FEINSTEIN URGES SETTLEMENT OF YEARBOOK FEES

Seventy-Seven Students Owe Over $350 to Yackety Yack For Individual Space.

Marcus Feinstein, business manager of the "Yackety Yack," urges that all students and organizations in arrears in year book dues settle their obligations by Thursday of next week to preclude possible confusion when the books are distributed next week-end.

When the accounts were checked, it was discovered that 77 students owed the "Yackety Yack" for space in the publication, the total amount being $350.25.

Since they were registered in professional schools, 45 of these students did not pay for individual space, although space was given them in the book. Of this number, 18 are students of pharmacy, 20 of law, and seven of medicine. Each owes the publication $5.25.

Juniors Owe Money

The other students owing the "Yackety Yack" for space are all members of the junior class. These students paid dues to the sophomore class treasury, and each owes the year book $3.25.

The student council recommended to the business manager that all books be held back from those students who have failed to meet their obligations until those behind in payments had paid or had signed a three months' personal note. It was decided, however, that books would be given only after the students and organizations who owed money to the "Yackety Yack" had settled their obligations.

N. C. SYMPHONY TO PLAY IN RALEIGH

Orchestra to Give First Capital City Concert Monday Under Junior League Auspices.

The North Carolina Symphony orchestra, composed of 50 professional musicians from all sections of this state with Lamar Stringfield as musical director, will offer a concert in the Raleigh Memorial auditorium Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Junior League.

The Monday evening program marks the first appearance of this musical organization in Raleigh. It has appeared previously in concerts in Durham and Chapel Hill, and has been highly commended.

The North Carolina Symphony society, being the first organization of its kind in the United States, and the orchestra have received considerable attention from music enthusiasts in other states. Similar movements, modelling themselves upon it, have arisen in Virginia, Iowa, Louisiana, and Florida.

Colonel Joseph Hyde Pratt is president of the organization and Lamar Stringfield is musical director. The public response to its appearance in Raleigh will greatly influence formation of the organization's future plans. The Symphony society believes there is sufficient musical interest among citizens of this state to insure the con-

Convicts Crossed Present Site Of Stadium In Thrilling Escape

Two Members of Chain Gang Engaged in Construction of Railroad Trestle Here in 1920 Fled From Authorities; Drew Gun Fire But Lost Guards in Dense Woods.

A shot rang out upon the still afternoon air. The silence was broken by the excited shouts of seventy men. Far to the right, two fleeting figures in grey were to be seen streaking for the woods.

The scene was what is at present the trestle back of the buildings department structure. The time was the summer of 1920. The men were two of the convicts from the state prison in Raleigh, who were engaged in railroad construction. In the short hour before quitting time, just before 5:00 o'clock, they had worked their way over to the right of the large group, and when a short distance away, had suddenly taken to their heels.

Burch Involved

P. L. Burch, who is now heading the buildings department, had been connected with the supervision of the prisoners. It was he who told this story. It was he, it seems, who gave the first alarm, and who was largely instrumental in starting the formation of the large posse that followed the men.

It was not more than ten minutes before the prisoners were herded into their camp, a guard set over them, and the rest of the men set out on the hunt for the two who had escaped. For some distance the trail led clearly in a straight line toward the woods past Venable hall, through the ground that is now occupied by the library, over the old dirt road that is now the Raleigh highway, and finally into the underbrush on the other side of the road.

Make for Kenan Site

Here the trail was lost, and it took some minutes before one of the searching party luckily stumbled on a torn patch of a convict cap. From there, the track was again plainly to be seen for some distance. At the base of the huge poplar that used to stand where the North gate of Kenan stadium now is the prisoners had evidently halted for a hurried parley, but from there, they had hurried off again, perhaps warned by the crackling of branches, and the crunch of dry leaves, of the approach of their pursuers. Quickly the posse followed the

GROUP WORKS ON YEAR'S PROGRAM

Hobbs Announces Tentative Features for Student Entertainment Committee Bills.

