

Clark Eichelberger To Speak In Memorial Hall This Morning On Results Of Lima Conference

Speaker

Clark M. Eichelberger, regarded as an authority on world affairs, will speak in Memorial hall this morning on "What the United States Got Out of the Lima Conference." He attended the peace conference in Lima last month.

Speaker Regarded As Authority On World Affairs

Clark M. Eichelberger, director of the American League of Nations association, will speak on the topic of "What the United States Got Out of the Lima Conference," this morning at 10:25 in Memorial hall.

Eichelberger, who has just returned from Geneva and from the peace conference in Lima, is considered one of the most distinguished American students of foreign affairs, is a leader of a movement in the United States which emphasizes the necessity of cooperation among nations as opposed to the isolationist group, is a cavalier of the French Legion of Honor and a frequent consultant with officials in Washington.

FOR WORLD PEACE

Recently returned from Europe, Eichelberger was instrumental in organizing relief for refugees from Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia. He has often been recognized in Europe for his services in the cause of world peace and declares himself a friend of the movement in the South to increase interest in international relations.

The speaker is being sponsored jointly by the YMCA, International Relations club and the Southern Council on International Relations. The public is invited and especially those students taking, economics, sociology and social science.

Having spent much time in Europe, Eichelberger is considered an expert on all phases of international relations and has made an extensive study of present conditions existing in England, Germany and Italy. He comes here after an engagement in Durham where he spoke last night on the topic "Will War Follow Munich?"

GROUP SENDS OUT QUESTIONNAIRES ON EXAMINATIONS

Committee Begins Collecting Data On Comprehensives

Questionnaires to collect information necessary to give a clear and accurate picture of the system of comprehensive examinations have been issued to members of the faculty by the Committee on Comprehensive Examinations.

On action of the faculty last spring the committee was appointed to collect sample copies of comprehensive examinations and data concerning the actual administration of the system in order to study the situation and make pertinent recommendations to the faculty. Dr. A. R. Newsome, head of the History department, is chairman of the committee.

HEADS QUIZZED

Department heads are asked to submit copies of comprehensive examinations given by their departments in the last three years and to answer questions as to whether the examinations are written or oral, how long they may last, by whom the examinations are compiled and graded, whether or not the identity of the student is known to those who grade his papers, and to what the experience of the department has been in regard to failures.

All members of the faculty are asked
(Continued on page two)

Tickets Go Fast For Tennis Match

Only a little over 1,000 tickets remain in the general admission section for the Budge-Vines tennis match to be played in Woolen gymnasium Wednesday night at 8:15.

General admission tickets are on sale at $1.00 each, while students with passbooks may purchase duets for 75 cents—as long as they last. When the remaining 1,000 seats are gone, whether they are purchased by students or outsiders, all seats will be on sale for $1.50 each in the reserved section.

WAITING FOR 4,000

Almost 4,000 seats will be ready for customers next week for this sports event. Of these, 1,500 have been set aside for general admission, and a little over 2,300 are in the reserved stands.

Since the start of ticket sales a few weeks ago, over a thousand tickets have been purchased by students and outsiders at the ticket office alone. This does not include any sales which may have been made by other agents throughout the state.

KENFIELD MAY REFEREE

Although the report was not confirmed yesterday, it is expected that

(Continued on page two)

For Student Entertainment

Eugene Loring, as "Billy," with two of the "Rancher's wives," who will be seen tonight in Ballet Caravan's production "Billy the Kid." The company, featuring native American material in ballet form, is this season making its first national tour. This performance will open the winter series of student entertainments.

Lobby Against Tuition Increase To Gather Final Evidence Today

GWYNN DISCUSSES NORTH CAROLINA SCHOOL PROGRAM

Professor Suggests Addition Of Grade, Varied Curriculum

"The only ultimate solution to the problem of adding an extra year to the North Carolina school curriculum is to move in the direction of additional local support for a school program which the State is finding it now impossible to carry alone," says Dr. J. Minor Gwynn, University professor of education in an article in the current issue of "North Carolina Education," official organ of the North Carolina Education association.

