

'Y' NOMINATIONS POSTPONED UNTIL MEETING TONIGHT

Disagreement on Interpretation
Of Constitution Causes Adjourning of Session.

Disagreement in constitutional interpretation by the nominating committee and the organization membership of the University Y. M. C. A. caused a postponement last night of the nominations for next year. A similar meeting to approve the committee's list of candidates and to hear nominations from the floor for the various officers will take place tonight at 7:15 o'clock in Gerrard hall. Important business, however, was transacted last night when the assembled Y. M. C. A. members voted almost unanimously for the adoption of an entirely new constitution which was drafted by a special committee and presented at the session. Many integral and minor changes were effected in the new articles.

Members Disagree

The assembly voted for the postponement of the nominations when the nominating committee omitted the office of vice-president the members stating that the office was understood to be filled by the candidate for president who received the second highest number of votes cast in the presidential election. The gathered membership, however, interpreted the constitution differently, expressing that distinct nominations and balloting should be held for the office of vice-president. A completely new set of candidates by the committee was recommended for tonight's meeting.

Changes in the constitution were mostly grammatical, but

Medford Reports

More Than 340 Bad Checks Involve
$3,276.25 in Winter Quarter.

The records of William Medford, chairman of the bad check committee, show that for the winter quarter up to March 11 there were 340 bad checks written and involving a total amount of $3,276.25. Medford still has on hand several bad checks issued during the bank holiday, and these will be reported on the report for the spring quarter.

There have been a lot of checks written during the banking holiday returned, but the students are taking them up as fast as possible, and so far there has been no evidence of an attempt to defraud. Medford on the behalf of the committee expresses pleasure at the attitude of cooperation that has been taken by the students.

MANY LIBRARIANS WILL MEET HERE FOR CONFERENCE

President Graham Calls Conference
For April 7-8; Nearly a Hun-

The conference will consider the library in its relation to the other agencies of the community and in its governmental aspects, with a view to discovering how it supplements the activities of the other agencies. Spirit Of University Has Been Emblemized By Different Seals

Latin Abbreviations Translated Reveal Simple Wording Encircling Symbol on Seal.

Latin not being in daily use, much less Latin abbreviations, it is doubtful that many students have mastered the Roman short-hand encircling the University seal. Considerable conjecture as to the meaning of the symbols has been ventured, but when transcribed it is a most obvious group of words. The abbreviations stand for "Sigillum Universitatis Carolinae Septentionalis," which, literally translated, means merely "Seal of the University of North Carolina."

Even more patent is the meaning of the "Lux, Libertas" which runs across the center of the present seal. As most students have already ascertained, these words, "Light and Liberty" have long symbolized the University's attitude and approach to education.

The seal now in use is not the original one of the University. The first seal, which was selected by three men in July, 1791, at a meeting of the Board of Trustees. "They chose," says Kemp Plummer Battle in his history of the college, "the face of Apollo, the God of Eloquence, and his emblem, the rising sun, as expressive of the dawn of higher education in our State." When the University was closed following the Civil War, this seal, along with books belonging to the office of the treasurer, was deposited with State Superintendent of Schools McIver. Because of legal technicalities, McIver had to allow suit to be brought against him

University Seals

The radiant head depicted on the University seal of the early '90's (above) is that of Apollo, god of Wisdom and of Light. It can hardly be said to be a masterful portrait of the god.

It was not long before the seal shown below was adopted, this being used in 1894-96. This was followed by the University seal which is now used, designed by Dr. Francis Kingsley Ball, then Professor of Greek in the faculty.

so that the University could regain the articles.

In the Alumni Review of January, 1933, two former University seals, with brief commentary notes, are pictured. Apparently, the first seal is not included here, as there seems to be no rising sun depicted. It would appear, then, that the University of North Carolina has had at least four different emblems, viz., the first one described above by Battle, the two pictured, and the one now in use.

Cab Calloway Refuses To Play When Gate Is Crashed By Mob

Harlem Leader of Red-Hot Rhythm Band Seeks Safety in Loft of Warehouse When Angry and Drunken Crowd of Durham
Negroes Attempt to Force Him to Continue.

A large amount of Carolina cash went for naught early yesterday morning when the King of Hi-de-hi-de-ho, Cab Calloway, failed to hold sway at Roycroft's warehouse in Durham as scheduled.

Calloway and his Cotton Club orchestra had been booked to furnish the rhythm for a negro dance starting at 12:01 o'clock Monday morning. A special section had been reserved for white people wishing to hear the latest interpretations of the Harlem "torch" songs and to see the newest versions of the Charleston and the Black Bottom.

The special section was rapidly filling, mostly with Carolina and Duke students and their "dates," when several hundred negroes rushed the southeast gate, overturned the ticket booth, and rushed madly to the stage where the Harlem king of Jazz was just warming up.