Tentative features for next year's Student Entertainment committee program were announced yesterday by A. W. Hobbs, dean of the school of liberal arts, who is retiring head of the program committee of the group.

It is very likely that Kruetzberg and Page, dancers, will be brought to the University by the committee next year. Other features which the group is considering booking for presentations here are: the Viennese Boys' choir; Maier and Patterson, pianists; Mischa Julin, who appears with a theremin electro cello; the Boston sinfonietta, 17-piece orchestra; Dorothy Sands; V. L. Granville; and Stephen Leacock.

Granville appeared in "Dramatic Interludes" at the University last December 7 in the second presentation on the year's program.

The complete personnel of the committee for next year has not been announced, as several representatives are yet to be chosen. Members of the group who have been selected thus far are as follows: Dr. J. P. Harland, chairman; Walter Groover and K. W. Young of the commerce school; Harry Lee Knox of the rising senior class of the liberal arts school; Benton Bray and W. T. Davis of the school of education; and Professors Frederick H. Koch and Harold S. Dyer.

Nine in Infirmary

The following were confined in the infirmary yesterday: J. R. McIner, H. A. Brooks, E. B. Kahn, W. T. Heady, W. G. Propst, James S. Love, W. T. Davis, J. L. Crutchfield, Phillip Sasser.

SENIORS ELIGIBLE TO MEMBERSHIP IN ALUMNI GROUP

Fourth-Year Students May Become Junior Members of Organization for $1.

Members of the present senior class are eligible to junior membership in the Alumni association for a fee of one dollar, it was announced yesterday.

The regular fee for membership in the association is three dollars, but junior membership, carrying with it all the privileges of full membership, including a subscription to the "Alumni Review," may be obtained under the plan.

Seniors wishing to become members of the organization are urged to get in touch with members of the permanent executive committee of the class of 1933 sometime during this week or next to arrange to join the association.

Committee Members

Members of the committee are as follows: Alec Webb, Robert Hubbard, Ed Brenner, Perry Collins, Percy Idol, Vass Shepherd, Lee Greer, Sara Walser, Mary Frances Parker, Thomas R. Taylor, Jr., Sparks Griffin, Billy McKee, W. W. Johnson, Robert Novins, and Allan McLean.

Seniors may also get further information concerning the details of the plan from the following: Charlie Rose, Bobby Mason, and Arlindo Cate.

DI SELECTS MEN FOR LAST DEBATE

The Di senate last night selected Bill Eddleman and Elmer Oettinger as its representatives in the annual Bingham commencement debate with the Phi assembly. These men have been doing outstanding work for the Di senate all year. The Phi assembly has yet to select its men.

The subject for the debate is Resolved: That the states of the world should intervene in the conflict between China and Japan in the interests of the world.

Four To Compete For Walker Award Today

The two-part competitive examination consisting of accounting and business law for the Walker Accounting award is scheduled to begin this morning at 9:00 o'clock in the accounting laboratory in Bingham hall and will continue throughout the day. The student making the highest grade on this examination receives a cash prize of $35.00 and a medal. There are four students competing for the award this year: Jack Thompson, A. T. Oliverio, J. A. Stallings, and M. F. Stone.

This award was established in the commerce school last year by Carbis A. Walker.

Odum Speaks at Duke

Dr. Howard W. Odum was a speaker last night at Duke University at the annual dinner meeting of the Pi Gamma Mu honorary fraternity for the social sciences.

CABINETS TO HAVE OUTDOOR MEETING

Last Meeting of Y Groups for Year Will Take Place in Forest Theatre Tomorrow.

The annual Hillside meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinets will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Forest theatre. This will be the last meeting of the cabinets for the year, and all members of the "Y," all cabinet members, and all cabinet officers are to attend.

