President Frank Graham Opens Congress Of Student Federation

Yesterday Marked Fourth Annual Meeting of North Carolina Campus Leaders.

OVER FIFTY DELEGATES Albert Coates Presents Constructive Institute of Government at Plenary Session.

President Frank Porter Graham opened the fourth annual congress of the North Carolina Federation of Students yesterday with a welcoming speech following the luncheon at 1:00 o'clock.

Dr. Graham's talk was an interesting short summary of the growth of student government at Carolina. In his estimation student government has not only done much to advance education but will continue to have powerful influence on national affairs. He outlined four steps from which evolved the present student government system at Carolina. First, he said, was the dictatorial all-powerful faculty rule, which besides taking too much of the faculty's time, was objected to by the students.

Graham Traces Movement
Student movements led by the powerful literary societies of the late nineteenth century was the next step in the emancipation of students. Soon, however the classes took this power from the literary societies and there evolved from the government by the four classes the

GOERCH RELATES EXPERIENCES TO STUDENT GROUP

Newspaper Editor and Radio Columnist Amuses Delegates To Student Congress.

Mr. Carl Goerch, veteran newsman and radio columnist, speaking at the dinner which closed the first day's activities of the Fourth Congress of the N. C. F. S., amused the entire assemblage by a constant and interesting series of anecdotes which he had experienced during his days as a newspaper man.

Mr. Goerch broadcasts from Raleigh and finishing his broadcast last night at 6:30, immediately started for Chapel Hill to keep his engagement at 7:00 o'clock in the banquet room of Graham Memorial.

Launching immediately into some of his amusing experience, Goerch inserted between his stories, many interesting sidelights on the legislature in Raleigh.

Saying that Representative Tam Bowie was the "biggest scrapper I have ever seen in my life," he told of the time when Bowie was a freshman at Carolina. Hazing was then prevalent on the campus and when Bowie refused to admit a group of hazing sophomores into his room, they broke the door down. Seated in a chair holding a cocked pistol was Tam Bowie. After having a few shots fired at them the sophomores retired rather hastily and did not molest Bowie again; even when he paraded with a big sign stating that he would be at home any night if the sophomores wished to drop around to see him.

COMMERCE FRAT INITIATES THREE

O'Neil, Brown, Singer Taken by Beta Gamma Sigma; O'Neil Is Chosen President.

Three members of the junior class were initiated last night into North Carolina Alpha chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, national honorary commerce fraternity. They were: John O'Neil, Melvin J. Brown, and Bernard E. Singer.

By having the highest scholastic standing among members of the group, O'Neil automatically becomes president for next year.

The 36th chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, Alpha of North Carolina was installed at the University February 20 of this year, at which time seventeen were taken into the group. Eight were members of the faculty, and nine were students.

The charter for the University chapter was granted following a petition by a small group of faculty members and students. The national organization has units in all but ten of the schools belonging to the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The first chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma was founded in May, 1907, at the University of Wisconsin, but national growth of the organization did not get well under way until 1913 when the Alpha of Illinois was installed.

WORKS GIVEN TO LOCAL LIBRARY

Legislature Makes Contribution Of Books Printed by State For Extension Library.

The Legislature has voted to furnish the University of North Carolina library with 25 copies of every publication issued by the state government.

These documents are to be used for exchange purposes with libraries and governmental agencies throughout the country, and especially of the other southern states. The University library has been designated by the Social Science Research Council and the American Library Association as the official center for the entire southeast for federal, state, and municipal documents. Its collection of federal and North Carolina government publications is extensive, and a large number of southern state documents has been built up in recent years.

The bill passed by the legislature will enable the library to greatly extend this work, adding the public documents of

GRUMMAN HEADS GROUP TO ASSIST STATE TEACHERS

Plan Advanced to Use Unemployed Teachers in War on Illiteracy in North Carolina.

Attending a meeting of the state commission on adult illiteracy in Raleigh Thursday, Russell M. Grumman of the extension division, secretary of the commission, was appointed chairman of a committee for the relief of unemployed teachers.

Through efforts of the commission, Grumman announces, arrangements have been completed with Dr. Fred Morrison, of the Governor's relief office, whereby federal relief funds will be used to enable unemployed teachers of the state to teach night schools for adult illiterates.

Forty-five such schools are being conducted and have reported an enrollment to date of 886 adult pupils. This number does not include some 2,020 night school pupils enrolled in schools which are promoted on a voluntary basis by woman's clubs and other civic organizations.

Grumman was appointed chairman of a committee to make plans to conduct institutes for teachers and other night school workers at summer schools of the state this summer. Directors of eight summer schools have already promised cooperation in conducting such institutes.

Man Of Steele Draws Long Bow In Heap Wicked Tecumseh Style

University Brave Fashions Implements of Ancient Warfare for Dear Shooters of Spencer and Other Reservations, and Rings Bull's Eye at Each Left-Handed Squint.

A heap big brave is practicing his esoteric art right here on the campus. Minus war paint, feathers, and blanket, Alfred Ellington, University Junior from Madison, is slowly Indianizing Steele dorm where early and late he devotes himself to the extraordinary hobby of making bows and arrows.

No squaw-man is Ellington. He is an excellent shot, possessed of numerous medals won in archery tournaments. Down back of the unwarlike Spencer hall there is a target field on which he may be seen most any fine afternoon letting fly his darts and generally hitting the bull's-eye.

Just Like That!

Brave Ellington happened to become interested in archery in a most unromantic fashion—he read about the science—where he doesn't remember—and decided that the making of bows and arrows was his avocation. From that time on, everything connected with the string and reed occupation has become his major spare-time diversion.

In the summer he teaches archery to the pale-face squaws at camp near Asheville. All year long he fills many orders in his tepee for bows and arrows for other devotees of the sport.

It is probably not a matter of general information that the arrows are much harder to make than the bows. In an arrow, the important thing is flexibility. The arrow has a certain curve to iron out before it can travel in direct flight to the target, owing to the fact that it is fired around the bow, and must have enough flexibil-

ORGANISTS WILL GATHER MONDAY

Lawrence Apgar of Duke University to Play on Program; Group Meets in Hill Hall.

The North Carolina chapter of the American guild of organists will convene here Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall. Professor Nelson O. Kennedy, head of the department of organ at the University, will preside as dean of the chapter.

Organists from all over the state are expected to attend the meeting, which will feature Lawrence Clarke Apgar in recital at 8:30 o'clock that evening. A graduate of Yale University and the Curtis Institute of Music, Apgar is carillonneur and organist at Duke University.

Apgar has chosen for this recital a program of great breadth in the field of organ literature, the playing of which will well utilize and portray the flexibility and magnitude of the organ in Hill Music hall. The invitation extended Apgar by the guild to play the annual concert is in the form of a welcome to this state. He assumed duties at the Durham school in September, 1932.

The organ in Hill hall is one of the finest in the south and has been played upon by leading organists not only in the state but in the nation. The organ was dedicated in November, 1930.

SPANN TO SHOW WAR PLAY AGAIN

German Production Uses Three Languages in Portraying Adventures of War Ace.

The German department of the University has announced that it will give another presentation of Der Flieger, the famous German war play, which had its American premiere at the Playmakers theatre last month. The new performance will take place one night only, Monday, May 15 at 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre.

The play is unusual in that three languages, German, English and French, are used. The fact that one does not understand German offers no obstacle whatever in understanding the action of the play. Much English will be spoken throughout the production, and the entire play is explained on the program in English.

Spann Directs

Dr. Meno Spann of the German department is directing the play and has adapted it to the Playmaker stage. Dr. Spann also plays the leading role. He
