CPU Obtains Bailey, Graham, Rust For Town Hall Meeting Broadcast From Memorial Hall

Program Scheduled For March 30 Over National Hook-Up

By JIM McADEN

The Carolina Political union yesterday announced three of the speakers which it has obtained for the Town Hall Meeting of the Air broadcast from the University's Memorial hall March 30, which will be sponsored by the union.

The speakers, who will spend 30 minutes in discussing the program's topic: "Is the South Our Number One Economic Problem?" are Senator Josiah Bailey of North Carolina, Dr. Frank Graham, and John Rust, co-inventor of the cotton picking machine.

VARIED VIEWS

Bailey, a Democrat in Congress, will be expected to take the conservative Southerner stand on the program, Dr. Graham the liberal, while Rust will present his ideas from a national viewpoint.

The program, presented every week over the National Broadcasting Company network, will begin at 9:30 p. m. Thursday night and will last for one hour. The second half of the program will be taken up by two open-forum discussions, one of 20 minutes from Chapel Hill, the other of 10 minutes from the audience in New York City's Town Hall.

This broadcast will be a part of the Human Relations institute program, which will begin its week of lectures and forums the same night in Memorial hall. Miss Dorothy Thompson, noted speaker and newspaper columnist, will precede the CPU section of the program with the first of three Weil lectures.

CABINETS HOLD FINAL MEETING

Bodies Hear Vance, Culbreth, Friedrich

YM and YWCA cabinets met Monday night in separate groups for the last in a series of discussion meetings preparatory to the Human Relations institute.

Dr. J. M. Culbreth, Methodist minister, led the division on Business and Industry in a discussion of the common good and the place of the church in individual and civil liberties.

Dr. Rupert Vance of the Sociology department spoke to the groups on Education and the South. He discussed economic trends and the educational setup in the South, emphasizing the fact that leaders have the South for greater financial gain elsewhere.

In speaking to the group on International Relations, Dr. Werner Frederick, German professor, said that the time was not ripe for a league of nations and would not be until there was a united league of the states in Europe.

STATE YW-YMCA GROUPS ORGANIZE STUDENT CABINET

Delegates Dissolve Former Committee At Durham Meeting

Representatives from all college YM and YWCA's in the State, both Negro and white, officially organized the Student Christian Movement cabinet at a conference Sunday at the North Carolina College for Negroes in Durham. To effect the change, the former YM-YWCA State cabinet dissolved itself to create this more inclusive organization which is fundamentally inter-racial and will extend membership to the Christian group on any campus which has no YMCA as well as to collegiate YM-YWCA's. Prior to this meeting there had been no State wide organization or cabinet of the Negro YM and YWCA groups.

TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Brooks Patten, former chairman of the State cabinet and president of the University YMCA, was elected temporary chairman of the new movement until the spring conference at which nominees for the official staff will be suggested and a constitution presented.

Formation of the inter-racial organization marks the culmination of a series of meetings of the executive committee of the State cabinet with representatives from the Negro colleges. (Continued on page two)

History Of First UNC Courses Told

By GLADYS BEST TRIPP (Ed. Note: This is a first in a series of historical features which will be presented by Miss Tripp.)

The first plan for the course of studies at the University is remarkable in that it was far ahead of the times. Dr. Samuel McCorkle, a graduate of Princeton, who was chairman of the committee to plan the curriculum, drew up in the wilds of North Carolina a scheme for the first normal school in America and also for more practical instruction which all institutions of higher learning later adopted.

In 1794 Dr. McCorkle decided that, considering the poverty of the University, the instruction should consist of literature and science alone. The literature should include the study of languages, especially English; the acquisition of historical knowledge, ancient and modern; and Belles Lettres. Scientific studies would be confined to mathematics, natural philosophy, botany, and the theory and practice of agriculture best suited to the climate and soil of North Carolina. The committee thought that a library (Continued on last page)

Why To Raleigh This Afternoon . . .

. . . So that we may join in the parade of younger generations taking their stand for the promotion of health, education, and welfare of the people of the state;

So that the law-making mind of the legislature may see hidden behind their budgetary figures and committee reports the future well-being of the citizens of North Carolina;

So that those most vitally affected by appropriation slashes and revenue cuts may unite in a concerted effort to proclaim their conviction that an investment of the people's money in Public Education, Higher Education, Public Health, and Public Welfare repays a thousandfold.

So that the future taxpayers of the state may brand as a false economy that policy of government which believes that the least spending is the greatest saving;

So that the vicious cycle of ill-health, meager education, and poverty may not be allowed to perpetuate itself;

So that the future citizens of North Carolina can make known their belief that the present is not the time to retreat in the face of these three menaces;

And so that public and higher education, health and welfare may be recognized as solid building blocks in the structure of the democracy that crumbles when the support of government is removed.

Di Leader Makes Inaugural Speech

"Viewing with pride and satisfaction the records made by former presidents of the Dialectic senate, my highest aim and desire is to preserve the dignity and honor which they have brought to the senate," Miss Louise Walker said to the senate last night in her inaugural address.

Miss Walker, who will be the second coed ever to hold the office of president of the senate, told the organization last night that the prestige of that group had declined since the days of James K. Polk and William R. Davie, former presidents, and that she would endeavor to find the reason for this decline. She suggested that the senate discuss present campus questions. However, President Walker said that as president she would try (Continued on last page)

Skeets Morris Band Will Furnish Music For Three Affairs

Harry Winkler, president of the sophomore class dance committee, announced last night that the class dances will be held March 24 and 25 and that Skeets Morris and his orchestra have been engaged to furnish music for the occasion.

