Local Ball Set For Tomorrow

Round, Square Dances To Begin At 9 O'Clock

By BILL RHODES WEAVER
Students and townspeople will celebrate President Roosevelt's fifty-seventh birthday with two dances in the Carolina inn tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

The ball will be one of thousands held at the same time throughout the nation. Proceeds from the celebration will be used in the fight against infantile paralysis.

Sponsors and their escorts will meet at the Carolina inn ballroom to rehearse the figure this afternoon at 6 o'clock.

Both round dancing and square dancing will be held at the inn, beginning at 9 o'clock. Square dancing will be given in the lobby and the north parlor and round dancing in the ballroom.

OLSEN TO OFFICIATE

During intermission at both activities, Professor W. A. Olsen will be master of ceremonies and will conduct the drawing of prizes. Prior to intermission, the sponsors and their escorts will participate in a colorful figure, the sponsors carrying bouquets of vari-colored flowers, and their escorts dressed in formal attire.

During intermission, Miss Hilda Weaver, who performed for the affair last year, will present an interpretation of Ravel's "Bolero."

Jerre King and his University orchestra will play at the ballroom dance; and a local string group, "The Revelers," a member of which has

On A Bet, Student Drinks 'Whatisit'

Have you ever been dared to drink a goshawful concoction made up of sodas and ends from a restaurant table?

The other night about a dozen college students were seated in a local restaurant drinking beer, milk, orange juice and water. After finishing their drinks the boys, playful like everybody else, began pouring the remains of their drinks into one glass.

At the end, the glass contained not only the liquid but cigarette stubs, match stems, sugar, salt and pepper.

One of the dozen, Paul Caviness, would-be journalist and bane of "Skipper" Coffin's and Mr. Spearman's classes, took up a wager that he would drink the contents of the glass.

A bit squeamishly, the other fellows

FOUSHEE AGAINST STUDENT FIREMEN

Mayor Tells Of Compensation Act

Mayor John Foushee of the town of Chapel Hill yesterday expressed the belief that difficulties of assuming responsibility for would-be student volunteer firemen while fighting blazes in the village and on the campus, would make it inadvisable for a student fire-fighting unit to be organized.

He suggested instead that the group already signed as volunteers from a nucleus of fire "prevention" rather than fighters. He expressed appreciation for the interest shown by the students.

PARENTS' CONSENT NECESSARY

Chapel Hill volunteer firemen are protected by the local town government under provisions of the Workmen's Compensation act. It would be necessary for this protection to be extended to the student group, the mayor said, and he believed the Board of Aldermen would not want to assume the added responsibility. In any case, parents' permission would be necessary, he said.

Many of the 30 or more volunteers already members of the unit would be disqualified from the compensation act because of the minimum age limit of 21 years, Mayor Foushee believed.

Liability for responsibility of student volunteers at fires on the campus would not rest with the University trustees, he declared.

Church Council Poll Shows Liberal Trend

A distinct liberal trend in the youth of the nation was shown in a poll recently conducted by the Council for Social Action of the Congregational and Christian Churches voted 4530 to 987 in favor of "provision by government of jobs for those unable to find work in private employ."

Other liberal measures which the undergraduates voted on were the use of federal measures to support agricultural prices; the organization of labor into national unions; the maintenance or increase of tariffs and other trade barriers; the further extension of public ownership of electric utilities; the organization of consumer cooperatives; and the further social control of our economic system.

Voting in the plebiscite began November 13, 1938. Ballots were received from 700 churches. In some cases the questions were discussed by the members.

ROUND TABLE OF AIR TO BE HELD BY FIVE COEDS

Program To Be Heard On WPTF From 3 to 3:30

The University of North Carolina Round Table of the Air will be presented again this afternoon from 3 o'clock to 3:30 over WPTF in Raleigh as five Carolina coeds, members of the International Relations club, discuss "Fascism and Communism" in a continuation of the panel discussion held Friday evening in Graham memorial.

The panel members, Nancy Nesbit, graduate student in political science; Anne Martin, graduate student in sociology; Melville Corbett, junior major in sociology; and Margaret Evans, graduate student in history, will have as their presiding officer, Miss Phyllis Campbell, junior political science major. They will place special emphasis in their discussion upon the condition of the individual under Fascism and Communism, and will interpret these conflicting ideologies from both a practical and theoretical point of view.

MUCH COMMENT

This weekly broadcast, one of a series produced by the International Relations club here on the campus, has elicited fan mail and comments from South Carolina, Virginia, and a large part of North Carolina.

It is planned at the present time

Rhyne, Jr., Cherryville; Fred M. Rountree, Sunbury; H. W. Sparrow, Greensboro; A. B. Tomlinson, North Wilkesboro.

JANUARY MAG TAKES STAND FOR LIBERALISM

Criticizes Tar Heel Edit Board, Lecture System

Featuring three articles that critically examine various outstanding campus institutions and containing definitions of liberalism by prominent American figures, the January issue of the Carolina Magazine will appear tomorrow on the campus.

Keynote of the magazine is sounded by John Creedy's opening editorial in which he says that the University is hypocritical when it calls itself liberal, and that while the students are willing to listen to radical speakers, there "is never a hint of the content of any of these speeches registering." Calling this attitude "headline mentality," Editor Creedy says, "We are a conservative University with a little surface froth of liberal form to keep everyone fooled—even ourselves. Let's stop being hypocrites, let's come out and say we are conservatives and let's do something about it."

