Walter explained.

BEEN AT IT EVER SINCE
Walter took the job in 1925 with the intention of keeping it only two weeks, but he's "been at it ever since." Walter continued by saying, "Some people think we buy bodies before they are dead, but we don't, we don't take anybody unless he is dead."

The new medical building will have a cold storage "vault" for the "stiffs" and Walter thinks he will like his job "a lot better." He will just have "to wax the bodies, wrap them up in cheese cloth, and hang them up in cold storage. It will be a lot cleaner, too," Walter added.

Big Track Year

cated this time in several other meets, ran :14.6 against Georgia and then popped off a :14.5 in the trials of the conference meet to tie the conference record. Seemingly not content with this, Wild Bill ran :14.3 in the conference finals last Saturday to equal the time that stood as an American college and AAU record when Coach Johnny Morris ran it some time ago.

Hendrix, having placed third in the Bishop Cheverus 1000-yard invitational run last winter at Boston, lowered the University half mile record three times. Against Duke he ran 1:54.1 to beat Williamson's school record by one tenth of a second. At Annapolis he ran 1:53.3, equalling the conference record set by Coleman Headley of Maryland last year. Hendrix ran 1:52.7 in this year's conference meet for a mark which probably won't be approached soon.

Davis' 4:14.2 mile was one of the fastest college miles run all spring, and broke Williamson's school record of 4:15.23 and the conference record of 4:15.7 set by Hubert "Red" Lewis of Duke, now Blue Devil coach, in 1933.

MARCH MARCHES ON
March this spring bettered two University records he set last year and also set two others. At Charlottesville against Virginia, the time he competed in only one event, March ran the low hurdles in 23.4 seconds to lower his old school record of :23.9. In the AAU meet he ran the 100-yard dash for the only time this year, and was timed in :9.8, which equalled the school and field record. In the same meet he ran the 440-yard hurdles in 54 seconds, one and one tenth seconds faster than the winning time in the 400-meter hurdles—nine feet shorter—at the Penn relays the day before. He concluded his record-breaking performances by high jumping 6 feet 1 1/4 inches in the conference meet to better his old University height of 6 feet 1 1/4 inches.

Royce Jennings and Tom Crockett set Fetzer field records, Jennings' time being also a University mark. Jennings ran his best race against Harold Johnson in the Carolina-Duke meet, running 48.6 seconds to beat Red Drake's record of :49.3 set in 1935. Crockett, having set the field record of 9.51 against Princeton last year, improved his record to 9:41.8 in the Tiger meet this year. In the Southern conference meet he ran 9:40.4 for a new conference record, and Fred Hardy, coming in second behind him, also bettered the old mark.

TEAM WELL BALANCED
These men were the stars all season, but all of the team must have been good in order to place in all but two events in the conference meet. This year's team was the best balanced team of all. Tom Holmes, who didn't run track until he came to college because his high school had no track, was the team's leading sprinter and one of the high scorers for the season. Having won the 70-yard low hurdles in the ining recommendations as to where emphasis should be placed; to evaluate the Council's procedure in violations of the honor system and the campus code; to consider the thoroughness and fairness of investigation, the basis of decisions, the types of discipline, the method of follow-up, and recommend changes or approval of those techniques, and act as an interpreter of council procedure and action to the student body; to study the council policy of secrecy in honor system cases and make recommendations.

The second phase of the proposals deals with policy in student government. The suggestion read: to study the possibility of students having some say in the formation of curricular policy, and to recommend what fields and techniques might best be used first; to study the relation of fraternity self-government and administration policy; to consider the values or lack of values in our present form of class organization and make recommendations if changes are considered wise; to investigate the status and use of student fees and make recommendations as to their use or changes in amount; and to attempt to make students realize that fees are self-imposed and they are our form of taxation.

door games, he was Carolina's only sure threat in the dashes, and also helped out in the 220 low hurdles when needed. Chuck Slagle and Bob Weinberger led the shot putters and threw better this year than the throws of last year's team. Neither of them was able to approach Evins' distance, but they did well against their opposition. Weinberger, showing an improvement of three feet over his throws last year, took the only first in the shot put all season in the Navy meet and put Carolina into the lead in that meet, which had been figured as the team's toughest of the year.

Joe Hilton, the only Carolina man throwing the javelin until late in the season, threw 191 feet 2 1/4 inches to take second in the conference for the second straight year. Jim Richards, having hurt his arm in the opening meet, placed in the conference javelin event, but his best event was the discus, in which he had the best throw of the year for the Tar Heels. March, in addition to setting his four University records, turned in the best performance in a fifth event—the broad jump. He jumped 22 feet 8 1/4 inches at the Florida relays, better than any other broad jump performance all year. Jim Piver and Red Sanders led the pole vaulters, both doing 11 feet several times and Piver getting a tie for the first place at that height in the Georgia meet.

Now that the Lower Quadrangle will have two new dorms added on to it, the section will henceforth be known as the Lower Sextangle. . . . Julian Hayes, who labors in the reserve room and behind the main circulation desk, has become so identified with the library that people just look at him on the street and exclaim, "Oh hell, I forgot! I've got a book overdue again." . . . Eloise Parrish (her first name is Mabel, but it's your life if you call her that) is the only coed in four years who ever got past first base with Hal Bissett. . . . The June issues of Harpers, Scribners and Atlantic Monthly all contain stories by the late Thomas Wolfe, which should put the finances of his most ardent admirer and imitator, Frank Holeman, at a decidedly low ebb. . . . Bill Ray claims that, outside of going with each other, he and Altajane Holden have done nothing that would make good copy. Altajane refused to comment. . . . And then there's the red-headed coed who relaxes so effectively that her boy friends have awarded her the nickname of "Mattress."

ADIEU, KIND FRIENDS, ADIEU

Since this is the last "Small Fry" of the year, we wish to make the following acknowledgments:

To Nell McIntyre for making us aware what a fundamentally elemental creature man really is.

To Virginia Giddens for being the butt of so many of our choicest cracks, half of which never should have been made. Although she has taken it all much too seriously, she bore the stigma of being married to us with surprising good grace. We sincerely regret the discomfort we've caused her and hope that someday she will manage to think a little better of us than she does now.

To Gilbert McCutcheon who had a long interview with us about his fraternity and managed to act like a perfect gentleman, although he felt like wringing our neck.

To Doris Goerch for her verbal surprises. Every time she opens her mouth, out comes first-rate copy.

To that attractive third-floor Spencer brunette with the independent mind and the trim ankles (this narrows down the field considerably) who taught us that there's no sense trying to win a girl when her heart belongs to someone else—no matter how distant or indifferent that someone else may be.

To our editor for sticking by us in our hour of need.

Amen!
