

UNIVERSITY MEN TO ATTEND GAME LAW CONFERENCE

Branson and Hobbs to Confer on Establishment of State Hunting Preserves.

Dr. E. C. Branson and Professor S. H. Hobbs, Jr., of the University, are among those asked to attend a conference on Knotts Island, November 8, at the home of Joseph P. Knapp, of the recently formed Knapp Game Foundation.

The purpose of the conference is to discuss a movement proposing to institute in North Carolina a study of game bird preservation, and to consider a model state game law. This conference is being called by Governor O. Max Gardner at the request of Mr. Knapp. In his letter to Governor Gardner, Mr. Knapp stated that he wished North Carolina to become the greatest game bird state.

Mr. Knapp's plan for North Carolina, provides first for this conference to consider a model state game law, which if formulated, will be proposed in the next General Assembly. He suggests that the law will provide for a strictly non-partisan game bird division of the department of conservation and development, which will work for "more game birds in North Carolina."

It will also provide for a course at State College for the study of game birds, and for a game bird farm for the use of the students in raising game birds, to be supported by the sale of birds and by state appropriations.

If this is done, the foundation will make other demonstrations in North Carolina. It will make provision for sending a field representative into a quail region to interest the farmers in forming a shooting preserve club to collectively own and care for a game preserve. The foundation will loan to this club funds to build a hatchery for the purpose of starting a community club game farm, which would distribute game birds on the preserve and sell others. A graduate of the Game Preservation Institute will be sent by the foundation as manager. The foundation will provide for the sale of shooting privileges to the farmers' profit.

Others who are to attend this conference are: Honorable E. R. Johnson, Warsaw; Jefferson Penn, Reidsville; James G. Hanes, Winston-Salem; Honorable Frank Page, Raleigh; former Governor Cameron Morrison, Charlotte; Dr. E. C. Brooks, Raleigh; Honorable Fred I. Sutton, Kinston; Honorable Dennis G. Brummitt, Raleigh; Robert Lassiter, Charlotte; Colonel J. W. Harrelson, Raleigh; Governor O. Max Gardner, Raleigh.

Auditorium Opening Tickets Go Rapidly

According to an announcement received at the Tar Heel office yesterday, tickets for the Friday night opening of the new music auditorium, on November 14, have all been reserved. Students are expected to attend the second performance which will be given on Saturday night, November 15. All students desiring to attend this opening are asked to secure their tickets, free of charge, from the Book Exchange as soon as possible.

German Students Are Taught To Teach Themselves Says Dr. Bonn

Dr. M. J. Bonn, in his lecture Thursday evening, explained something of national politics in Germany. And then we of a University wondered what he of a university could tell us of campus politics in Germany. Dr. Bonn's answer was concise. "We have no campus." Then students live out about town? Yes. Is it a sort of congregation, where one stays, several stay? Sometimes, but they don't like that. A German likes best to have one room in a house. There he has breakfast. The universities have a very cheap sort of cafeteria for the midday meal. There are associations, too, so that sometimes students live in what you would consider fraternity houses.

Have the students any part in governing themselves? None at all. Neither has anybody else any part in governing them. You see the German universities have neither freshmen nor sophomores. They are in high school. When students come to the European universities they are grown. When they come they are eighteen, nineteen. Then there are no fourteen-year-olds? Oh now and then by some good luck, or bad, boys will come to the universities at seventeen. But they are grown. Older than American boys of seventeen and eighteen? Far older. In England, not so old. But in Germany, France, the south, Italy, they are men able to look after themselves. Nobody bothers about their private lives. They are men.

At the universities, when something displeases them? If they don't like a class, they shuffle with their feet. And then of course there is voluntary attendance. You see, you instruct students; we teach them to teach themselves.

AMERICAN EPOCH IS LEARNED BOOK

Northern Critics Say That Dr. Odum Wrote Treatise for Select Public

"For a great many years there has gone out from Chapel Hill, the seat of the University of North Carolina, a vibrant wave of light and healing fully comparable to that which shone in another day from the library windows of Monticello. No resident of this Athenian settlement has done more credit to its enlightening mission than Mr. Odum," says the New York Times in reviewing Dr. H. W. Odum's latest book, An American Epoch.

