Fencers Begin 1939 Season Today At 2:15 In Woollen

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)
Williamsburg, Va., February 3.—The University of North Carolina fencing team can expect to be pushed the limit in Chapel Hill's spacious Woollen gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 for the touring Terapin fencers provided plenty of trouble here today before bowing to last year's undefeated William and Mary swordsmen, 14-13. The Marylanders will be out for the first victory of the year, just as will the Tar Heels, but, even more important, the Old Liners are coming to the Hill bent on revenge for last season's 13-11 thrashing.

Leading the Carolina fencers will be Captain Allan Bloom, pacing the Blue and White for the second successive season. Jim McCallum, Dave Malone and Joe Boak will back Bloom up in foil, while Dick Freudenheim, diminutive Tar Heel epeeist, will attempt to carry through the high honors carried off by the epee division last year, and will be helped along by John Finch and Randy Reece. Sabreists Williamson and Bloom, only veterans in

No Definite Date Yet Selected For Annual Event

Miss Olive Cruikshank and Puddin' Wales, recently selected by the YMCA cabinets as co-chairmen of the Student-Faculty day for 1939, yesterday announced the selection of the members of their committee.

The students and faculty members, who, with Wales and Miss Cruikshank, will compose the committee in complete charge of events for the day, are: Jim Joyner, Felix Markham, Joe A. Brown, J. Maryon Saunders, W. A. Olsen, H. K. Russell, R. B. House, F. F. Bradshaw, Fred Weaver, Robert Magill, Miss Elizabeth Malone, Brooks Patten, Jimmy Davis, H. F. Comer, and Dr. Wm. deB. MacNider.

FURTHER APPOINTMENT

One more committeeman is yet to be appointed. Dr. MacNider stated that he did not wish to accept the position definitely as yet, since he believed that his work may prevent him from giving as much time to the position as would be required.

The committee will meet soon to begin work and lay plans for the fifth annual Student-Faculty day celebration. No definite date has been selected yet for the event, but the affair will probably take place sometime during the latter part of April.

REPRESENTATION

This is the first time co-chairman, a boy and a girl, have been named for the occasion Brooks Patten, president of the YMCA, declared that this was done so as to allow complete representation of the men and women students, since each group has its own student body and organizations which operate independently.

Wales and Miss Cruikshank have stated that an attractive and varied program is being planned which is expected to arouse more interest from both the students and the faculty than has been evidenced in the past.

W & M Debaters To Be Here Soon

Bill McCachren, secretary of the debate squad, announced to the squad at their Wednesday night meeting that the girls' debating team of William and Mary has accepted the invitation to debate here Sunday, March 5.

Washington and Lee's squad has replied that it will be unable to arrange a debate with the University team. McCachren said that he expects to hear soon from West Virginia university.

The remainder of the meeting was taken up with a consideration of the armament question, which will be one of the queries that the team will debate, and a lively discussion took place.

this weapon, will combine with sophomore hopeful Bob Harrington to defensively compete against the unusually competent Maryland sabre outfit.

Atop the all-star Terp squad is Captain Abrams, leading three-weapon fencer in the South. Abrams last year led the Maryland swordsmen throughout the season. The Old Liners are composed of mostly two and three weapon fencers, presenting a queer combination. Bob Neiman, Middle Atlantic sabre leader since he won the title in 1937, is the outstanding one-weapon fencer on the team, leading the sabre group.

The Maryland fencers will take to the strips at the Hill tomorrow with this afternoon's hard-fought meet under their belts while Carolina will be fencing their opener. From the indications displayed here today, the Blue and White is bound to bump into a great deal more opposition than they expect.

There will be no admission to the meet.

POLITICOS THINK DAVIS WILL ACCEPT BOTH NOMINATIONS

Track Star Leaves For New York With Issue In Doubt

Whether or not Jim Davis, nominated by both political parties on the campus for presidency of the student body, will accept either of the nominations in preference to the other was a matter of conjecture on the campus yesterday.

Davis, meanwhile, could not be personally contacted to clarify the situation as he left early Thursday afternoon for New York as a member of the University relay team which competes in the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden today.

Chairman Studie Ficklen of the University party, however, expressed his conviction that Davis will accept his party's nomination.

BRITT
Mitchell Britt, head of the opposing Student party, said that, although he had not obtained a definite statement from the nominee, he had spoken to him on the campus before he left for New York, and that Davis had thanked him for the nomination. Britt said that he had concluded from the hurried conversation with the nominee that Davis intended to recognize the Student party's nomination.

On the campus, where the topic was discussed in groups of mixed political affiliations, the general belief was that Davis will accept both nominations without party discrimination.

Law-Med Dance Date Set For Next Week-End

The series will include a Friday evening dance, a Saturday afternoon tea dance, and a dance on Saturday evening. The orchestras of Jeep Bennett and Freddy Johnson will play for the affair.