Entitled "The Twelfth Grade—Whither?" Dr. Gwynn's article gives the results of tests performed during the past eight months to determine the feasibility of adding another grade to the present curriculum.

Dr. Gwynn's study showed that North Carolina seventh grade pupils are just below, even with, or just above the level of achievement of pupils at the end of the seventh grade in other sections of the country.

These North Carolina students, however, he points out, are at the end of elementary education, while pupils in other states have another year to go
(Continued on page two)

Representatives From Each County Called To Meeting

With a meeting this afternoon of students representing all counties in the state, the student lobby protesting the proposed tuition increase will wind up its campaign and gather additional evidence to be used at the committee hearing on the issue next Tuesday.

An urgent plea to students interested in combatting the measure was voiced last night by Lobby Chairman John Rankin who asked that they come to the Phi assembly hall on the fourth floor of New East this afternoon at 5 o'clock to complete the final plans of the lobby. The chairman said that an attempt will be made to have each county of the state represented either by a single student or by a group who, as representative students of their county, will write letters to the Appropriations committee protesting the raise.

LAST CALL

Rankin also issued a final call for personal stories from students now enrolled who would not be able to return to school if the increase goes into effect. "We have received a number of good reports of this kind," he said, "all of them from students who would be unable to bear the increase, but we will be able to make a better selection of these 'case histories' if we have more of them to choose from. I cannot overemphasize the importance of these reports as evidence, and I
(Continued on page two)

When Off-Court—

Ellsworth Vines Plays Golf But Don Budge Hears "Jive"

Weight—186 pounds; height—6 feet 2; name—Ellsworth Vines, Jr.; occupation—foremost professional tennis player in the world and undisputed king of the pro net ranks; present position—in match with Don Budge, challenger for the crown.

But that description far from typifies Ellsworth Vines, the lanky Californian who turned back not only defeat on the courts but inherent limitations to reach his present fame. Vines is a native of Pasadena, California, born there on September 28, 1911. He is fairly old for the fast game he plays, but age evidently has not yet caught up with his mad pace. A NATURAL

Vines has, besides the natural ability to play tennis, the physical equipment necessary for success. Possessing an unerring sense of rhythm and timing through years of experience, he has developed a versatile ability in sports.

Only recently, he made public his desire to attain a berth on the Walker Cup team for he is almost as great a golf enthusiast as he is tennis
(Continued on page two)

Tennis is hardly John Donald Budge's only occupation for the Californian is one of the nation's well-known jitterbugs. No, he doesn't drink, nor does he smoke, but his favorite hangouts are night clubs—for the music. And, strangely enough, although the world's amateur king knows just about all the band leaders and musical lingo possible he's not a lover of the light fantastic—especially big-applying. The music affects his brain and soul at once but cannot penetrate the entire six feet one and one-half inches of his feet.

On his professional tour throughout the United States, strict training might keep Budge from attending the night clubs but a mere matter of training cannot stop his love for rhythm. He carries with him on tour a portable phonograph of the latest model with a complete line of the latest swing recordings. At the close of his matches, Jitterbug Budge has a little private "jam" session in his hotel room before retiring.

UP AND DOWN

Publicity advances for the match
(Continued on page two)

President Of Associated Press Will Address Opening Session Of State Newspaper Institute

Annual Meeting Gets Underway This Afternoon

The 15th annual North Carolina Newspaper institute will get underway at the Carolina inn this afternoon, and tonight the state press will hear one of the foremost American journalists, Robert McLean, president of the Associated press.

McLean, who publishes the Philadelphia Bulletin, is scheduled to speak shortly after 8 o'clock in the opening session of the institute. His subject has not been announced. He will also be heard at a luncheon gathering of the Associated press club, to which publishers, managing editors, and telegraph editors are invited, at the inn at 1 o'clock.

REGISTRATION

After registration at 4 o'clock this afternoon, the institute will open with a public meeting in the ballroom of the Carolina inn. Dean of Administration R. B. House will welcome the delegates and Talbot Patrick, president of the North Carolina Press association, will respond. After McLean's address, an informal fellowship will be held before the lobby fireplace.

The institute will continue through Saturday morning. A banquet session will be held Friday night at Duke university, but the other sessions of the meeting will take place at the Carolina inn.

