Nine Boys To Run In Maryland Meet

Climaxing one of the University's most successful indoor track seasons, nine men will represent Carolina in the University of Maryland's Fifth Regiment Indoor games to be held in Baltimore March 11.

The Tar Heels who will run are Tom Holmes, Harry March, Bill Vogler, Dave Morrison, Royce Jennings, Ed Hoffman, Bill Hendrix, Carleton White and Jimmy Davis. The Regiment games are divided into three fields of competition-intercollegiate, AAU, and special—and Carolina men will participate in each.

EVENTS TO BE RUN

Holmes, March and Vogler are entered in the intercollegiate mile, and Jennings and Hoffman in the 440. A one mile relay team whose members have not yet been picked also is en-

Glamack On All-Star

Big George Glamack, Carolina star center, though in his sophomore year, last night broke through as first choice of coaches and publicity men of six Southern Conference schools for the conference All-Star team.

Chosen to share berths on the team with Glamack, were Waller and Owen of Wake Forest as forwards, Knepley of Maryland, and Pinck of Washington and Lee as guards.

These selections are made on season's play, and not on Southern Conference tournament showing.

McFadden Disrupts Waller's Reputation

Wake Forest's dreams of a basketball empire built around the scoring prowess of curly-haired, left-handed gang of never-say-die basketball players from Clemson college led by Banks McFadden, all-conference center, who dropped in a crip shot in the last two minutes to play to give the Tigers a 30-28 victory.

The Deacon lead, none to secure in the first half and early parts of the second period, collapsed in the late portions of the game before the onslaught of the Tigers.

Behind 18-14 going into the second half, Clemson got within a point of the Deacons on two field goals by McFadden and one by Moorman. And then big Jim Flantham, six basketball players wide and three tall, made a field goal and a foul and Clemson was in front 23-22. McFadden added two more points to the Clemson total with a wisting field shot.

Waller and Fuller made baskets for scored. After the Spiders made a field Wake Forest, Young converted a free goal, Maryland made six more points toss, and Fuller made another to knot the game at 28-28.
