Relations Club Plans To Take Part In Spring Meeting

At the monthly business meeting of the International Relations club last night plans were made for the club's participation in the William and Mary International Relations conference and a club page in the Yackety-Yack.

Some 10 students will attend the conference at William and Mary in April and these students will have an opportunity to see how the Carnegie endowment conducts this type of conference. It is hoped that the conference will be held here in 1940.

NEXT ROUND TABLE

The next round table to be conducted by the club will be held in Graham memorial next Thursday night at 8:30. It will feature an all-girl panel composed of Melville Corbett, Anne Martin, Margaret Evans, and Nancy Nesbit.

The Sunday broadcast over WPTF will be a round table on "What Is Ahead for Spain?" and the speakers will be Dr. E. J. Woodhouse of the Political Science department, Dr. N. B. Adams of the Spanish department, Dr. Lee M. Brooks of the Sociology department, and Dr. George E. Mowry of the History department.

The club voted to assess each member 50 cents for Yackety-Yack pictures, which will be collected at the Round Table discussion next week.

BOARDS

President Henry Nigrelli appointed publicity, library, and radio boards. The publicity board is composed of Walter Kleeman, Doris Goerch, and Everett Lindsay.

President Nigrelli informed the club that the Carnegie endowment had been sending books to the club since 1931 and it was suggested that these books be collected and that a departmental library be established to work with the University library.

The board appointed to put on the Durham broadcasts included Dexter Freeman, Stuart Isaacs, Everett Lindsay, and Lee Wiggins. The Raleigh radio board is composed of Charles Lerche, John Kendrick, Phyllis Campbell, John Busby, Walter Kleeman, John Rankin, and Miss Mary Lewis.

Plans were also discussed for a nation-wide broadcast which the club hopes will be put on in the spring.

No Town Hall

The discussion meeting usually held in Graham memorial each Thursday night after the Town Hall radio program will not take place tonight.

Laycock Heads Board To Publish The "Bud"

At their last meeting, members of Phillips Russell's creative writing class, English 54, elected an editorial board to control publication of the annual class magazine, "Bud."

The board is headed by George Laycock, and is composed of four associate editors: Misses Peggy Sabine and Gladys Best Tripp, Raymond Lowery, and Morris Rosenberg.

"Bud" is usually printed in magazine form, consisting of various bits of literature contributed by the class members.