The retiring officers will give their annual report and the installation of the new officers will be conducted. The outgoing officers are: Jesse Parker, Mark Lynch, Van Webb, Jimmy Craighill, Claud Freeman, Ed Martin, Simmons Patterson, Henry Emerson, Bill McKee, Jim Steere, Ike Minor, and R. M. McMillan. The new officers are Jesse Grier, B. S. Smith, Russell Mickle, Billy Yandell, John Acee, Bill Minor, J. D. Winslow, and Jack Pool. Dean F. F. Bradshaw will address the group.

Each year the Hillside meeting is conducted for the purpose of rounding out the program for the old year and preparing plans for the next year.

In case of rain the meeting will be conducted in the Di senate hall.

Late Farmer of Orange County Pronounced Entirely Normal By Family Doctor.

It is not often that a man goes to the extent of digging his own grave in order to conform to his convictions about the ephemeral qualities of life, as Madison Womble, late of Orange county, did.

Eternity is an enigma, mysterious and undefinable—prepare for it! On this bugle call from the Great Beyond, Womble guided the course of his life. If man prepared for life in this world, Womble felt, he ought also to prepare for the time when he would join the Silent Majority.

Prepares for the Worst

"Yes," this is Madison Womble, upright citizen and industrious farmer of Orange county, speaking no later than April 1 of this year; "we are never sure of the future. That is why I have made ready."

And nothing loath, he would lead the visitor to a grave plot in the Sparrow burying ground, a few miles outside of Chapel Hill, and point to his own preparations. The sides of the grave had been cemented up, a concrete slab covered the vault-like depression, and there was a headstone bearing the prophetic date "1933" which cast its shadow over all. He had built the whole thing himself.

With evident pride Womble would point to the inscription. He had worked a long time in getting the correct rhyming scheme, and he felt that here was his mungum opus, his masterpiece.

The inscription reads: "As you are now, so once was I." (Continued on last page)

NEW SPIRIT CLUB SELECTS OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Sophomores to Compose Membership to Foster Loyalty And Entertain Visitors.

The first steps toward the organization of the University club took place Thursday night at a meeting of representatives of the various campus organizations. This club has been organized in order to foster a spirit of loyalty to the University, and to provide a group to act as official hosts to the visitors to the University.

At the first meeting the election of officers took place and all were elected unanimously. Agnew Bahnsen was elected president, Jack Pool, secretary, and Ralph Gardner, treasurer. An advisory committee of five was also appointed, which includes Johnny Phipps, president of the Monogram club, Irvin Boyles, president of the Interfraternity council, Coach Bob Fetzer, director of athletics, Harper Barnes, president of the student body, R. D. McMillan, president of the Grail, and as ex-officio member, Mayne Albright, director of Graham Memorial.

Sophs to Be Chosen

The members of the club will be chosen from the sophomore class at the beginning of the spring quarter and will serve throughout the spring quarter and two quarters of the next year. Fraternity members will be elected to the group on the recommendation of the fraternities, and non-fraternity members will be elected by the

BAND WILL CLOSE YEAR TOMORROW

Musical Group to Present Final Concert of Year in Hill Music Hall at 4:00 O'clock.

The University band, directed by Professor T. Smith McCorkle, will present its final program of the year in Hill Music hall tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

The program will be greatly varied and will include a number of popular concert selections recently appearing on the programs of concert bands. An arrangement of a suite by J. S. Bach is being repeated from a previous concert by request.

"The Pilgrims' March" from Mendelssohn's "Italian Symphony" will be presented as indicative of the possibility of successfully transcribing orchestral music for use by a symphonic band. In keeping with the custom of bands throughout the country to present one composition by John Phillip Sousa on each program during this year the famous bandmaster's "Cubaland Suite" will be played.

Present Wagner Composition
The feature number on the program will be Wagner's "Entry of Gods into Valhalla" and Ravel's "Bolero." Wagner's work is a descriptive composition in the form of a symphonic poem taken from his opera "Götterdämmerung." The "Bolero" is a recent composition by the modernist French composer. Its unusual use of drums as
