Student Federation to bring about a feeling of closer friendship between the colleges of North Carolina and to further the art of being a gentleman of whom the University of North Carolina might well be proud.

NEGRO BOY SHOT WITH 'UNLOADED' PISTOL THURSDAY

An "unloaded" gun cost the life of Fletcher Strowd, 14, popular colored youth of Chapel Hill. The pistol was accidentally fired by Claude Revis, 18, the bullet entering his head, while the two were handling it Thursday afternoon. The tragedy occurred about four o'clock, and the lad was rushed to the hospital in Durham where he died at nine o'clock that night.

Claude told authorities that magazine of the automatic had been taken out to see if any bullets were in the weapon. However, the boy did not know that one still remained in the barrel. He is being held in the local jail pending the outcome of an inquest which will be held in the old Pickwick theatre building this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PLANS MADE FOR RED CROSS MEET HERE THIS FALL

A. B. Andrews To Preside at Opening Session; Graham To Speak.

The eastern division of the North Carolina Red Cross will meet in Chapel Hill Wednesday, October 8, for the annual state conference. Plans for this meeting have been announced by the University extension department, aiding Mrs. Elise Mulliken, national field representative of Washington, D. C.

The conference will last one day. There will be morning and afternoon sessions and at noon a luncheon at a local cafeteria. Two hundred delegates are expected to attend the meeting.

In addition to the North Carolinians there will be two men sent by the national Red Cross to speak. The keynote speech of the morning session will be made by William Carl Hunt, Assistant Manager of the Eastern Area. The theme of the conference is "Red Cross in the Home." Its objective, to raise the standards of the home environment, helps to carry out the live-at-home program of Governor O. Max Gardner.

Miss Mabel Boardman will be guest speaker for the luncheon, while President Frank Graham will make the introductory remarks. Judge Francis D. Winston will act as toastmaster, and Bishop Thomas C. Darst will pronounce the blessing.

A. B. Andrews will preside over the opening session, and Colonel Joseph Hyde Pratt will extend the greeting to the delegates. In the afternoon T. E. Cheek of Durham will act as chairman while F. H. Koch and his Carolina Playmakers will furnish the entertainment.

Other speakers on the program are Miss Katherine Cameron, Red Cross nurse from Burlington, who was the first to inform the outside world of the Porto Rican disaster; and Miss Mary Taylor of Oteen Hospital, who will tell of the service being done there under Colonel Dodge.

Members of such patriotic organizations as the Colonial Dames, D. A. R., Women's Auxiliary and other clubs are invited to attend. Those persons wishing to attend will please notify Mrs. Mulliken, who is in charge of the dining arrangements.

Another feature of the conference will be the meeting of the Junior Red Cross.

DIRECTORY WILL APPEAR WITHIN NEXT FEW DAYS

New Arrangement Is Made of Book, Which Is To Contain Complete Information About University Community.

According to an announcement made yesterday by the Y. M. C. A., the new 1930-31 directory will go to press within the next week. By the looks of the plans that have been made for this new directory, it will be superior to any that has yet been published for campus use.

The directory this year will have practically the same sort of cover as last year. One change will be made, however, in the arrangement of the secretarial and clerical staffs. In the edition published in 1929 the staff of the library was classed under the secretarial and clerical staffs. This year the library staff will be put under a separate head of its own.

A speed typist was employed by the "Y" to make four copies of the directory in order that it might be sent to press. These copies have been turned in to the "Y," and one of them will be available for public use within the next day or so. One of the three remaining copies will be kept in the Y as a master directory, a second will go to the post office to help simplify mailing troubles there, and the third one will be sent to the printers as soon as it has been corrected.

If there are any students who