This book is the result of ten years of preparation on the part of the author, and is, according to the critics, a veritable compendium of information on the south, and its history from 1850 to the present day. It has received wide and very favorable from the northern critics, as well as attracting much attention in the southern states.

The book is written in the biographical style. The chief characters are "Uncle John" and "The Old Major." Through these two lay characters Odum has viewed the south, and predicts its immediate future. He thinks that within the next few years the south will have placed itself on a parity with the north, economically, politically, and scholastically.

This is not a book that is easy to read according to reviewers. Into its three hundred and seventy-nine pages Dr. Odum has packed a reproduction of four generations, that is remarkably thorough, and which the New York Evening Post refers to as being likely to endure as a model of accuracy, eloquence, and strictly modern understanding. Dr. Odum was not writing for the populus, the New York Times says in substance, but rather for a select

Pledge Revision

All fraternities who have pledges whose names failed to appear in the list published yesterday, are asked to turn in these names Monday afternoon at the Tar Heel office before 3:30 P. M. A supplemented list will be published in Tuesday's edition.

PHI ZETA NU TO SELECT MEMBERS

Honorary Electrical Engineering Group at Work Compiling Scholastic Merits of New Candidates.

Phi Zeta Nu, honorary electrical engineering society, which requires for membership an average of ninety or better, is at present working on the grades of the electrical engineering students to determine those who are eligible for membership. It is thought that this information will be obtainable within the next three weeks when the society will begin the year's program.

The highest distinction that can come to a student in the electrical engineering school is to be chosen for membership in Phi Zeta Nu during his sophomore year. Only one sophomore is taken in each year, the basis of selection being character, ability, and scholastic standing. The student must above a Phi Beta Kappa average. Juniors and seniors who average C are eligible for membership, also.

Members of the society in school this year are: George D. Thompson, president; R. E. Hubbard, secretary and treasurer; C. M. Lear, G. F. Horney, P. G. Johnson, and D. J. Thurston. Professor J. E. Lear is a faculty member.

Red Cross To Seek Help Of Kiwanians

At the meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the hut of the Christian church on Tuesday evening, Colonel Joseph Hyde Pratt, president of the Red Cross, talked to the members of the club on the work of the Red Cross and asked the cooperation of the Kiwanians again this year in the roll call. The club agreed to make the roll call on Franklin street, from the post office west.

Colonel Pratt announced that the Red Cross board has agreed to cooperate with the Kiwanis Club in sponsoring a dental clinic for Carrboro school similar to the one sponsored for the Chapel Hill school year before last. A committee reported that George Lawrence, superintendent of public welfare, would welcome the cooperation of the club in the distribution of Christmas baskets to families in the county.

DAILY STAFF TO UNDERGO REVISION

Oscar Coffin Will Speak at 7:15 In 104 Alumni to Members Now Listed.

Mr. Oscar Coffin will speak before the members of the Tar Heel staff at its regular meeting in Room 104 Alumni at 7:15 Sunday evening. The editorial staff will meet at 7:00 in the Tar Heel office. Now that fraternity rushing is over, the managing editor intends that staff rules of attendance and contribution be strictly enforced.

1. Two consecutive unexcused absences from Sunday meetings will automatically drop a reporter from the staff.

2. Any reporter having no news story accepted in a period of two weeks is automatically dropped from the staff.

3. Feature stories and editorials are not to be counted news stories.

Although there is room for only approximately thirty reporters, forty-seven names are listed on the reportorial staff. Competition is expected to develop among those persons for the thirty places. The campus and community have been divided into what are called "reportorial beats." It is the intention of the manager of the staff to see that every item of personal and community interest be included in the columns of the paper. Reporters failing to secure all the news on their beats are to be dropped immediately, according to the new policy.

The Daily Tar Heel is a laboratory for students interested in journalism. The staff does not intend, according to the managing editor, to present a paper to the campus which can be compared or classed with the metropolitan dailies that stand as examples of journalism. On the other hand, a sincere effort is being made to report accurately, to edit carefully, and to verify all information included in the columns of the paper. For this purpose, a staff of ten men is at work each afternoon reading and rewriting all contributions to be published.

With the idea in view of covering the campus more carefully, an assignment editor has been appointed by the managing editor to aid the reporters in more fully covering their beats.

In the department of sports, three men have full charge of seeing that athletic activities are given proper recognition.

