TILLET PRAISED FOR UNCOVERING BUDGET MISTAKE

Charlotte Lawyer Presents Concise Case for University to Advisory Committee.

University officials yesterday heaped praise on Charles W. Tillett, Jr., Charlotte lawyer for the effective manner in which he, as member of the trustees' committee, presented the case of the University in showing error in the advisory budget commission's report on the per capita cost of University students to the state before the joint appropriations committee of the General Assembly in Raleigh Wednesday afternoon.

No information could be obtained last night on the action of the appropriations committee yesterday regarding the University.

Tillett appeared before the committee Wednesday as a member of the committee created by the board of trustees and appointed by Governor Ehringhaus to investigate matters pertaining to consolidation. He appeared, it was said here yesterday, before the committee as much a detached businessman interested in the welfare of the state as a trustee.

Recommendations Wrong

Tillett, in presenting the University's case, made the point that the budget recommendations are thirty-three per cent wrong, because of a mistaken estimate of students in the University. The basis of the report recommending appropriations, he said, was on an estimate of

COMIC OPERA TO BE OFFERED HERE BY BOSTON GROUP

"Robinhood" to Be Presented by Boston Light Opera Company Here March 2.

"Robinhood," immortal comic opera, will be presented Thursday, March 2, in Memorial hall as the sixth in the series of entertainments sponsored throughout the year by the Student Entertainment Committee. The Boston Light Opera Company will stage the program.

The libretto for this famous three-act comedy was written by Reginald De Koven and the music by Harry B. Smith. It was first performed in Chicago, June 9, 1890, by a company of Bostonians who subsequently produced the opera more than four thousands times.

Twelfth Century Scene

The scene is laid in the twelfth century. At the beginning of the first act a merry-making is in progress in Nottingham, England. The three outlaws, Little John, Will Scarlet, and Friar Tuck, enter and sing of the free life in Sherwood Forest where they live. Then Robinhood enters, declaring he is the rightful earl of Huntington and demanding that the Sheriff so proclaim him. But the Sheriff protests that the youth was disinherited by his father, who before Robinhood's birth was secretly married to a peasant girl who died when her child was an infant. The child is Sir Guy of Gisburne, rightful heir to the earldom and the

Investigations Fail To Reveal Source Of Statement In 'Time'

New York Periodical Stated That Faculty Had Elected Chase President of the University and That There Was a "Damykanke Club" on Campus.

Interviews with faculty members and Chapel Hill news correspondents have failed to disclose the source of the statement which appeared in Time, February 6, to the effect that in 1919 Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase was elected president of the University by a faculty vote.

Equally vigorous was their denial of the magazine's claim that there existed on this campus a faculty organization known as the "Damykanke Club" to which Dr. Chase belonged. Time's reference to such a group was branded as the figment of some energetic journalist's wild imagination.

Faculty Deny Claims

These charges were refuted by eleven members of the University faculty in an open letter to the magazine on February 20. The group, which styled itself "The Old Soldiers Home," is a faculty bachelors' eating club located at Mrs. Patterson's. It has been variously known as "The Bachelor's Club" and "The Thirteen Club."

The letter ridiculed the idea of a "Damykanke Club" by stating, "There was not at the time of the election of President Chase, nor has there been since, any division of the faculty along sectional lines. There has never been an organized group of the faculty known as the 'Damykankees.'" Time is here adding another legend to the already voluminous apocrypha of Chapel Hill.

Faculty members who signed the missive included George W. McKie, A. McLaren White, E. W. McChesney, T. P. Noe, Jr., John E. Carroll, Jr., Robert M. Wallace, J. Grover Beard, W. S. Jenkins, John D. Watson, C. B. Robson, and C. H. Pegg.

Described Chase Election

As for the faculty election of Dr. Chase, the protesters of the journalistic myth patiently described the University method of selecting its presidents and proceeded to outline the dramatic truth regarding Dr. Chase's rise to the presidency.

"The Committee of the Trustees designated to recommend candidates for the presidency had made its reports to the trustees. Several nominations had been made, supported by various people, and speeches favoring this man or that were in progress when one of the oldest members of the board took the floor.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "I am a Southerner, a Confederate veteran and a Democrat. I have voted for the last time for any man solely because he is a Southerner, a Confederate veteran, or a Democrat. My vote on this question goes to the man whom I believe to be best qualified for the presidency of the University. That man is Professor Chase." That short speech settled the question and the election was practically unanimous.

Time's Side of Story

Beside this version, the veracity of which is virtually incontestable, the Time story seems like a tale of the Arabian Nights. In reference to Dr. Chase's call to the presidency of New York University, the magazine commented on his Chapel Hill election in the following engaging but evidently erroneous fashion:

"The Hill's thirty Northern professors, meeting occasionally for talk and drink, called themselves the 'Damykanke Club.' President Chase was a member. He was also, by 1919, the faculty's chairman, the college's acting dean, the University's acting president. In that year, the story goes, the trustees, tired of trying to agree on a new president turned the matter over to the faculty for a vote. Chief candidates were a Southerner and a Northerner. The 'Damykanke Club' tactfully cast 30 votes for the Southerner. The other 170 professors voted for Harry Woodburn Chase."

ROZZELL SPEAKS AT ANNIVERSARY OF ROTARY CLUB

Former Pastor of Methodist Church Urges International Spirit Of Understanding.

"In the face of the steadily increasing interdependency of one nation upon another, the reactionary spirit of self-sufficiency and seclusion that is abroad in the land today must give way to an international spirit of understanding and brotherhood if our civilization is to survive," the Reverend Excell Rozzell, pastor of the Methodist church in Lenoir and formerly pastor of the University Methodist church here, asserted in an address here Wednesday at the anniversary banquet of the Chapel Hill Rotary club.

