

The Campus Snapshot

By J. C. Williams

This Buccaneer Business

Now that the plight of the Carolina Buccaneer has been fairly well thrashed out in the columns of the campus Daily what have the numerous discussions amounted to? Not very much, it is certain. The campus comic is still intact, and there is little reason for believing that there will be any change of editorial policy.

The Buccaneer is all right in its place. It is, of course, not intended to be sent to one's grandmother or one's aged father. A student would hardly enhance his good standing by supplying his favorite girl with copies of the comic.

'Tis a good thing that hot air is light and, therefore, rises. Otherwise, we'd all be smothered to death on this campus.

Speaking of true statements that are hard to believe, "Prof" Koch told his 8:30 class the other morning that it was worth one's time to come all the way from New York City to get one glimpse of the North Carolina wren.

Although analogies are in rank disrepute as a means of proving a contention, we feel that L. C. MacKinney (teacher mediaeval history) said something worthy of note when he spoke thusly to his class Friday morning: "Gentlemen, mediaeval history, women, and fleas are very much alike; you can't get hold of either of them."

'Tis rumored that the Spanish government is making an attempt to popularize American methods of advertising in that country. Such an attempt might not be a bad idea right here in the United States.

Believe It or Not

Varsity intercollegiate debates of the current collegiate year are expected to be heavily attended.

DUTCH STUDENTS LEAD FREE LIFE IN UNIVERSITIES

Member of Dutch Student Union Describes the Colleges of Holland.

The organization of the Dutch students is explained in an article addressed to the National Student Federation of America by C. M. Nienhuys of the Dutch Student Union.

"Briefly, every university and college has its own student life and customs. There are more than 11,000 students, distributed over six universities and four colleges in Holland including Utrecht, Leiden, Amsterdam, Delft and Groningen.

"Each university town has its own character and recruits its students from certain districts and communities. In Utrecht, many sons of the land-owning nobility of Holland are studying. Leiden has more Dutch aristocracy, and Croningen has many Groningen and Frisian gentlemen-farmers' sons, whilst Amsterdam is conspicuous for its students from intellectual circles and from the commercial milieu, having moreover, a strong Jewish element in its student world.

"The organizations which comprise all the students in the five academies are the faculty-corporations which regulate for the student his studying opportunities. They are so-called professional corporations (vakverenigingen), organizing scientific lectures, outings, announcements of dates, etc.

"Nowhere is such a free and easy studying regime to be found as in Holland. No obligatory college attendance, no examinations after fixed terms of study, nor enforced interrogatories. Certainly, this carries with it a great danger for spirits too fond of liberty. However, the selecting influence is of more value.

"In the same way the student is given much more freedom in shaping his life outside his studies, for there are no compulsory clubs or boarding establishments of which he must be a member. There are, however, 'corps' in which a student may become affiliated. They are a powerful corporation which sway the student's code of morals and pass it on from generation to generation. Their social life culminates often in beautiful clubs where all the 'solemn' happenings of student life are celebrated.

"As a reaction against the 'ragging' (groenen), which was sometimes too severe, 'bonden' (clubs) sprang up in the eighties with more democratic tendencies, where also lady-students were admitted.

"Especially in Utrecht, Leiden and Amsterdam they are well to the fore. They too know the social club-life. Between them and the corps the relations are, as is only natural, not 'loving,' and they sometimes give vent to them at nocturnal encounters."

At the Carolina This Week

The Carolina theatre offers this week a well-balanced series of pictures containing especially such stellar attractions as "The Big Trail," which has been spoken of as "the most important picture ever made," and "Tom Sawyer," Mark Twain's well-known story.

Monday's attraction is "The Big Trail," a production of especial significance not only as an entertainment but also as a motion picture with a colorful and authentically historical background. Laid in the days of the American pioneer and picturing the great trek across the west before even the days of the frontier, "The Big Trail," starring El Brendel, Margaret Churchill, and Tully Marshall, provides entertainment on the scale of the celebrated "Covered Wagon" and productions of that type.

Coming to the theatre Tuesday is "The Lottery Bride," screen musical comedy done on a lavish scale and directed by Arthur Hammerstein among whose stage successes were such hits as "Rose Marie" and "High Jinks." The music and lyrics were composed by Rudolph Friml. Jeanette MacDonald, Joe E. Brown, and Zasu Pitts lead the cast, while the film has a magnificent technicolor sequence.

The attraction Wednesday is Grace Moore in "A Lady's Morals," a picture which is one of the latest releases from the producers and which has not yet appeared on Broadway.

Thursday's picture should possess an appeal for everyone, at least for all those who have known of Mark Twain and of his immortal creation, Tom Sawyer. Tom Sawyer and all his host of friends and relatives and enemies will parade in "Tom Sawyer": Aunt Polly, the disturbing Becky Thatcher, the schoolmaster, and of course Huckleberry Finn. The action transpires just as it does in the book; the characterization is faithfully reproduced; the picture, in fact, is a visual reproduction of the original story, and with Jackie Coogan as "Tom" and the inimitable Mitzi Green as his sweetheart "Becky" a big success has been scored.

