STUDENTS SUGGEST

Dean House told us yesterday that the class extension idea must be presented a la statement to the faculty before any official action could be taken.

We know it would be asking too much to desire a move on the part of the faculty of its own accord. However, it is something to be desired. We don't want the faculty to think we're trying to cram something down its throat, so we haven't pushed the idea more than to suggest.

When the faculty does meet and the proposal for class extension is presented, there will undoubtedly be lots said on both sides. If nothing else is gained and if the proposal is dropped, we nevertheless feel that something has been accomplished in our setting forth a plan backed with real student opinion.

But we're not despairing. The students will be heard when the faculty discusses the idea. Then let the faculty act.

CLEANING HOUSE

Jack Pool's move in appointing the committee on activities and improvement naturally tickles us to death, because we have consistently maintained that something must be done to straighten out the administrative mess which we call "student government."

Not that the committee is a panacea for campus ills. But it is indubitably a step toward some amelioration of conditions such as were evidenced several times last year.

We hope the committee's report burns the thing up. If nothing else, it should be able to present the facts of governmental bungling which in themselves, without elaboration, should speak well for a constitution to allocate power where it belongs.

FORGOTTEN SURVEY

We don't doubt that some of Dean Bradshaw's boys took a questionnaire around Everett dormitory recently to find out that resident students thought of the plan. But we can't figure out what is wrong with the inmates down there who can't remember answering the thing.

During our recent investigation of the dormitory situation, we had occasion to see over 40 per cent of Everett's inhabitants. None of these ever saw the questionnaire, which Dean Bradshaw has as a testimony in favor of the Everett system (it was very favorably thought of, according to the poll).

Questionnaires are not very practicable means of sounding out student opinion, because they are usually "yes" and "no" questions. Maybe the answers were so short that the Everetts forgot giving them.

Class-Extension Idea To Get Consideration At Faculty Meeting

Plan Will Be Presented to Administration with Possibility of Faculty Action.

A statement of the class-extension plan sponsored by the DAILY TAR HEEL will be presented to the administration today or tomorrow for possible faculty action at the next meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Dean R. B. House said yesterday that no action could be made on the proposal until a definite statement had been presented. Consequently, such an outline will be worked up.

The plan has been discussed considerably recently, but no action has been suggested. However, it is likely that some definite stand will result from faculty consideration next week.

LIBERTY LEAGUE ORGANIZES HERE

Group Pledges to Expose Radical Classroom Propaganda; David Clark May Speak Soon.

Carolina conservatives, long the target of organized radical campus groups, awoke last night in the organization of a local chapter of the American Liberty League.

Under the leadership of Winthrop Durfee, some 25 students pledged membership in the national body which stands for the defense of American principles against fascism and socialism.

Durfee Made Head

Durfee, who was elected president of the chapter here last night, made it clear that the organization here will use all its power "to prove to North Carolina and the nation that this University is not a 'hotbed' of radicalism."

Meanwhile, plans have been made to secure David Clark, Textile Bulletin editor, to speak early in May on behalf of the organization.

Other officers elected last night were: DuPont Snowden, secretary, and Frank McGlenn, Robert Smithwick, Oliver Cross and Wiley Parker, executive committeemen.

Present also was Socialist Eston Everett Ericson who sought to justify the tendency of certain professors to expound their social views in the classroom.

Constitution Hopes Boosted As Pool Names Committee

More Duties

Harper Barnes (above), president of the student body and present manager of Graham Memorial, will add his years of experience in student government to a new committee under his chairmanship appointed yesterday by Jack Pool, incumbent leader, to investigate student government and the practicability of a written constitution.

The possibility that Carolina student government will finally become organized seemed imminent with yesterday's action on the part of Jack Pool, new student body head.

A committee on activities and improvements, headed by ex-student body President Harper Barnes, was appointed yesterday by Pool to look into the advisability of a written constitution for local student government, among other things.

Extra-Curriculars "I do not ask this committee necessarily to submit a written constitution," Pool explained yesterday. "What I do wish is material which might be useful in compiling a manual on extra-curricular activities of the campus."

Members of the group besides Barnes are Hayward Weeks, Mayne Albright, Phil Hamner, Fred Weaver, Joe Sugarman, Albert Ellis, Frank Willingham, and Francis Fairley.

Tar Heel Campaign

The DAILY TAR HEEL is carrying on a vigorous campaign for a written constitution for Carolina student government.

The appointment of the present committee came as a result of Pool's pre-campaign platform and governmental connections as much as from the newspaper's crusade, however.

"For some time," Pool went on yesterday, "I have felt that there has been a need for clarification as to the definite responsibilities of the campus organization and the relation of one organization to another. I believe that a brief statement would

WAR DISCUSSION AGITATES LEAGUE

MacFarland, Magill Speak, Supported by Woodhouse, Frazer, Stoney, Bahnson.

Facing competition from the DAILY TAR HEEL banquet on the other side of the partition and surrounded on a mythical platform by Mr. Woodhouse (he once beat out Calvin Coolidge for mayor of Northampton, Mass.), Don McKee, and Don Becker, George MacFarland gave Chapel Hill its first taste of what the Iowa plan can really do for public meetings.

He was preceded by Bob Magill's 10-minute short on current happenings across the seas, a talk which was comprehensive yet to the point—and something new to the Foreign Policy League.

Neutrality Problem

MacFarland gave a decidedly intelligent presentation of the neutrality problem which has done so much to draw the United States into past wars. He started out by saying that our government can't ignore public opinion and get away with it. As a result our foreign policy is dictated by the "state of mind" of the people, a state of mind which has been opposed since pioneer days to kowtowing to a foreign government. His parting shot was that the United

Modern Trends

In the latter part of the program, the dance turns to a more modern trend in the "Design Moderne," which takes form in lines peculiar to modern influence in art. "Cutting the Sugar Cane" by Shawn is a vivid portrayal of a phase of Cuban life.

The admission for this performance has been set at 25 cents. A special section will be reserved for Negroes.