The first dance will be held from nine until one o'clock on the night of March 24 and will be followed the next day by a tea dance in the afternoon from 4 until 7 and the final dance that night from 9 until 12 o'clock. The dance held Saturday night will be a Grail dance but the same orchestra and decorations that were used by the sophomore class will be used by the Grail. During the past year the group has played at many summer resorts in the South including Myrtle Beach, Charleston, Isle of (Continued on last page)

Professor's Periodical Numbers Many Prominent Persons Among "Subscribers"

One periodical issued on the University campus has now entered its third year and yet has but 12 pages to its credit. Though it has been issued 12 times, its appearance has been so erratic that only twice has it appeared in corresponding months of different years.

Moreover, with a circulation running into 100 copies of each issue, more than 12 per cent go to England, perhaps the greatest proportion of foreign circulation of any publication in Chapel Hill.

NO MONEY

Nor is this all. No one subscribes to it; no one pays a cent for it; it has no advertisements; and yet it has been run at a handsome profit. The periodical is called "The Thor" (Continued on page two)

Students Will Leave From YMCA At 2

By CARROLL McGAUGHEY

Joining with the student bodies of the other two branches of the Greater University, and of high schools of Raleigh and elsewhere, Carolina students this afternoon will take part in a parade and assembly at Raleigh as an expression of their stand against proposed cuts in the appropriations for state educational institutions, public health, and public welfare agencies.

Charging that the economy bloc of the state legislature is practicing "false economy," students are calling the meeting as a protest to the curtailment of appropriations for vital state agencies.

Band Members Note!

The University band will take part in the "Youth Assembly" in Raleigh this afternoon. Uniforms are to be worn, as the band is to be the leading unit in the parade to be held in connection with this rally. A bus has been chartered which will leave Hill Music hall at 2 P. M. Please be prompt.

APPEALS MADE TO HAVE SPANISH EMBARGO LIFTED

Colleges Petition Aid From National Representatives

Rallying to the cause of democracy, some 200,000 students throughout the country are sending out nationwide appeals for the lifting of the embargo against Loyalist Spain in an effort to enable that country to defeat the fascist advance threatening the peace of the world.

From Boston to Los Angeles and from Chicago to Texas, participants in meetings and demonstrations have swamped United States senators and representatives with letters, cards, and telegrams, attempting to "speak for the conscience of America."

On the University campus concerted action has taken the form of meetings and the signing of cards addressed to members of Congress, and at other colleges (Continued on last page)

SENIOR ELEVEN BEGINS TRAINING

Groups Complete Plans For Game

The senior class, out to avenge the defeat handed them by the junior class on the football field last fall, will once more go into training and with determination attack their juniors on the basketball court of Woollen gymnasium. The combat will take place Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and promises to be what is called in fistic circles, a "grudge" fight.

Felix Markham, president of the senior class, announced that plans for the game were completed at a meeting of committees of both classes yesterday and that "Fish" Worley will be manager of the junior team while Bill McCachren will manage the seniors. All members of both classes who think (Continued on last page)

Smith Reported To Be Improving

Captain Fred C. Smith, 80-year old retired conductor of the "Carrboro Special," was reported resting more comfortably at Watts hospital last night following treatment for abdominal trouble.

The octogenarian was taken to the hospital Monday morning after his condition was reported more serious by his physician, Dr. B. B. Lloyd. He was taken ill about a week ago.

One of the oldest residents of the village, Captain Smith came to Chapel Hill with his bride, the former Miss Ida Westcott, in 1888. After serving with the Southern railroad on its local branch for nearly half a century, he was retired from active service a year and a half ago.

MOTORCADE AT 2

Chapel Hill students will leave the campus at 2 o'clock from the YMCA. Upon their arrival in Raleigh they will meet the other students taking part in the movement and parade past Capitol square to the Hugh Morson High school auditorium where they will hear student speakers from each of the institutions represented.

The owners of automobiles cooperating in the transportation of students to Raleigh will have their cars at the YMCA by 2 o'clock this afternoon. When the cars are filled, each driver will be given a check slip entitling him to five gallons of gas at Obie Davis' filling station in Chapel Hill. Bob Magill explained last night that the arrangement is made possible through the courtesy of Mr. Davis who is donating two of each five gallons to students taking part in the parade.

Parade Directions

Students leaving for Raleigh this afternoon:

- (1) Assembly at the YMCA at 2 o'clock.
- (2) Car owners will have their automobiles lined up on Cameron avenue in front of the YMCA by 2 o'clock. They will receive slips from parade marshal entitling them to five gallons of gasoline at Obie Davis' service station in Chapel Hill to pay for expenses of the trip.
- (3) As cars are filled by students they will leave for Raleigh immediately.
- (4) Entering Raleigh by Hillsboro street, drivers will see a large sign and parade marshal several blocks this side of the Capitol. The marshal will direct drivers to Halifax street, north of the Capitol, where the parade will be formed at 3:30.
- (5) Parade marshals will also direct drivers to parking places, distribute placards and banners, and give instructions to participants.
- (6) The University band will lead the procession through town to the Hugh Morson high school auditorium where brief addresses will be heard, and statements from the floor invited.
- (7) Following the assembly, students will disband and return to Chapel Hill with the same drivers who took them to Raleigh.

while Graham memorial is paying for the other three gallons. Magill, however, urged car owners to obtain enough gasoline for the trip before assembling at the YMCA and collect the free five gallons later in the week to avoid as much confusion as possible.

PARADE FORMATION

The parade will be formed at Raleigh under the supervision of parade marshals. It will be led by the University band to the Hugh Morson high school where the assembly will take place.

At the assembly, Jim Joyner, president of the University student body, will act as presiding officer. Bob Magill will address the group on "Higher Education in the State," followed by John Sims of the Hugh Morson High school who will speak in behalf of the Public Schools of the state, and Tom Thurston, president of the University medical school speaking on "Public Health and General Welfare in North Carolina."
