White Phantoms Entertain Quakers Tomorrow Night

Coach Shepard Drills Team Twice Daily in Preparation For Initial Game.

LINE-UP STILL UNCERTAIN

Hard Fight Raging Over Center Position With Four Candidates in Contest.

Carolina's White Phantoms are fast rounding into shape for their initial test of the season against Guilford tomorrow night in the Tin Can. A squad of fifteen has been working out twice daily since last Thursday in an effort to determine the starting Coach Shepard experimented with new combinations in each of the early practice sessions, and the starting team has not been definitely named. The tasks of finding a center to fill the gap left by the graduation of Paul Edwards and a successor to Tom Alexander at one of the guard posts have been the chief worries the Carolina coach has faced.

Center Fight Close

The fight over the center position is a four man affair, with George Brandt holding a slight edge at present. Earle Beale, Ike Minor, and Jack Glace are the other pivot aspirants. Beale especially has shown to advantage in several of the early steadier defensive play Brandt for a kick. Discussion was scrimmages but because of his has been getting the call. Minor and Glace have each shown up well, and all four will see action tomorrow night.

Stud Henry, Stuart Chandler, Buck Harris, Dan Jones, and Snooks Aitken have been fighting for Alexander's guard post. Aitken, a forward on the freshman quint last year, has been shifted to a guard because of his fine showing thus far and because the forward posts are well taken care of by Captain Hines and Weathers. A shifty and speedy floorman, Aitken has been running well with the first team and seems slated to start against Guilford.

The other four guards have also displayed a marked improvement in their play and Coach Shepard is sure to use them tomorrow night. Markham and Morrie Long have been paired as understudies for the forward combination or Hines and Weathers which has at times shown flashes of their last season's scoring sprees.

The game with Guilford tomorrow night will give Coach Shepard a chance to see whether or not Aitken will fit in as a guard despite his short stature. The Carolina coach may use Brandt as guard after the tipoff, allowing the speedy Aitken to lead the offense.

The Can Opener

CLAIBORN M. CARR

THE BIGGEST HEN PARTY 1 have ever seen was staged on the second floor of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York recently when the college coaches from all over the country gathered for their annual meeting. The young mentors crowded around such eminent story tellers as Yost, Stevens, Dobie, and Anderson and tried to match their yarns. From all corners of the ante-room great guffaws would arise as some coach scored. Coach Collins was there and some coach asked him where Coach Bob was. Collins told him that Coach Bob was over with the sissies (track coaches) at the Paramount hotel. At this time the newcomer swore to a statement he heard Coach Fetzer make when he arrived in the Pennsylvania station. "Um," said Coach Bob, "I bet this place holds a pile of hay."

COACH COLLINS MADE A motion to the effect that the point after touchdown be determined in another fashion. Collins suggested that two points be given a team for rushing the ball over and one point be given opened but as their was a difference of opinion no action was taken. I asked Coach Fielding Yost of Michigan what he thought of the plan and the aged mentor, whose undefeated team was forbidden by Big Ten rules from participating in the Rose Bowl affair, said, "I am sure it could not be used as it would give too much room for luck to decide a game. If it was used however, I would move the ball back to the six yard line for the try." Coach Yost was busy explaining to New York sports writers why the Big Ten leaders prevented Michigan from playing Southern Californ'a. He did say quite emphatically that he could have beaten the Trojans. Coach Yost described Harry Newman, his quarterback, as "the most dangerous man he had ever seen handle a football."

COACH SHEPARD'S BASKET ball team makes its bow tomorrow night against Guilford in the Tin Can and after working out with them for the past week it is our guess that Carolina supporters are going to see some snappy hardwood play. Improvement in the play in every particular has been evident throughout the last few practices. In the scrimmages the passing, shooting and teamwork has improved and such minor errors as faking at teammates have been ironed out. Smith stood on George's feet then and he was unable to ring up those two points-Carolina lost the title 26-24. Dave Mc-Cachren is another hardwood specialist who seems to be dogged by ill-fortune. Last year he suffered from some leg trouble (yeah, leg trouble) and then this year he sprained a finger several weeks ago and it has not ger hinders Dave's dribbling and the sooner it clears up the better.

THOUGH THE CONFERENCE has already been broken up and Carolina and Duke are left in the cold, news comes out of Atlanta, of the conference teams for 1932 in ten divisions of sports. Carolina was first, Duke second, with Louisiana State and Georgia following in order. All this dope was of course brought to our attention by Dale Ranson, crosscountry coach who considers track at Carolina the "forgotten man." Old "7-14," as George Barclay calls him, thinks that if someone would look up the records for the past ten years, Carolina would still be on the top of the heap, that is, without emphasis on football. Play on Dale.

Anyone scoring more than 120 in a game was allowed to enter. Then each contestant shot three games and was ranked according to their score. The four highest ranking players then were matched against each other in semi-final and final matches.

> Hudson also ranked the highest after each individual had finished his three games. The champion had a score of 448 and was followed in order of their rank by Atwood, 410; Brewer, 402; M. Tucker, 389; Kanner, 387; Peeler, 381; Sloan, 375; P. Hudson, 360: Markham and Napier, each 354.

In the semi-finals Atwood downed Tucker 388 to 362 while Hudson was winning over Brewer 442 to 422. In the finals the title holder got off to a good start in the first game scoring 145 to Atwood's 112 score. However from then on Atwood gained on the winner, scoring 131 and 136 games, while Hudson was getting 121 and 134 games respectively. Hudson's long ead in the first game was enough to give him the 400 to 379 margin of victory.
