by BILL BEERMAN

The Tap Room of the Hotel Columbia was the general headquarters, for coaches, managers, and sportswriters during the Southern conference boxing tournament last week-end. After the final round Saturday night, even the boxers went there.

Famous fights are re-enacted over a stein or two of beer. Ole Timers, now handling college boxers, look back to the days of real he-men and million dollar gates. They realize college boxing today is a far cry from the sport as they knew it. And they are glad.

The tournament, held at Columbia on its 13th anniversary, stands as a shining example of the progress college boxing has made in its decade of existence. Three capable referees were used throughout, each checking on the other. All entrants were weighed in carefully, then given a thorough physical exam.

More than 35 bouts were fought—only three were won by TKO's.

Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, Maryland coach, beamed in fatherly manner on three champs and the team title when it was all over ... And boasted of the effectiveness of southpaw boxing ... At Maryland, ordinarily right-handed boys are taught to be left-handed—with obviously good results ... South Carolina had a protege of Tony Galento in the tourney ... Lou Carleo, 135-pounder who gave Benny Alperstein a tough time in the semi-finals, was raised in Orange, N. J., and boxed under Two-Ton's instruction ... Between every round, Carleo's seconds showed him a photo of Galento for inspirational purposes ...

Addison E. Warren, Duke's boxing coach, Carolina alumnus, and former two-year conference champ himself, announced that Ray Matulewicz was having his troubles ... Ray, or Matt Raymond in professional circles, was lightweight champion in '36 and '37 while at Duke ... He turned pro last year under Tommy Loughran, was recently suspended for falsifying his weight before a fight ... Now, about to be reinstated, he is breaking up with Loughran, the grand fighter of a few years back ... "A wealthy New York capitalist named Newton is taking Ray over," said Warren ... Loughran, Matulewicz, and gate receipts didn't come out in the right proportions ...

Jimmy Inskeep, Carolina student who was ineligible for the boxing team this year, bummed down to the conference meet—and caught a ride with Billy Conn, rapidly rising light heavyweight champion who has beaten Fred Apostoli twice ... Conn, 21 years old and driving a new Buick, was on his way to Miami ...

A prediction ... Next year's Carolina boxing team will sweep the conference clean ... Ronman loses not a single man next season ... His only worry is what to do with heavyweights Hubbard, Kimball, and Palanske ... He would like to create new weight divisions in the unlimited class ...

Bill McCachren will lead Carolina into the first tournament game against Clemson at Raleigh tonight at 9 o'clock.

White Phantoms Tackle Tigers At 9 In Final Game Of Evening

By SHELLEY ROLFE

Eleven Southern conference basketball teams, through with one of the most blistering campaigns in recent years, gather in Raleigh today for the start of the conference basketball tournament. Three games will be played tonight, four tomorrow, two in the semi-finals Friday and the inevitable finale Saturday.

Without any intention of repeating the feat of last year's team which was put out in the first round by Washington and Lee, Carolina plays Clemson at 9 o'clock tonight in the final game of the evening. VMI and Richmond battle at 7 o'clock, and State and Duke at 8 o'clock.

With Raleigh's Memorial auditorium again providing the setting, this year's tournament is expected to top all previous ones at the gate. Tickets are almost gone for tonight, tomorrow and Saturday while tickets for Friday were sold out a week ago. Tickets for tonight's added starter game went on sale yesterday and will continue on sale until game time.

Two tall young men adept in playing the same position and scoring points will hang the outcome of the Clemson-Carolina battle.

Clemson's tall 'un is Banks McFadden, who last year as a sophomore led Clemson into the tournament finals and made All-Conference forward only because Bob Spessard was still around at center. McFadden has brought the Clemson team back from a miserable start to a tourney berth.

ROUND ABOUT FACE

The Tigers opened the season by losing five out of their six conference games. Hope for getting into the tournament was almost abandoned, but suddenly Clemson, with McFadden leading the charge, did a round about face and won five out of their next six league games to finish the season at .500 and six and six.

Little more than a month ago, Carolina was apparently completely out of the tournament picture. But Glamack suddenly woke up to his burden as chief Tar Heel point maker and Carolina won six out of its last eight games to finish the league season with eight wins and eight losses. In one three game stretch during the spurt, George made 44 points.

At practice yesterday, Coach Walter Skidmore was strangely optimistic about the Tar Heel chances against the Tiger game. "There are eight teams with chances to win. I consider Carolina one of the eight. I don't know what Clemson has, I haven't seen them play this season. But earlier this year, Joe Davis, the Clemson coach, told me this was the best team he's ever had."

LINE-UP LISTED

The Tar Heels took a hard workout and, after practice, Skidmore announced the ten men going to Raleigh. They are: McCachren, Dilworth, Watson, Worley, Roberson, Glamack, Carr, Severin, Howard and Branson. As long as it remains in the tournament, the team will stay at the Bland hotel.

