Sigma Nu Repeats To Win Mat Crown

Tick, Tick, Tick

Andy Bershak won his second watch of the season last night when he was awarded a solid-gold wrist watch by Moon-Over-The-Mountain Kate Smith for making a second-team end-post on her national All-Collegiate football eleven. Souchak of Pitt and Sweeney of Notre Dame won first-string flank honors and Cornell's Brud Holland, AP first stringer, was placed on the third team.

Fordham's "Sleepy" Jim Crowley, chief of Kate's football board of coaches, was awarded a railroad ticket to Pasadena and back, and Kate's Ted Collins was awarded the monopoly on the concession for selling the "Rose Hill to Rose Bowl" buttons by Alex Wojciechowicz.

There is a move in Boston to change the city's National League baseball entry from Bees back to Braves.

SAE CAPTURES SECOND PLACE AS MEET ENDS

Robertson Pins Joyner In Fastest Match Of Afternoon

By WILLIAM L. BEERMAN

The 1937 intramural season ended yesterday as eight mat-burned grapplers walked off with medals for their prowess in the 14th annual wrestling tournament.

Sigma Nu, campus champions of last year, retained that honor only by virtue of an extremely large number of entrants. SAE sent three men to the finals out of an original entry of five, and two came through with titles. Sigma Nu had only two finalists out of a field of 28 entrants, but both men won. As points were also allowed for the number of participants, Sigma Nu was given the intramural crown with 140 points. However, SAE really won the wrestling matches with 115 points.

Lambeth-Hamlin

Lambeth (Beta Theta Pi) started the finals off by defeating Hamlin (Everett) in the 118 lb. class. Staying on top most of the time, Lambeth took the title with a time advantage of 3:14.

The next bout, a 126 lb. affair, was contested furiously as Goodwin (SPE) tried to stave off the rushes of Gregory (KA). Gregory took the match with a fall in 3:04.

Blackmer-Shaw

Extended into two extra periods, the 135 lb. event finally came to a close with both contenders practically out on their feet. Battling each other from a standing position, Blackmer (Sigma Nu) and Shaw (Ruffin) spent more time off the mat than on it. The regular eight minute limit ended with neither wrestler having an advantage, so two extra periods of two minutes each were allowed. Blackmer coasted through with a 3:38 advantage over the panting Shaw.

Broadfoot (SAE) exhibited excellent technique and reserve power as he overcame Milner (Steele) with a fall in 1:55. Milner, tough and sturdy, submitted unwillingly to the lightning-like tactics of his 145 lb. opponent.

Robertson

Fastest pin of the day saw Robertson (SAE) turn the tables and flatten Joyner (Grimes) in the 155 lb. struggle. Coming out fighting as the opening bell rang, both men hit the mat with Joyner on top. Spectators yelled madly as the dormitory entrant seemed to have a sure victory in his grasp, but Robertson, with one powerful surge, flipped himself to the title with a fall in 1:09.

Defending his title in the 165 lb. class, Hairston (Sigma Nu) managed to keep it by defeating Broadfoot (SAE). Broadfoot, whose brother took the 145 lb. championship, fought hard every second of the battle, but fell before Hairston's body-pin in 3:06.

NEW JUMP RULE WILL HIT W. & L.

Bob Spessard's Height May Not Mean So Much Now

Those loud groans blowing down from the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia are probably emitting from Lexington, seat of Washington and Lee. The man doing the groaning, no doubt, is Cy Young, basketball coach of the Generals.

Young is groaning because they've taken the center jump out of basketball this year. Mr. Young's game is built around the center jump and Bob Spessard, his 6-foot, 7-inch center. Spessard's main stock in trade is tapping the ball to team-mates on the center jump, and then going under the basket to sink field goals. Spessard was so good at it last year, that he carried W. & L. to the Southern conference championship. In the finals against Carolina he scored over 20 points, just tapping the ball and standing under the basket.

The abolition of the tap will keep Spessard from tapping the ball to Borries, and then go under the basket for a shot. Instead the team scored upon will take the ball after each shot. There will be only two jumps a game, at the beginning, and at the start of the second half. This rule will give the little men a break.

Agitation to take the center jump out of the cage game started.