Due to the occurrence of Mid-Winter dances and a reading of "Enoch Arden" scheduled to take place tomorrow night in Graham memorial, and several other campus activities, the weekly Amateur Night will be postponed until the usual time Sunday week.

Holders of both a Student Entertainment pass book and a Playmaker season ticket, who do not wish two reserved seats, may apply for thirty-five cents refund, obtainable through Wednesday at 314 South building or at Memorial hall on the nights of production.

"ENOCH ARDEN" TO BE REPEATED

Reading To Be Given By Mrs. Schinhan

In response to numerous and persistent requests for a repetition of a reading of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" which was given two years ago by Mrs. J. P. Schinhan, it has been announced that the program will be repeated tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in Graham memorial. Mrs. Schinhan will be accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Benjamin Swalin and on the Hammond organ by J. P. Schinhan.

WELL RECEIVED

The program was enthusiastically received at its last presentation and requests for a repetition have been so numerous and insistent that a very large audience is expected. Plans have been made for an appropriate setting in the main lounge of Graham memorial and the program has been timed so as to begin just before dusk and continue until after dark. Set to music by Richard Strauss and presented in a serious vein, the program is expected to be one of the most beautiful presented here this year.

Statistical Exhibit On View At Library

The University library staff has just completed a display which is now on exhibit in the showcases of the library.

Mid-Winters Well Underway As—

Scribe Says Miller Et Al Tear 'Em Down At Concert

By BILL RHODES WEAVER

Glenn Miller and his slap-happy crew tore 'em down at the concert in Hill music hall yesterday afternoon in spite of several little things which went wrong.

First, the concert was delayed about 12 minutes because the truck bearing the equipment was mired in the mud at the Tin Can. The public address system, long in being set up, couldn't quite "take it" and gave up the ghost about half way through the program.

After announcing the difficulties of getting the band, Billy Worth, secretary-treasurer of the German club, settled down to a normal heart beat; Dr. Jan Philip Schinhan and Freddie Johnson lent a hand, and all went well from then on.

BLONDE SINGER

Students and townspeople joined in the merry making and applauded in rhythm with the music. Marion Huton, the blonde singer, dished it out right nicely, giving the jitterbugs

JIM JOYNER ACTS AFTER CRITICISMS OF PAST EDITION

Whitehead Medical Society Adds Voice To Those Protesting

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

Jim Joyner last night appointed a committee to investigate the present status of the Carolina Buccaneer and "determine its place, if it has a place, in our student activities; and if so, some of the limits in which it should function."

The committee, composed of Bob Magill, chairman, Tim Elliot, Voit Gilmore, Allen Merrill, Dean Bradshaw, Fred Weaver, and Dean Spruill, will hear opinions of students and organizations concerning the magazine, study criticisms, make any further investigations necessary, and then make recommendations to either the Student council, student legislature, or the editor of the Buccaneer himself which will be a consensus of opinion of the students, townspeople, and administration.

MED STUDENTS SHOCKED

Adding its voice to those protesting against the past issue of the Buccaneer, the Whitehead Medical society, in speaking of the photographs of the 'stiffs,' issued statement declaring "that the medical students were both shocked and angered when the pictures of the dead appeared in print in the magazine which is supposedly an example of what we think funny."

T. G. Thurston, president of the society, stated:

"The students of the medical school in a meeting passed a motion that their attitude be made known regarding the publication of the cadaver pictures in the Buccaneer."

"After having worked with these cadavers we have learned to respect them at all times, even though they are the only remnants of individuals who had neither friends nor graves. Through them we learn the structure of the human body which is so essential to medical practice."

"Thus we were both shocked and angered when we saw that not only supposedly humorous photographs had been taken of these dead, but that, worse still, someone with a strangely distorted and debased sense of humor

'39 Teams May Meet In Murphey Hall

Dr. John Booker, who teaches Victorian literature in Murphey hall, recently asked his class how much time they spent on his course each night. After much reluctance and beating around the bush, members of the class finally admitted that they devoted an average of 15 minutes to Victorian lit. "My my," exclaimed Dr. Booker, "this will never do. Before I know it, the athletes will be registering for my course."

something to remember her by. Ray Eberle did a few numbers among them "My Reverie" which went over in a big way.

Embellishing the soloists were arrangements of the brass choir, Miller handling a trom himself most of the time. Winning high praise was the sweet rendition of "Londonderry Air" with muted trombones and clarinets, and the pianist doing his part adequately.

WRECKING CREW

Trumpeters held their own with hot presentations, and the drummer man and the bass fiddle boy beat it out in wrecking crew fashion.

The German club has requested no flowers be sent for the danees, and has asked that dates receiving flowers leave them at home.

Following the concert, a tea dance was held in the beautifully decorated Tin Can from 4:30 to 6:30. The junior prom, held last night from
