

EASTERN TOWNS TO BE TOURED BY PLAYMAKER SHOW

Greenville, Goldsboro, and Wilmington Included in Tour Beginning January 28.

Three dates have been definitely set for the Playmakers' tour that leaves the University January 26.

The Playmakers show Thursday, January 26, at the Eastern Carolina Teachers College in Greenville. Friday, January 27, they move to Wilmington for a performance that night at Thalian hall, the municipal theatre. The tour ends Saturday night with a showing in the Wayne community building in Goldsboro under the auspices of the Wayne Community Players.

Other dates in Greensboro, High Point, and several of the larger cities of the state are pending.

Three Plays Given

Three plays will make up the program at these performances: Davy Crockett, a folk drama of the Tennessee frontier, Four on A Heath, a grotesque, and Stumbling in Dreams, a folk comedy of Tin Pan Alley. All three of these plays have been presented by the Playmakers and have proved to be very popular.

The personnel of the tour will consist of Jack Riley, Ellen Stewart, David McIlhenny, Robert Proctor, Eugenia Rawls, Alfred Barrett, Betty Barnett, Phoebe Barr, Jo Orendorff, William Bonyun, Foster Fitz-Simons, Marion Tatum, Forney Rankin, Irving Katz, Robert Novins, Elmer Oettinger, and George Brown. George Pearson will have charge of the lighting effects, and Jimmie Queen will go in the capacity of property man.

LITTLE SYMPHONY WILL PLAY NOVEL MUSICAL PROGRAM

Stringfield's Group Will Offer Symphony Concert at Playmakers' Theatre Friday.

The concert to be presented by the Little Symphony Friday evening, January 20, at the Playmaker theatre, is to bring several novelties before a North Carolina audience for the first time. Announcements were made yesterday by Lamar Stringfield, musical director of the North Carolina Symphony Society, of which the Little Symphony is a part.

Aside from the premier performance of the works of two young composers, the orchestra will offer novel compositions by Bernard Rogers and Quinto Maganini, contemporary American composers. The Soliloquy, by Bernard Rogers, is scored for flute solo with string orchestra. Stringfield will play the solo part. Earl Slocum, of Greensboro, will conduct. This is the first time a soloist with orchestra has appeared in formal concert in this state.

Maganini Contributes

Maganini's contribution to the program is his descriptive sketch The Humming Birds from his Ornithological Suite. Maganini himself is a well known flute player, although his fame has been achieved as a composer. He was winner of the 1927 Pulitzer prize competition for musical composition. In 1926

RELATIONS GROUP TO MEET TONIGHT

William E. Armstrong Will Lead Discussion on Subject of World Disarmament.

The International Relations club will meet tonight in the lecture room on the third floor of Saunders hall at 7:00 p. m. for an open forum discussion on the subject of world disarmament and will be led by William E. Armstrong of Belmont.

The club, formed during this last fall through the efforts of Professor K. C. Fraser, was organized for the purpose of discussing international affairs and has had, through an arrangement with the Carnegie Foundation, the benefit of one of their visiting professors, Dr. Carlos Davila, former president of Chile, who gave several talks in Chapel Hill during the past term.

SKINNER STARTS LECTURE SERIES HERE LAST NIGHT

Tufts College Dean-Elect Offers Discussion of Liberal Religion at Carolina Inn.

"Revolutionary change must come in religion, if it is to meet the needs of the individual and social life today," declared Professor Clarence R. Skinner, dean-elect of the Tufts College School of Religion, last night, in his first lecture of a seminar in liberal religion being conducted this week at the Carolina Inn. Nightly meetings take place at 8:00 o'clock, and a discussion period follows each lecture.

"There are few people, if any, who would deny the critical character of our times," went on Dr. Skinner. "In one sense, every age represents a crisis. Whenever one era of civilization is transformed, there must be grave dangers of readjustment.

"The fact that makes our age so critical is that there is transformation or readjustment in practically every sphere of human life, both individual and social."

Professor Skinner continued by saying that a new science of psychology is revealing itself as a result of the profound changes effected throughout every country in the world during the present crisis. The old Victorian view is being rapidly outgrown. In view of the facts regarding the changing social and economic order, Professor Skinner stated that equivalent changes in the structure and function of our religious life is also vital.

"In the very nature of the term, liberal means free from the clutch of past ages, free from the chains of dogma, free from the old views of the cosmos and of human personality," Skinner explained. "Likewise, in the nature of the word, 'conservative' religion keeps and conserves these old and somewhat worn points of view. The ques-

MOST ABLE MEN IN STATE WORKED ON CONSTITUTION

Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy Headed Group Which Wrote New N. C. Legal Code.

The proposed new Constitution for North Carolina, subject to the approval of the Legislature now in session at Raleigh, was written by a commission composed of Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy, '08, chairman, and eight other members of which six were University alumni, according to the current issue of The Alumni Review.

In a letter of transmission, O. Max Gardner, former governor of the state, wrote that the new Constitution is the work of a "commission composed of three of North Carolina's ablest judges: W. P. Stacy, '08, chief justice of the supreme court, chairman; John J. Parker, '07, senior circuit judge of the United States circuit court of appeals, and Michael Schenck, '97, of the superior court; of four of the leaders of the North Carolina bar: George E. Butler, '07, of Clinton, J. O. Carr, '95, of Wilmington, Burton Craige, '97, of Winston-Salem, and Congressman Lindsey Warren, '11, of Washington; of one of the state's best-informed fiscal administrators, Allen J. Maxwell, state revenue commissioner, and of Clarence Poe, editor and humanitarian."