DICTATORSHIP

Gordon Mull in his article, "... Those Who Can't, Teach" criticizes the present method of teaching at the University. Proposing what he calls "a four point program for the elimination of the useless," he advocates abolishing of the lecture system, faculty dictatorship, non-participation by the faculty in community life, and the attitude of false superiority assumed by the faculty or by certain departments toward each other.

Frank Holeman's "The Banner is Folded" is subtitled "Suppression of Liberalism by the Tar Heel" and is both a criticism of the paper's editorial policy and an evaluation of the various members of the editorial staff. A student who prefers to remain anonymous writes a satire on a sociology professor entitled "Liberalism in the Classroom."

STATEMENTS

Creedy has asked several men both on and outside the campus to give their definitions of liberalism, and the statements of William Allan White,

MADRY'S FATHER DIES YESTERDAY

Succumbs To Long Seige Of Sickness

Robert Jarrette Madry, 72, father of Director of the University news bureau Robert W. Madry, died at his home in Scotland Neck early yesterday morning.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3:30 at the home and burial will be made in the Scotland Neck Baptist cemetery.

Madry was a prominent east Carolina business man and owned and operated the oldest business house in Scotland Neck, the wholesale grocery which bears his name.

UNIVERSITY MEN

Four of his sons, R. W. Madry, W. Dennis Madry, J. T. Madry, and C. J. Madry were graduated from the University, and another son got his degree at State college and the only daughter was graduated at the Woman's college of the University.

Many members of the University faculty have from time to time been entertained at the Madry plantation which has been long noted in that section for its hospitality, especially its annual August barbecue suppers.

Rittenberg To Speak To Philosophy Club

Sidney Rittenberg, an undergraduate student philosopher, will be chief speaker at the first winter quarter meeting of the Undergraduate Philosophy club in the Grail room of Graham memorial tonight at 8 o'clock.

Rittenberg, a University sophomore, working toward a major in philosophy, will take as his topic, "In Defense of Ethics." An open forum will follow the talk.

The public is invited to attend.

Dramatic Students

An important meeting of all graduate students and undergraduate majors in the department of dramatic art will be held in 113 Murphey tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Deceased Kenan Prof

Funeral services for Dr. Atwell C. McIntosh, late member of the law faculty since 1910 and Kenan professor emeritus since 1934, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Presbyterian church.

M'INTOSH RITES WILL BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

Late Professor Gave Up Active Teaching In '34

Funeral services for Dr. Atwell Campbell McIntosh, 79-year-old Kenan professor emeritus of the law school faculty since 1934, will be conducted by Rev. Donald H. Stewart at the Presbyterian church this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will take place in the Chapel Hill cemetery.

Dr. McIntosh died at Watts hospital Friday night at 8:15 following a long illness. He had been in declining health for the past three years.

To villagers it was familiar to see Dr. and Mrs. McIntosh down street, shopping and greeting friends. Their frequent stopping on the street to chat with passersby won them high esteem. Up until their trips together were prevented by Dr. McIntosh's illness, they were never seen apart. They celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in June, 1937.

BORN 1895

Dr. McIntosh was born November 3, 1895, in Taylorsville. From Davidson college he received his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees, and in 1923, he was given an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

After editing a case-book on Law of Contracts in 1908, he collaborated with the late Dean Samuel Mordecau in writing a casebook on the law of remedies. During that time he was a professor of law in Trinity college, now Duke university. He joined the law faculty here in 1910. Because of ill health, Dr. McIntosh was compelled to give up active teaching in 1934. The trustees of the University in acknowledgement of his services, conferred upon him the first emeritus under the Kenan foundation.

Surviving are Mrs. McIntosh, the former Miss Caroline Jackson Seagle of Newton; a daughter, Mrs. Fred Page of Asheboro; and two sons, Edwin McIntosh, a member of the New York Herald Tribune staff, and Andrew McIntosh, an attorney of Chapel Hill.

Active pallbearers will be: M. S. Breckenridge, Fred B. McCall, Frank W. Hanft, Robert H. Wettach, J. W. Lasley, E. L. Mackie, Alf Pickard and Dr. L. E. Fields.

Honorary pallbearers will be: Chief Justice W. P. Stacy, Associate Justices of the Supreme court Heriot Clarkson, Michael Schneck, W. A. Devin, M. V. Barnhill and J. Wallace Winborne; Attorney general Harry McMullan, President Frank P. Graham, Dean R. B. House, Dean M. T. Van Hecke, J. P. Dalzell, Breck P. McAllister, Albert Coates, B. W. Markham, H. M. Wagstaff, John Foushee, W. E. Thompson, George McKie, R. E. Coker, W. C. Coker, I. H. Manning, William deB. MacNider, M. C.

Former Playmaker Drops Trousers--All For Drama

Mrs. Spearman To Talk To YM-YWCA

Mrs. Walter Spearman, chairman of the YWCA advisory board, will be in charge of the program for a joint meeting of the YM and YWCA tomorrow night. The program entitled "Who is Secure" will be held in the Episcopal church parish house at 7 o'clock.

After a call to worship and responsive readings, the group will discuss the possibilities of obtaining security in a confused and changing world. Sarah Stille McLean will participate with Mrs. Spearman on the program and Nancy Smith will play several organ selections.

Fitz-Simmons, University Alumnus, Who Will Appear Here Tuesday

By DORIS GOERCH

While orating, "I'm that same Davy Crockett, half horse, half alligator, a little touched with the old snapping turtle, that can wade the Mississippi, leap the Ohio, ride on a streak of lightning, and slide down a honey locust without getting a scratch. I can whup my weight in wild cats, hug a bar too close for comfort, and eat any man that's opposed to Jackson." Foster Fitz-Simmons, nationally known dancer who was a student here, almost had a tragic accident.
