

MADRY DEPLORES SCHOOLS' PLIGHT

University Publicity Director Addresses American College Publicity Association.

"I don't believe I am exaggerating one bit when I express the opinion that there never has been a time when fair and intelligent interpretation of our educational system, from the lowest grade in the grammar schools to the topmost rung of the graduate and professional schools, was more needed than it is today," Robert W. Madry, publicity director of the University and president of the American College Publicity Association, the national organization of college publicity men, asserted at Philadelphia Saturday in an address before the annual eastern conference of the association.

Madry declared that "things have come to a pretty sorry state of affairs when we glance at the records and find that 2,000 rural schools have been closed since September, depriving 100,000 smaller children of schooling;

"That 20,000 schools will have closed by April 1, affecting the education of a million children; "That more than 18,000 teachers are out of work;

"That schools in the United States are receiving $133,000,000 less this year than for the preceding 12 months and $563,000,000 less than in 1929-30."

These figures relate to the public schools rather than to the colleges, but the interests of the schools and the colleges "are so closely interwoven that we cannot afford to disassociate the one from the other in thinking about the future of education," he said. "As President Frank P. Graham of the University of North Carolina has told the people of his state time and again, 'the colleges and the public schools go up or down together.'"

Madry called attention to the fact that the situation in the public schools has become so critical there has been called to convene in Columbus, Ohio, in April, a great national meeting to consider "the appalling plight of the public school child."

And in a number of our states the same sort of program is being arranged, he said. "As regards the colleges," he said, "I know that, according to the bulletin of the American Association of Colleges, which is considered authoritative, more than 50 institutions of higher learning have been forced to close their doors within the last two years because of lack of essential funds to carry on. And many others, I am informed, would have been forced to close had they not effected a merger with some other institution."

The Can Opener

ing tirelessly and covering every inch of the court, Snooks reminded me of Monk McDonald, Carolina's one and only court Phantom. Built just like Snooks Monk was hard to follow on the court. He played everywhere and was always hot. Ray Rex lost ten pounds chasing Aitken Saturday. Did you see how much trouble he seemed to be having late in the game trying to get those trunks to stay over that horizon? Snooks played the same sort of game the whole team did. Every Phantom knew that State won that first game because the Tar Heels went over there cocky and rating the Terrors too low. They learned their lesson though and the result was a sound lacing. The win wasn't a surprise. to the squad. Some of them gave fifteen points.

THREE DUKE SCOUTS SAT in the honor section surrounded by the "Faithful 100" alumni who had come back to meet Coach Snavelly. The men were sent to cover the varsity and frosh teams of both schools but I bet that they could give a better report on the appearance of Snavelly and Reed. There they were, sitting right among the group who have vowed Duke shall never win a football game again, "Key" men too, all pepped up after a talk by the coach. How long will that enthusiasm last? Chuck Collins found that it was only skin deep. Here's hoping Snavelly cuts to the bone. Coach Wade was there also, with Dr. Roberson, right among the alumni. Oh, it was all so very nice. One alumnus pulled a prize boner. Evidently trying to "make" the new coach he had the nerve to ask him to have a cigar. The coach refused but I think he should have taken it as a souvenir, 'cause he may get what's left of that very cigar before many falls pass.

SARGE KELLAR IS A SHARK! Keep away from him! Just before going into the game someone asked him what the score was going to be. Turning his head nonchalantly, Sarge says, "46-26." He refuses to admit that he had arranged things beforehand. I am afraid to believe this 'cause I've heard reports of Sarge's black jack tactics. In the spring somebody ought to sponsor a charity match of black jack and setback between Sarge and Coach Bunn Hearn—the proceeds going to Ross and Morris.

of the evening was in the 175 pound division between Burgess of V.M.I., and Mac Auman. The V. M. I. entry, who is one of the outstanding wrestlers in the Southern Conference was extended to the limit before he was able to gain a 1:21 minute advantage over his adversary.

Douglas Loses First

Douglas, 125 pounds, suffered his first defeat of the year losing a 4:03 minute decision to Sherrard. Ward and Bonner remained in the class of the undefeated with victories over Dewey and Dean respectively.

Carolina Boxers Are Priming for Duke

meet 3 1/2-4 1/2. The following week, the Blue Devils fell before the rugged Maryland pugs 7-1. Sides was the only Duke man able to turn in a victory.

If Duke turns the tables on Carolina it will not be an astounding upset. Many believe that Coach Add Warren's fistic participants have yet to show their real prowess. Without a doubt the Duke mittmen will be in the pink when they pair-off with Coach Rowe's gloves.

The Blue Devils have lost many of their bouts by narrow margins and have been handicapped by lack of men in the 175 pound and unlimited classes. However, the Duke coach has groomed a Mr. Joe Jester to cover the lighthweight division. The novice held Fletcher of State to a draw. "It'll be my luck to have Duke find me a heavyweight," remarked Caruth, Carolina unlimited, as he worked out yesterday afternoon.

Yearlings Fight

The Tar Babies who dispensed with the entire V. M. I., freshman assemblage in exactly 17 minutes, will oppose the Imps in the preliminaries. These bouts should be equally as exciting as the varsity scraps.

Both Duke and Carolina are boasting their best yearling teams since the inception of boxing at the rival institutions. Duke's frosh squad found no trouble in repulsing Charlotte High, and last Saturday gave State its second defeat. The Tar Babies' record is much more impressive; they laced V. P. I. 7-1, were tied by State 4-4, trounced Virginia 6-2, ran roughshod over Oak Ridge 6-2, and whitewashed V. M. I. 8-0.

Phantoms to Meet Davidson Tonight

getter all year, and Lafferty's floor play has had much to do with the recent improvement of the Wildcats.

Another duel of particular interest will be that between Jason Glace, Carolina's lanky center, and Jim Morgan, Davidson's pivot man and all-state football player. Glace's performances in recent games have marked him as one of the most valuable men in the state. Seldom among the high scorers, his work under the basket on offense has played a big part in the success with which Aitken and Weathers have been able to sink baskets with regularity.

Handling the guard positions for the Wildcats will be Holland and Ross or Yelverton.

Coach Bo Shepard sent the White Phantoms through a hard practice session yesterday in preparation for tonight's game. Coach Shepard said he was not taking this game lightly in spite of the fact that the Wildcats have met nothing but defeat so far in the state.

I. R. C. DISCUSSES POSSIBLE CAUSES FOR FUTURE WAR

Discussion Shows That U. S. May Bring Crisis.

Meeting Sunday night in one of its regular fortnightly sessions, the International Relations Club discussed the factors which might sometime in the future bring the United States into a war.

Opinion seemed to center about the strained relations in the Pacific and the continual race for world markets, in which the United States is forced to run to find a means of disposing of her surplus manufactures.

It was also pointed out in the discussion that America's policy of playing a lone hand in foreign affairs may lead to a critical situation.

Harry E. Riggs, a member of the executive committee of the club, presided Sunday night. The topic to be discussed at the next meeting, a week from next Sunday has not yet been determined.