Gate Crashed

Some 2,000 other negroes and hundreds of whites waiting outside to purchase tickets thronged through gateways despite the efforts of ten or more policemen and attendants armed with sticks to stop the mad rush.

As the mob neared the stage, Calloway and members of his orchestra stopped playing and began packing up their instru-

Deficit Threatens

Drive Will Commence to Finance Open Forum Lecture Series.

With a large deficit looming in the financing of the 1933 Open Forum lecture series, members of the executive committee and a large number of students and faculty members interested in the series are making efforts this week to raise necessary obligations of the Forum for speakers' fees, advertising, and incidental expenses.

Members of the committee declared yesterday that efforts would be made to solicit back fees and collect donations previously promised by a large group who underwrote the program.

Students and faculty members desiring to aid in the drive may send cheques to Don Seawell, 329 Tenney Circle.

GEOLOGISTS WILL STUDY CAROLINA COASTAL PLAINS

Members of Department to Investigate Symmetrical Depressions on Coast for Meteoric Origin.

During the spring holidays, several members of the geology department, Dr. W. F. Prouty, Dr. G. R. MacCarthy, J. A. Alexander, and an assistant, plan to investigate a number of symmetrical depressions or "bays" in the coastal plains of North and South Carolina. This investigation, which was scheduled for the original date of the spring holidays, is being made possible through the generosity of the Rockefeller Fund for Research in Pure Science, and will be extended as far from the starting point at Myrtle Beach as vacation time permits.

The purpose of the investigation is to ascertain, if possible, the origin of the depressions. For this purpose the magnetometer will be chiefly employed as it is capable of showing the presence of meteoric bodies, provided they have not undergone complete chemical disintegration. Regional geological methods will also be used in addition to the physical methods. It is hoped that some of these depressions will yield sufficient information for the party to come to definite conclusions as to their origin. If evidence is hard to obtain near the coast, it is possible that depressions further inland may give better results.

Three Measures To Be Discussed By Di

The Di senate will discuss the following bills at the weekly meeting in New West at 7:00 o'clock tonight:

Resolved: That the Di Senate go on record as favoring that the state of North Carolina manufacture fertilizer and sell it to the farmers at cost.

Resolved: That all public utilities be owned and controlled by the federal government.

Resolved: That the best and most effective method which Congress could adopt to remove the depression and stimulate business is to inflate the currency.

Carr to Have Smoker

The series of dormitory smokers begun last quarter will be resumed this week, the first building of the list for this quarter being Carr building.

ASSOCIATION HAS VARIED BUSINESS SLATE SCHEDULED

Nominations for Offices Will Probably Be Major Part Of Group Affairs.

A heavy and varied slate of business will be taken up by members of the Woman's Association of the University when that group gathers for the spring quarter meeting in Graham Memorial at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Probably the chief item of business to be considered will be nominations for officers of the association during the coming year. The nominating committee will make its report while other nominations will be made from the floor.

Candidates for president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the association and for house-president of Spencer hall and president of the Woman's Athletic council will be nominated at this time. Elections will take place April 5.

Dance to Be Considered

The quarter's co-ed dance will also be considered at the meeting and arrangements made for it.

The alumnae committee, appointed to investigate the possibility of setting up an active alumnae association for women graduates of the University, will report this afternoon and its findings will be considered.

Another item expected to create interest at the meeting is the report of the dramatics committee. At the last meeting the committee was appointed to make tentative plans for a varsity show to be sponsored by the Woman's group in interest of a loan fund for undergraduate women. Plans for such an enterprise will be considered this afternoon.

ANNUAL WESTERN TOUR BY PLAYERS IS WELL RECEIVED

Walter Spearman, Charlotte
"News" Critic, Favorably Reports Playmaker Offering.

Returning from their annual spring tour through Elon, Charlotte, Ellerbe, and Campbell's College, the Playmakers report thoroughly satisfactory receptions from a total audience of 2,000 drama patrons.

Playing at the Queens-Chicora College in Charlotte Thursday night, they were praised by Walter Spearman in the Charlotte News for "a program of three one-act plays which in variety, literary quality, and acting maintained a high dramatic level."

Fitz-Simons Honored

Foster Fitz-Simons, playing in his own Four On A Heath and in Davy Crockett, was given the honors of the evening by Spearman. "Sharing honors with him were Marion Tatum as Mary Crockett, whose emotional restraint was so perfectly handled that it held the audience tense; Betty Barnett as old Martha and Robert Proctor as Uncle Dick, whose characterizations of aged mountaineers were authentic and thoroughly convincing; and Eugenia Rawls as Kate, the charming and coquettish niece of the tavern-keeper."