Second Complete Change

Not since the reconstruction convention of 1868 has North Carolina been presented with a complete revision of her Constitution.

FEINSTEIN FILLS YEAR BOOK POST

Publications Union Board Selects Business Manager to Succeed Harold Staton.

Marcus Feinstein was selected yesterday by the Publications Union Board as business manager of the Yachety Yack to fill out the term of Harold Staton, who resigned from the position last week due to scholastic difficulties.

Nine applicants were interviewed by the board Saturday, but action was deferred until yesterday due to the absence from the meeting of one member. The number applying was larger than ever before.

Feinstein, a sophomore from Haddenfield, N. J., has been connected with advertising work for about six years, concentrating for the most part on the publishing of city directories. Last fall he supervised the edition of the University directory.

Stabb to Speak on "Education in France" Before French Club

The French club of the University will convene for its first meeting of the new year Friday, January 20, at 7:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial. At that time Dr. H. H. Stabb will speak to the club on "Education in France." Dr. Stabb, who has spent considerable time at the University of Bordeaux, is particularly well equipped to speak on this subject.

Harry Knox will play some French music, including some selections from Chopin, on the piano. Beverly R. Thurman is faculty adviser of the club.

Forum Speaker

Dr. John H. Gray, well-known economist pictured above, is scheduled to appear here along with Word H. Wood, prominent Charlotte banker, to lead the Forum Discussion Thursday.

WOOD, GRAY WILL LEAD DISCUSSION THURSDAY NIGHT

Charlotte Banker and Former College Professor Here for Open Forum Discussion.

Two distinguished figures in the field of American banking will appear on the Open Forum Discussion platform here Thursday night to present their views on "The Banking Question." Dr. John H. Gray, former president of the American Economics Association, and Word H. Wood, president of the American Trust Company, Charlotte, will feature the program. It is planned to direct a vigorous discussion from the floor following the two addresses.

Both Prominent Figures

Mr. Wood is well known on the banking scene, not only in North Carolina and the south but throughout the country. He was formerly president of the state Bankers Association and was actively identified with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Dr. Gray, who comes by arrangement with the League for Industrial Democracy, is respected both here and abroad for his vast knowledge of American industrial mechanics. He is a graduate of Harvard and has taught at Northwestern University and the University of Minnesota. More recently he was examiner of valuation for the interstate commerce commission.

"The Banking Question"

"The Banking Question," which is the second of the Open Forum Discussion series, will be presented in Gerrard hall Thursday night at 8:30 instead of 8:00 in order to enable students and faculty members to attend the session of the religion seminar at 7:30 at the Carolina Inn. Season tickets may still be obtained from members of the Forum committee. Single admission will be twenty-five cents.

BRADSHAW URGES SCHOOL ECONOMY IN THRIFT MOVE

Dean Recommends Savings Accounts for Education in Assembly Talk Yesterday.

Dean Bradshaw yesterday addressed the freshmen and sophomores on National Thrift week. Before he began his talk he ascertained that in the assembly hall yesterday only one-half of those who formerly had savings accounts retained them now. He then told of the National Thrift committee's ten tested rules for a happy and successful life. They are as follows: work and earn, Study and learn, make and use a budget, have a bank account, carry life insurance, own your own home, make a will, invest in safe securities, pay your bills promptly, and share with others.

The week of January 17 to 23 inclusive has been designated as National Thrift week. This week has been set aside for special emphasis on diligence, prudence, foresight, comfort, responsibility, sympathy, and duty. More than forty of the greatest organizations in this country are participating in the observance of National Thrift week.

Thrift Education

Thrift week, according to Dean Bradshaw, was discussed in assembly because it has a specially important bearing on the North Carolina situation. There is a movement on foot before the present state legislature to pass a bill to provide for a system of thrift education in North Carolina. An illustration of the need of such a system in this state is shown by a statement several years ago made by

PRESS INSTITUTE WILL BEGIN MEET HERE TOMORROW

James H. Furay Will Replace Karl Bickel as Speaker, Due To Latter's Illness.

With only one last minute change in the program, the stage was set today for the opening session here tomorrow of the ninth annual Newspaper Institute, which will bring together newspapermen from all sections of the state.

Karl Bickel, general manager of the United Press, who was slated for an address Thursday morning, is ill with influenza and is confined at home under his doctor's orders. He is sending in his place James H. Furay, vice-president of the United Press and general manager of foreign services.

Furay Well Qualified

The Institute committee feels extremely fortunate in being able to secure such a fine pinch-hitter for Bickel. Furay began his newspaper career with the Omaha Daily News in 1899 following graduation from Creighton University. Since then he has held responsible positions with the St. Paul Daily News, Chicago America, Indianapolis Star, and Cleveland Press, of which he was managing editor when he resigned in 1908 to go with the United Press.

With the United Press he has served successively as manager of the central division, Rocky Mountain division, and Pacific Coast division.