The comedy-drama "Fast and Loose" is the feature Friday. Carol Lombard, blonde star of many photoplays, and Frank Morgan star in this production.

The bill this week closes with "The Pay Off," which will be seen Saturday. In this picture Hugh Trevor, playing the role of the "heavy" or villain, shares honors with Marian Nixon and Lowell Sherman as leaders in the cast. Sherman also directed the attraction, which is based on an original story by Samuel Shipman.

A much-heralded attraction, Amos 'n' Andy in "Check An' Double Check," is coming to the theatre November 17 and 18.

CAVALIERS POINT TO HOME GAME WITH W. AND L.

Game Will Be Sixteenth Contest Between Two Virginia Institutions.

University, Va., Nov. 8.—After taking part in three homecoming celebrations on foreign football fields the Virginia varsity can now settle down to prepare for its own "Big Home Game" with Washington and Lee next Saturday afternoon on Lambeth Field.

This will be the sixteenth gridiron game between the Generals and Cavaliers. Their first formal football contest was in 1890. Since 1922 they've alternated home and home games every year.

The Cavaliers took the games from 1890 to 1907 when the Generals were victorious for the first time. Virginia also won the contest in 1922 that marked the renewal of gridiron relations. Then W. and L. teams coached by Jimmy DeHart won three years in a row, after which Earle Neale coached three University of Virginia teams to victory. Last fall was a 13-13 tie.

Generals and Cavaliers will each put into the game one back of the highest quality. Monk Maddox of Lexington and Bill Thomas of Charlottesville are both skilled enough in gridiron ways to make places on any team in the nation.

State To Inaugurate First Intercollegiate Ring Squad

A squad of sixty-four is at work at State College training for the coming boxing season which will see State's debut in official boxing circles. The squad is composed chiefly of freshmen to date but a number of varsity men is expected to report at the conclusion of the football season since several members of the football squad are outstanding ring prospects.

Although this will be State's first official boxing team, experience is not altogether lacking since several of the men fought on last year's regimental team in R.O.T.C. camp. Captain Sam Dimeo, Grey, Bowns, Nance, Bennett, Hall, and Rhyne are among the most outstanding candidates at present while others are showing unusual improvement in their daily workouts.

LEADERSHIP FRATERNITY TAPS SIX AT DAVIDSON

Six campus leaders, all members of the senior class, were tapped Tuesday at Davidson College by Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, when practically the entire student body witnessed one of the most impressive ceremonies of the college year.

The election to Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity, is considered one of the greatest honors wherever this fraternity has a chapter.

The men tapped Tuesday were Thad Brock, of Barium Springs; R. M. King, of Nashville, Tennessee; J. D. McCall, of Salisbury; A. B. McClure, of Rabun Gap, Georgia; A. W. McLean, of Lumberton; and C. A. Sisson, of Winona, Mississippi.

Carolina Students Entered In Contest

Two graduate students who are now studying at the University are among the eight graduates of Wake Forest College who will represent that institution in the Rhodes scholarship contest to be held in the state December 4. These boys are C. E. Poovey of Hickory, and C. A. Madry of Durham.

The other graduates representing Wake Forest are: O. T. Binkley, Harmony, now at Yale; M. L. Griffin, Monroe, now at Tulane; G. B. Snuggs, Albemarle; T. D. Kitchin, Jr., R. N. Simms, Jr., Raleigh, all at Wake Forest; and R. B. Davis, Burgaw, at the University of Virginia.

Collegiate Customs Are Adolescent Says Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—(IP)—"Coonskin coats, college caps and collegiate slang are remnants of the irresponsible days of adolescence that must be put aside upon entering college," Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University, told members of the freshman class here this year.

"Don't confuse the burning of gas with the burning of midnight oil," he said. "You may go further overland on the former, but it won't get you as far on the road you are to travel while in college. Loafing is a disease, a malfunctioning of worthwhile energy. Choose as your friends those who are going somewhere, and go with them."

Medicine Taught With Strip Films

Philadelphia, Pr., Nov. 8.—(IP)—Strip film photography has been adopted by the School of Medicine at Temple University here as the best method of teaching medicine.

Strip film photography is different from motion pictures in that it consists of the making for projection purposes of single photographic exposures, usually in series, on strips of standard motion picture film.

The camera used at Temple is small enough to be carried in a man's coat pocket.

People With Cold Hands Can Be Eliminated

Kansas City, Nov. 8.—(IP)—That by cutting two little nerves that lie along the spines of persons whose hands and feet are cold, the cold and clammy handclasp can be eliminated, was the information conveyed to the Southwest Clinical Conference here by Dr. L. G. Rowntree, of Rochester, Minn.

Persons with arthritis or bone fever also may be benefited by the operation which increases the blood supply in the afflicted regions, Dr. Rowntree told the conference.
