SATURDAY CLASS HOURS MOVED UP

Dr. R. D. W. Connor, head of the history department agreed on two provisions to move Saturday history classes ahead so as to allow students in these classes to be through in time. The professors have all agreed to cooperate and announcements will be made today.

Freshman English professors will discuss the situation this morning with their classes in an effort to move those classes ahead. Chemistry and botany heads had not been reached last night.

Music School Vastly Improved Under Direction Of McCorkle

Acting-Head and New Staff Hard at Work Developing System Out of Tangle Left by Dyer; Glee Club, Band and State Symphony Find Change for the Better.

"Mechanical rather than artistic. The department now runs like a well-ordered machine, and although the artistic element is there, it is submerged in the frantic, and decidedly successful program of creating organization and order out of the former chaotic state of the music department." This statement was made by a music student who studied under the Dyer regime and who could make an accurate comparison between it and the new departmental administration.

Several other students added that in chorus work especially, the spirit and artistry that prevailed under Dyer's direction were at present lacking, and had been replaced by cold technique. However the consensus of opinion is that as soon as the reorganization of the department is accomplished, the artistic side will again come to the front.

Students Satisfied

According to the music students, the department has, through the sincere efforts and enthusiasm of Professor McCorkle as head of the school, and the work of Messers Miller and Slocum, made great progress in reestablishing the standing of the department.

Slocum has already shown his ability as a band leader, and has gained the hearty approval of the student body as well as the music majors. He has not yet had an opportunity to show his talent as conductor of the University symphony orchestra.

New Glee Club System

As glee club leader, Miller has inaugurated a competitive entrance system to replace the former method of choosing members according to the likes and dislikes of the director.

All the students are enthusiastic about the new management of the department, and are cooperating with the head and the professors in making the revamped music school a success, and replacing it to its former position as one of the finest music departments in the country. It is allying itself with other state musical organizations, and attempting to revive the interest in the musical possibilities of North Carolina.

Instead of the former ill-feeling that existed between the music department and the Carolina state symphony, there is now a state of amicability that many believe will lead to a more frequent appearance of the symphony in Chapel Hill, and will also augment the out-of-state importance of these two organizations.

SECOND-YEAR MEN HEAR HENDERSON

Biographer Approves Honor System Principle; Suggests Full Power for Council.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the University mathematics department and eminent biographer of George Bernard Shaw, addressed the sophomore class yesterday at its regular assembly.

Most of Dr. Henderson's talk centered around a line taken from one of the plays of Shaw, "Life is but a series of inspired follies." He cited the work of Albert Einstein, with whom he stated he had worked, as an "inspired folly," and put in this class, Wilson's formation of the League of Nations and Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic.

Then the trend of the talk turned to the noble support of the team by the students last Saturday, and the remarkable reversal of form shown by the team itself. Dr. Henderson gave the second-year class a large portion of the credit for the spirit shown.

Favors Honor System

In closing, Dr. Henderson dwelt on the honor system as it is now and as it was when he attended the University. "I will most certainly vote 'aye' to any proposal brought up before the faculty which recommends that the entire discipline concerning the honor system be turned over to the Student council—for a year's experiment at least.

"We must drop the idea of considering it imperative for the instructor to leave the class room," said Dr. Henderson "for that is merely asking for more opportunity to cheat with less opportunity for detection."
