DUO-PIANISTS TO PLAY HERE

Guy Maier (left) and Lee Pattison, duo-pianists, who will appear here Monday night under the auspices of the Student Entertainment committee.

MUSICIANS HAVE HUMOR ON BILL

Comic Touch Not Neglected by Guy Maier and Lee Pattison; Will Play Here Monday.

Putting a sense of humor into piano recitals of the highest order is not at all out of place in the opinion of Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, who will give a recital Monday night at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall as a program of the student entertainment series.

In fact, on every program they present, one is sure to find much in the way of what might be called music for diversion. However, it is not to be inferred that these artists resort to the cheaply popular, for they are musicians of the highest type.

Tarantelle by Raff

One of the numbers which these pianists have been featuring for its humor is a tarantelle called "The Fishwives of Procida" by Raff. The tarantelle, although light in subject matter, is written in the pompous manner of a former day, and, as played by these two, is said to be a gargantuan piece of humor.

At their appearance Monday night, Maier and Pattison will play a piece of sublimated jazz by Ernest Bacon, an American composer. The number, "Wastin' Time," is based on a Negro theme: "See dat white man sittin' on de fence, Wastin' his time, Wastin' his time."

"Out-door Games" by Germaine Tailleferro, three fairy tales from "La Mere L'Oye," and a series of charming wedding waltzes from "The Veil of Pierrette," a pantomime operetta by Dohnanyi—the latter arranged by Guy Maier—are some of the engaging titles found on programs played by Maier and Pattison.

Students to Greensboro

Thirty or more University students headed by Harper Barnes will attend a joint meeting at Woman's College, Greensboro, tonight, with members of the Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government. A banquet and dance will comprise the session.

ACCIDENT CAUSES LECTURE CHANGE

Dr. Woofter Delayed by Auto Collision in Kingtree; Talk Postponed until Thursday.

The NRA lecture scheduled for last night was postponed because the speaker, Dr. T. J. Woofter, was delayed by an automobile accident.

Dr. Woofter of the sociology department was in Charleston last night and on the way home had an accident in Kingtree, S. C. He was only slightly injured but the accident caused such a loss of time that he was unable to give the lecture last night.

Dr. Woofter was to speak on the subject "The Tennessee Valley Project." He was a member of the committee which worked on the details of the plan which the Tennessee Valley Authority was to carry into effect.

His lecture will be delivered next Thursday night at 8:00 o'clock in Bingham hall auditorium. The schedule of lectures on this series will be moved up one week. These lectures on the NRA are sponsored by the school of commerce, the law school, and the sociology department.

Dr. Elliott Discusses Recent Translations

Dr. Van Courtlandt Elliott of the classics department yesterday discussed volumes of the various new English translations of the Greek and Roman classics for sale in the Bull's Head bookshop with various persons interested in that type of literature.

Among some of the new editions of the classics on sale are: "A Literary History of Rome," "Swords Against Carthage," "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," "The Comedies of Aristophanes," "The Odyssey of Homer," and a number of volumes written by members of the University faculty.

The books dealing with the classics will remain on a special table for a week or more. Miss Mary Dirnberger announced that occasionally a special table will be devoted to various phases of literature.

Ralphs is a member of Sheffield College and is president of the Union of Students and editor of the Arrow, official organ of the union. Kitchen is from King's College and has had wide experience in dramatics and debating.

Maier To Offer Krazy Kat Skit

Krazy Kat, the world's greatest optimist, will appear before a Chapel Hill audience at the special concert in Hill Music hall on Monday afternoon, at 3:00 o'clock.

Krazy is a musical cat whose antics depend entirely upon the left fingers and facile words of his interpreter, Guy Maier, one member of the celebrated piano team of Maier and Pattison. The characters in the musical ballet are Krazy Kat, Ignatz Mouse, Officer Pup, Bill Postem, and Old Joe Stork.

Krazy Kat is Maier's concession to the fascination of jazz, the last number on the Monday afternoon program, preceding which Maier will show hand-colored lantern slides of Bavaria and Austria.

Immediately following the slides there will be a short group of piano compositions by Mozart and Schubert. The admission fee is 50 cents.

JACKSON PRAISES HOBBIES IN TALK

Dean States Own Diversion as Study of Famous Figures of Past and Present.

"Hobbies has a high precedent and good reasons for existence," stated Dean W. C. Jackson of the school of public administration in a talk yesterday at freshman assembly.

"Everyone should have a physical and an intellectual hobby—something not akin to his work. One man's occupation may be another's hobby," he stated, citing examples and instances of the hobbies of well-known men.

"My own hobby is seeing, hearing and studying great men." Dr. Jackson told of hearing the most impressive orators and musicians, of seeing the most outstanding of athletes in action, and of watching the most famous in their everyday affairs.

The speaker then gave a number of interesting and humorous examples of the idiosyncrasies of figures of history and modern times in their private lives. "Napoleon was only five feet five inches tall, slept only two and one-half hours a night—but he wasn't a Frenchman. I've seen J. P. Morgan pass around the collection plate in church—effectively and naturally. Jackson played poker, Washington played the races, but Hoover played—," he stopped in the midst of one of his many instances and continued with the eccentricities of other celebrities.

"If you want to know history, government, economics, the sciences or the arts," he concluded, "the best place to begin is with the study of the lives of those who were outstanding in their respective fields. I want to give you a bid to the Fraternity of Illustrious Men. There are no dues, no rushing, no pledging. The house is Valhalla—the hall of the great."

Bonfire Will Be Set Off At Emerson Field At 8:00 O'clock.

What will probably be the greatest pep rally ever to be held at the University will be set off tonight at 8:00 o'clock on Emerson field with the lighting of a gigantic bonfire to which every freshman is expected to make a contribution.

Rameses III, newly-acquired Tar Heel mascot, will be on hand when the festivities in preparation for the Duke classic tomorrow begin on the athletic field with the singing of songs and demonstrations of cheering. Following these proceedings, the throng of Carolina supporters will join in a gigantic torch procession to the Old Well, where the Duke casket will solemnly be laid to rest.

Reeves to Speak

Scrubby Reeves, one of the state's best known speakers, George Barclay, Tar Heel guard, and several other members of the eleven have been secured to make speeches on the occasion. The best program of the year is promised.

Freshmen are required to bring torches to the meeting and upperclassmen are asked to enter into the spirit by lending their full support. Torches can be purchased from the buildings department for ten cents.

Club Makes Plans

Final plans for the mass demonstration were made Wednesday night at a meeting of the University club. Each member pledged his enthusiastic support to put the affair over with true Carolina spirit.

ENGINEER SPEAKS ON HIGHWAY WORK

North Carolina Is First State To Complete Extensive Surveying System.

O. B. Bestor, engineer of surveys and records, of the state highway commission, spoke at the regular meeting of the William Cain Civil Engineering society last night on the state-wide surveying operations recently begun for the purpose of placing permanent monuments at numerous points for use in land surveying.

These monuments are in the form of bronze tablets and when completed they will number about 700, placing every point in the state within two and one-half miles of one of these objects. In all cases possible the traverses run to establish these monuments are being tied in with the highway network.

North Carolina will be the first state in the union to complete such a project. The Federal Relief work, following the idea laid down by this state, will conduct similar work on a nation-wide basis. A subordinate purpose of this work is to give employment to jobless engineers and surveyors.

Bestor stated that surprisingly correct results have been secured and that when completed, this system will be an invaluable aid to all surveying operations.