THOSE BEFORE

McLean is inherently a newspaperman. He is the eldest son of the late William L. McLean, publisher of the
(Continued on page two)

OLSEN TO DIRECT BIRTHDAY DANCE

Group To Complete Sponsor Selection

Professor William A. Olsen, member of the University English department, has accepted an appointment as master of ceremonies for the President's Birthday ball to be held in the Carolina inn Monday, January 30.

Having taken part in numerous village and campus activities, Professor Olsen has become well known for his keen wit and humor. He will officiate at a program of round dancing in the inn ballroom.

MEETING TODAY

This afternoon a meeting of the affairs executive committee for the ball will be held in the lounge of the inn at 4 o'clock. E. Carrington Smith, general chairman, will preside.

Selection of campus and town sponsors will be completed this week and announcement of the girls chosen will be made in the DAILY TAR HEEL Sunday morning. Sponsors will select escorts to participate in a formal figure.

A dance orchestra and a square dance band will be engaged within a few days. The committee plans to obtain a University dance band for the ballroom event.

Gone With The Wind Chosen Best Novel

Margaret Mitchell's best seller of last year, "Gone with the Wind," once more received noteworthy mention, when Drs. Spearman's and Russell's classes in journalism and book reviewing yesterday voted that novel the best they had ever read. Following close behind was "Of Human Bondage," written by W. Somerset Maugham; and two of the late Thomas Wolfe's works, "Look Homeward Angel" and "Of Time and the River."

James Joyce's exiled "Ulysses," Dante's "Divine Comedy," John Galsworthy's "Forsythe Saga," Stephen Zweig's "Marie Antoinette," Margaret Halsey's "With Malice Toward Some," and Thomas Hardy's "The Return of the Native" also were given recognition by the potential book reviewers.

Frosh Pictures

Group pictures of freshmen whose names come between C. B. Idol and M. R. Mendelsohn will be taken for the Yackety-Yack in Hill Music hall at 10:30 this morning.

Institute Guest

Paul McLean, president of the Associated Press and publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, speaks tonight at the first session of the North Carolina Press institute.

BALLET CARAVAN WILL INTERPRET MODERN DANCES

Artists To Offer American Themes On Tonight's Bill

Lincoln Kirstein's Ballet Caravan will present "Billy the Kid," "Filling Station," and "Pocahontas" tonight at 8:30 in Memorial hall under sponsorship of the Student Entertainment committee.

Ballet Caravan, founded to develop a native American ballet and to employ American themes, dancers, and

Student entertainment passbooks will be distributed for the last time today from 9 to 5 o'clock in the cashier's office, South building.

musicians, is this year making its first national tour.

"BILLY THE KID"

"Billy the Kid," which deals with the story of the pioneer outlaw, will feature the former Broadway actor, Eugene Loring, and the first dancer and ballet master of the troupe, Lew Christensen. Loring, author of the prize winning "Yankee Clipper," will dance the leading role. Aaron Copeland, well known symphonic composer, wrote the musical background.

Christensen, inventor of "Filling Station," will also dance the leading role. In this ballet, the document of the life of a typically American filling station operator is portrayed, centered around the story of a murder. Virgil Thomson, who composed the musical
(Continued on page two)

Relations Group To Plan Session

This afternoon at 5 o'clock the operating committee for the 1939 Human Relations institute will meet at the YMCA to discuss plans for the coming session which will be held here during the week of April 2-8.

The committee, made up of faculty representatives from University departments whose courses relate closely to institute topics and students who represent leading campus organizations, will be divided into sub-committees which will be delegated to organize and direct the various phases of the institute.

SUB-COMMITTEES

The sub-committees are as follows: forums, to arrange afternoon discussions and luncheon and dinner sessions; publicity conservation, to take notes and preserve the information contributed by institute speakers; exhibits; interviews, and a student secretary to provide assistants to each speaker; entertainment; handbook distribution; and classroom seminars.

The following students are members of the operating committee: Dewitt Barnett, Ralph Bragdon, Margaret Evans, Edward Parrish, Voit
(Continued on page two)