To aid the reporters in their work, a "newspaper morgue" is being accumulated under the direction of the staff librarian.

Although the reportorial staff is overcrowded, the policy of the managing board will be to employ any students who present themselves as candidates for positions, and to permit them to compete with those persons already listed for the thirty places. The forty-seven men now listed will be given one week in which to retain their positions or they will make way for more interested reporters.

Mid-Term Grades

Notice has been issued from the registrar's office that mid-term reports will be due from instructors Thursday, October 30, at 5 o'clock. This means that students will be notified of their standings as soon after they can be tabulated and published by the registrar.

Student Government Week To Be Observed In State

Federation Head

E. R. Murrow (above), president of the National Federation of Students, will speak here this week before the Y. M. C. A., the Di Senate, the Phi Assembly, and at a number of colleges in the state in observance of Student Government Week.

Y. M. C. A. Members Will Hear Murrow

A joint meeting of the three Y cabinets will be held tomorrow night in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building at 7:15 for the purpose of hearing an address by E. R. Murrow, president of the National Student Federation. President Murrow will talk to the cabinets on the subject of "Moral Responsibility of Student Government." The speaker, by reason of his position, is well-informed on the question of student government.

Following his talk, Mr. Murrow will conduct an open forum on the many phases of student body rule.

MURROW TO ADDRESS N. C. C. W. STUDENTS

Greensboro, Oct. 18—E. R. Murrow, president of the National Student Federation, is to appear at North Carolina college, Aycock auditorium, Friday evening for an address on the problems of intercollegiate relationships.

John Lang, president of the North Carolina Federation of Students, is to present Mr. Murrow at the meeting, which will be attended by students of the state institution for women.

The purpose of the session is that of fitting the state organization, started last spring, into the national organization.

Writing New Book

Dr. H. W. Odum, director of the Institute for Research in Social Science is at work on the third volume of a trilogy concerning negro life and superstitions. The ensuing volume is preceded by "Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder" and "Wings on My Feet."

Odum's new book is to be called "Cold Blue Moon." "The American Epoch," a recent work of Dr. Odum, has attracted nation wide attention among critics and reviewers.

Murrow, President of National Student Federation, and Lang, to Lecture.

PROGRAM HERE BEGINS TONIGHT AT Y MEETING

Officials of the North Carolina Student Federation have designated next week, October 20-25, as Student Government Week, and have arranged a series of discussions on student affairs and intercollegiate relations to be given in colleges of the State that are members of the Federation, according to announcement by John A. Lang, president of the North Carolina Student Federation.

E. R. Murrow, president of the National Student Federation, and Lang will preside over these discussions. Murrow has just returned from Europe and will talk on student conditions there as compared with conditions here.

The program for the University has been previously announced. The Y. M. C. A. cabinets will hear Mr. Murrow tonight, the student council later, the freshmen during chapel period Tuesday, and a joint meeting of the Di and Phi Tuesday night, to which the student body is invited. Mr. R. B. House will also speak.

A convocation meeting of the student bodies of State, Wake Forest, St. Mary's, Peace, E. C. T. C., and Meredith will be held in Pullen hall at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. President E. C. Brooks of State and Don Paul, president of the State College student body, and Lang will speak at this meeting.

A special student program of music by the State College quartet and speeches by Murrow and Lang will be broadcast between 5:30 and 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by station WPTF of Raleigh. Talks by Murrow and Lang on student government will feature the night meeting in Raleigh.

The remainder of the program includes addresses by Murrow and Lang at Duke, Thursday night; at N. C. C. W., Friday night; and at Davidson, Saturday night.

STUDENT FEDERATION TO SURVEY HONOR SYSTEM

Supported by the administration and the student government the National Student Federation of America committee at the University of California at Los Angeles has begun a survey of the honor system. At the fifth annual congress of the organization, Robert Keith, president of the associated students at U. C. L. A. stated that the honor system was a complete failure at his university. The purpose of the survey is to discover from the students to what extent it is a failure, and why. The information gained will be compiled for the use of the local student administration, and will be made available to all interested institutions through the N. S. F. A. "The honor system questionnaire will illustrate the N. S. F. A. policy of stimulating student opinion on questions of interest to student governments," said Earl Swingle, student president, in a recent interview.
