HART ADDRESSES FROSH ASSEMBLY ON PERSONALITY

Pennsylvanian Stresses Need for More Personal and Positive Characteristics in Youth.

WILL SPEAK AGAIN TODAY

"In a man's personality, the positive notes should be more important than the negative," stated Dr. John R. Hart of the University of Pennsylvania at the freshman assembly yesterday.

"My suggestion is to get rid of the negative personality which only sees the difficulties and bad points in everything," continued Hart. "Instead we all ought to join together with the positive type of personality which tries to build up things and make progress."

Need for Character

Showing that to have a positive personality one has to have faith in God and his fellowmen, Hart spoke of the present need for men of strong character. He said that he felt that the universities and colleges were developing the type of individual needed.

The speaker stated that by a positive personality he did not mean the type of person who was domineering, but instead the kind of human who had a constructive attitude and who felt that he could really do something and be something.

"Be More Personal"

"Every well trained person wants to do something and be something," Hart went on to (Continued on page two)

The later part of the meeting will be turned into a discussion on the Federal Public Works program.

Rameses III Arrives At University; Expected To "Jinx" Duke Saturday

Rameses III should be here early tomorrow morning to do his bit to inspire the Tar Heel team and student body on to victory against Duke Saturday. The ram, a thoroughbred longhorn, will be brought from Willard tonight.

Several members of the University club will leave this afternoon by truck for the state agricultural farm in Willard to obtain his honor, Rameses III. Willard is some hundred miles from Raleigh and it is hoped that the round-trip will be negotiated before tomorrow morning.

C. T. Woolen, comptroller of the University arranged for the means of conveyance. Earl H. Hostetter, professor of animal husbandry at State College, was instrumental in aiding the University club in locating the ram. Rameses I and II were hauled here from far away points and died due to climatic changes. They were kept in a pen near the present site of the Tin Can. University club officials would not reveal the place which had been picked for Rameses III's home. He will be properly cared for and taken to Durham Saturday for the Carolina-Duke tilt.

SHAWN'S TROUPE WILL COME HERE

Dancers Trained at Abandoned Farm, "Jacob's Pillow," in Berkshire Mountains.

Ted Shawn, famous American dancer, will present his ensemble of male dancers at Memorial hall November 27 under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers. For years Shawn has had the idea of an exclusively male dance company, but the idea was not realized until four years ago, when he acquired an abandoned farm, "Jacob's Pillow," in the Berkshire mountains and took men there to create and train his troupe.

The farm was run down. Roads and stone walls had to be repaired, the farmhouse and the barn had to be remodeled into living quarters and a studio, a dam was built to make a pond where the dancers could bathe. All of this back-breaking, muscle-tearing work was done by the men whom Shawn was training to become dancers.

Those who "couldn't take it" left the farm. Those who stayed were real he-men about whom there was nothing effeminate; those are the ones that compose the troupe that Shawn will bring here to dance. Masculine labor movements have been studied, and turned into dance patterns that are genuine and convincing.

Strenuous Training

One of the dancers, a former physical education instructor in Chicago, declared that there was nothing more strenuous than the dance and training routine which they had to use. "I had a course in gymnastics and tumbling at Columbia this summer," he said, "and thought I would be in splendid shape to work with Shawn, but after one day at his farm, I was unable to go up the stairs of the farmhouse." This is a typical athletic and hardy member of Shawn's troupe of male dancers.

Hocutt, Negro, Perfects Appeal From Superior Court Decision

Thomas Raymond Hocutt, Durham Negro, has perfected his appeal from a court ruling last spring refusing him admittance to the University, it was learned here yesterday.

The ruling, given by Judge M. V. Barnhill in Durham county Superior court last March, was based on the grounds that Hocutt's attorneys had not pursued the proper legal methods to force Thomas J. Wilson, Jr., dean of admissions, to allow the Negro to enroll in the school of pharmacy.

The attorneys relied upon a writ of mandamus as a means of obtaining admission for their client, contending that Hocutt was barred from the University

Peace Advocate Tells Listeners To Go to Jail Before They Go to the Trenches.

PEOPLE'S FAITH NEEDED

Speaking on the present world crisis and telling the causes of war and its prevention, Kirby Page, nationally known advocate of world peace, spoke Sunday night at a public service in the Methodist church.

"War is caused by the collision of ideas that are identical to all the nations concerned," stated Page, pointing out that during the last war each nation entered in the conflict told their own people the same thing in order to get them to bear arms.

According to Page, each nation in the World War told its people that the war was a conflict to save civilization, a war for the defense of the fatherland, a war to help and protect neighboring countries, and a war of religion to protect the Kingdom of God.

Nationalism Makes Beasts

"It is incredible that people like us should go to war," continued Page, "but nationalism, which is as equally sincere with all nations, has made beasts of us all."

In speaking of methods for peace, the speaker pointed out that attempts to disarm at present were hopeless. "The next big step towards disarmament will be, I think, the statement from nations that they will not send their armies across their frontiers," Page said. "As long as nations carry on the policy of armed intervention with other countries there is no hope for peace."

Prefer Jail to War

In speaking of the individual's place in the prevention of war, Page said "Go to jail before you go to the trenches and when a conflict comes, keep your head."

Page concluded by speaking of the present attempts which are being made to prevent war, stating that peace machinery alone is no good if the people do not believe in the machinery.