Celebrating the twenty-sixth anniversary of Rotary, the Chapel Hill club made the event a special occasion, invited all former members to join with the present membership for this session, and asked "Parson" Rozzell, a very popular preacher during his ministry here, to come back "home" and bring a special message.

"The days of seclusion have passed forever," the minister asserted. "We are at the beginning of another epoch that is going to amaze the world. It is going to be an age of service and brotherhood, and in this new era Rotary is going to play a prominent part, for this spirit of international fellowship is the greatest thing in Rotary."

MURCHISON TALKS TO STATE WOMEN

Commerce Professor Outlines Plans for Recovery to Convention of Women Voters.

Three definite proposed government measures for speeding the recovery of business, including a mild form of government inflation, were outlined by Dr. C. T. Murchison of the school of commerce before the state convention of the National League of Women Voters. Dr. Murchison's speech on the subject, "Government and Business Recovery," was delivered at the luncheon meeting of the convention of the League Wednesday afternoon in Raleigh.

The speaker stated that it is necessary for our government to "cooperate with other nations in breaking down barriers of trade" such as war debts and tariff walls. He stressed the fact that the South especially depends for recovery on the development of its export trade, citing cotton as an example. "Bringing about a program of reduction in the number of working hours which constitute a standard day's work" was advocated as the next measure of relief.

The method of inflation proposed by Dr. Murchison is "a policy of government overdrafts on Federal Reserve Banks." This program would not include a policy of free silver or the issuance of greenbacks the speaker pointed out.

Professor Koch To Address Club in Henderson Tonight

Professor F. H. Koch will speak on "The Woman in Shakespeare" at a meeting of the Henderson Woman's Club tonight. Koch's talk, which is one of a series sponsored by the club, will be illustrated.

Fukusato Freed From Jail Through Authorization Of Secretary Of Labor Doak

Lectures Tonight

Hubert C. Herring, appearing here tonight on the Open Forum Discussion program, "America in an Interdependent World," is chairman of the Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America and one of the foremost men in the field of Central and South American politics.

FORUM SPEAKERS WILL LECTURE ON INTERDEPENDENCE

Hubert Herring and Dr. Rippey To Discuss "America in an Interdependent World."

Coincident with the Weil lectures concluded here last night on a topic concerning international affairs in some degree, the Open Forum discussion series program brings Hubert C. Herring and Dr. Fred Rippey to Gerrard hall tonight, speaking on "America in an Interdependent World." The program is scheduled for 8:00 o'clock, with Don Shoemaker presiding. A faculty member to lead the discussion following the lectures has been obtained.

Dr. Rippey is one of the three best known authorities on Latin American culture in the United States, and is said to have no peer in the south. A graduate of Southwestern University and with degrees from Vanderbilt and California, Rippey's whole career has been absorbed in the study of cultural and social relations with the South American republics.

Prolific Writer

As associate editor of the Hispanic American Historical Review and editor of the Duke University press, his contributions to the wealth of literature on Latin America as to learned journals of history and political science have been numerous. He is the editor of The United States and Mexico, Latin America in World Politics, Historical Background of the American Policy of Isolation, etc.

In 1928 he was Albert Shaw Lecturer on American Diplomacy at Johns Hopkins University. The following year Dr. Rippey gained nation wide recognition in his lecture series at the Instituto Inter-americano at the National University of Mexico. Rippey has been professor of history at Duke University since 1926 and is a member of the American Academy of Social and Political Science.

PRESIDENT GRAHAM GIVEN CUSTODY OVER JAPANESE

Fukusato Subject to Deportation Proceedings by Federal Government.

Raleigh, Feb. 23—(Special) Jisaku Fukusato, Japanese student held here by immigration authorities was released from the Wake county jail into the custody of Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, at 11:30 o'clock tonight by Sheriff Turner under the authority of W. M. Doak, secretary of the department of labor.

By Vermont C. Royster

Huddled for the past week in a narrow, musty cell 8 by 12 within the confines of the Wake county jail, Jisaku Fukusato, gentleman and scholar, student of literature and economics in the University and graduate with distinction from Waseda University in Tokyo, learned of orders for his release into the custody of President Graham last night.

President Graham, learning of the Japanese's predicament yesterday afternoon following contact with Fukusato by the DAILY TAR HEEL, immediately began moves towards obtaining his freedom. Frantic communications with Senator Bailey and

BEARD AVERS AGE OF EXPANSION HAS COME TO A CLOSE

Weil Lecturer Concludes Lecture Series on American Citizenship Here Last Night.

Delivering the last of the annual series of lectures on American citizenship here last night in Gerrard hall, Dr. Charles Austin Beard, distinguished author and historian, asserted that the "age of Jeffersonian expansion has closed—that there is no more free and unoccupied land to be seized or bought for occupation by American people."

Explaining that his views were his personal opinions based on his studies and travels, Dr. Beard declared that "the addition of other territories occupied by alien races that cannot be assimilated to American citizenship is a betrayal of American nationality, however large the profits reaped by investors and manufacturers from such operations.

"Congress has declared a restriction of immigration based on nationality; let it extend the principle, and apply it to peoples that cannot co-operate in the maintenance and development of American society," he urged.

Freedom for Philippines

"This means," added Dr. Beard, "absolute independence for the Philippines and also for Porto Rico." He pointed out that thousands of Porto Ricans have been pouring into the United States as American citizens only to find themselves unemployed amid the miseries of