Beaten twice this season by Duke, State will try to get its first win over the Blue Devils and cool off the hot Dukes. The Devils, defending champions, got into the tournament by winning their last three games in a row after losing seven straight, to finish the season with seven and seven. State is the only team playing tonight that finished the season above .500, having won seven and lost six.

LUCKY DEVILS

Duke has Glenn Price, Ed Swindell and luck on its side. The Blue Devils got into last year's tournament by winning a coin toss and they promptly copped the thing. State has Bill Mann and Selby Jones.

To Richmond and VMI will go whatever honor there is in opening the tournament. Each team has won a game from the other by one point. The Keydets beat Richmond Saturday, 37-36, on a last minute goal by Ed Foster, threw five teams into a .500 tie, and made it necessary for the tournament committee to invite 11 schools instead of the usual eight. The Spiders are favored to win tonight.

Coed Fencers

All members of the coed fencing team invited to make the northern trip will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of 5 in the small lounge of Graham Memorial.

COACH JAMERSON, NOT OPTIMISTIC, TAKES TANKERS TO DUKE FOR MEET

Not expecting victory at all, Coach Dick Jamerson takes his varsity swimmers to Duke for a meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Tar Heels leave Woollen gym at 2:30.

The Blue Devils topped Carolina earlier in the season in a very convincing way, and since then Duke stars have led competition in AAU meets here and in Goldsboro. With Dickey in the diving, and Emmett, Jenkins and Moise swimming in the sprints, which are Carolina's strong events, Coach Jamerson isn't very optimistic.

Carolina closes its first season this week-end at Raleigh in the Southern conference tournament in which Clemson, Duke, Washington and Lee, VMI and Virginia Tech also will compete. Preliminaries are scheduled Friday and finals Saturday.

Non-Sorority Girls Down Sorority Six

Led by Martha Mills and Anne Moore, the non-sorority girls' basketball team triumphed over the sorority girls' sextet, 39-26, yesterday afternoon in Woollen gym to avenge a beating earlier in the season. Taking the lead early in the game, the non-sorority team easily outplayed their opponents.

Shiller an excellent opportunity to brush up on his aggressive fencing. Harrington, attempting to polish up his defense, fenced well.

After this afternoon's workout, which is expected to be a long and hard one, the team will not take up weapons again until the Monday morning before the Terp contest.

Turkish women live longer than men, according to an official report issued at Angora, but emancipation has shortened their lives.

State-Duke Opponents

Bob O'Mara, left, and Bill Mann, right, will oppose each other at forward tonight when State and Duke meet at 8 o'clock in the conference tournament.

Dorm Champs, Frat Titlists Play Today For Campus Crown

CAROLINA AAU HAS BRILLIANT CLOSE

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)
DURHAM, March 1.—Competing in four events, the Carolina AAU meets came to a brilliant close here tonight, as Duke, Carolina and State hung up impressive victories.

In the 100 yard breaststroke, Tar Heel Ross pulled through for one of the prettiest wins of the evening, taking the event by at least five yards in the good time of 1:11.7.

The 150 yard backstroke saw the closest race of the affair when Shepard of Duke nosed out Ingram of State by only a few seconds.

STATE WINS ONE

State's 400 yard relay team, by swimming only eight tenths of a second faster than Carolina, took its only first of the night.

The complete results are:
100-yard breaststroke—Ross (C) first; Morse (D) second; Johnson (D) third; and Woodhouse (C) fourth. Time—1:11.7.

150-yard backstroke—Shepard (D) first; Ingram (NCS) second; Scheenman (C) third; and Battle (D) fourth. Time—1:48.9.

100-yard free style—Goode (D) first; Barclay (C) second; Nash (C) third; and Lees (C) fourth. Time—:59.5.

400-yard relay—Bailey, Cox, White and Reynolds (NCS) first; B. Stone, Peters, Wilson and F. Stone (C) second; and Goode A. Shepard, V. Shepard, V. Shepard and Jenkins (D) third. Time—3:53.2.

Basketball squads representing BVP No. 1, dormitory champions, and Phi Kappa Sigma, fraternity titlists, will challenge the opening of the Southern conference basketball tourney for the attention of the Sport loving Carolina student this afternoon at 4 o'clock when they meet for the campus basketball title in Woollen gym.

The dormitory title holders are probably the best defensive team on the campus, and have at times during the season been very effective in the offensive department. Like the Phi Kappas, they, boast a perfect record of nine victories and no losses. The Phi Kappa Sigma team, paced by Jim Mallory, who has collected over a hundred points, has been the best offensive team on the campus, but its defensive work lags behind that of the dormitory squad. Both teams indicate that they are in tip-top shape and the game this afternoon should be the crowning affair of the season.

SPLASHERS

Intramural mermen took to the water in a fast manner yesterday afternoon in a semi-final meet which included five fraternity events and one dormitory race. Those that placed in these events will compete on Thursday at 5 o'clock in the finals.

Several events were not held yesterday. Contestants in the finals of these will be announced in Thursdays' paper. Those winning places in yesterday's events and who are eligible to compete in the finals of the same events on
