INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL RELEASES NEW RUSH RULES

One Regulation Added; Others Remain The Same

With the addition of a rule forbidding the presence of girls in fraternity houses during rushing periods, and a few other minor changes, the 1939 rules for rushing, as released by the Interfraternity council yesterday, are identical with those of last fall.

The rushing period will open September 24, and continue until October 4. From the time that the freshmen arrive in Chapel Hill until September 24, which includes Freshman Week, rushing of any kind is forbidden. A one-day period of silence will also be observed on Saturday, September 30, to avoid interference with a varsity football game, and another silent period will be in effect from the close of rushing activities Wednesday, October 4, until pledging day, October 6.

FIRST DAY

Rushing for the first day, September 24, as in the past will be done only by invitation. During this day rushing shall be restricted to fraternity houses. Cards will be distributed to the fraternities on which they are to write the full name, the home, and in every possible case the local address of the freshmen whom they wish to come to their houses this day. The cards are to be handed to the Dean of Students through the secretary of the Interfraternity council.

UNIVERSITY CLUB HEARS FAIRLEY ATTACK "SPIRIT"

Former President Of Student Body Raps Daily Tar Heel

Eighty members of the University club last night at their annual banquet heard Francis Fairley, former president of the student body, attack the "poor spirit" shown both by the student body in regard to athletic contests and by the editors and writers of the DAILY TAR HEEL in criticizing, without justification, campus organizations.

Fairley was principal speaker at the banquet given by the new members of the club in honor of the outgoing group. He offered several suggestions by which the club might improve existing conditions on the campus and carry on the work of former members. He advised his listeners to aid in the improvement of gentlemanly conduct on the campus, to work for clean sportsmanship, and to continue their fine

CHEMISTRY HEAD TO TAKE POSITION IN OHIO INSTITUTE

Dr. Edward Mack, Jr. Ends Four Years Of Service To UNC

Dr. Edward Mack, Jr., head of the University chemistry department, will terminate his four-year service September 1 and take up new duties in Columbus, Ohio, sorry to leave, he says, because he likes "Chapel Hill and all the friends I have made here."

Dr. Mack, who has been associated with the University since the fall of 1935, will be employed at the Battelle Institute, an organization for industrial research in the Ohio city.

PRESENT PLANS

At present he plans to remain in Chapel Hill during the summer months to wind up his business in the chemistry department. His wife and three children will leave for Columbus the latter part of June in order to establish a home there. Mrs. Mack is a native of Columbus.

Born in Goldsboro in 1893, Dr. Mack studied at Centre college, the Sorbonne of Paris, the University of Chicago and took his M.A., B.A., and Ph.D. at Princeton. During the World War he served in the chemical warfare service of the AEF, becoming lieutenant, captain, and major in order. He has taught at the University of West Virginia and Ohio State University, meanwhile being an assistant editor of Chemical Abstracts and a member of the National Research Council. He is a fellow in both the Guggenheim and American Physical societies.

Among the fraternities in which Dr. Mack was active during his service to the University are the Phi Kappa Phi and the Phi Chi.

NEW UNC POWER, HEATING PLANT BONDS ARE SOLD

$250,000 Worth Of Bonds Bring Low 2.736 Rate

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of bonds have been sold to finance a new electric power and heating plant, to be located near the University laundry. The plant will furnish electric power and heating not only to satisfy the present needs of the University, but also any future needs.

The 2.736 rate received on the bonds is the lowest ever recorded for revenue sales at the University. A bidding was held May 16, and a 2.931 rate was received. But, upon a check on the figures, it was revealed a mistake had been made, and all bids had to be rejected. Last Tuesday's sale saw an even lower rate obtained.

COOPERATION

In financing the new plant, the University is being aided by both the state and the Public Works administration. The PWA is furnishing $315,540 of the total cost, while the state has contributed $135,828 to the assistance of the building. The total cost of the electric power and heating structure will be $701,368.

One of the main features of the new plant will be a turbo-generator. The machine consists of a generator and turbine-like top. High-pressure steam is entered into the turbine, turning it around, generating electricity. The steam is then let off on the other side, still compressed enough to heat the whole campus. A double use is therefore employed in providing both electric power and heat.

40 UNC Students Plan To Attend Blue Ridge Meet

With 40 delegates from the University attending, the annual Blue Ridge YM and YWCA will take place from June 8-17 in the mountains in the western part of the state. About 500 students from 125 different colleges will gather to attend the meeting and bring closer co-operation between the "Y" groups of the South.

Most of the officers and the committee chairmen of the YM and YWCA, as several of the cabinet members are expected to go. Harry Comer, retiring director of the University YMCA also extended a welcome to all other students who "are definitely interested, especially officers and leaders of campus activities."

INTERESTED?

All students wishing to journey up to Blue Ridge with the group should call at the YMCA office, obtain full information, and leave their names and addresses. The director will write to the delegate's parents explaining the

Students Enroll In Dramatic Art Summer Courses

High school students from as far north as New York, as far west as Michigan, and as far south as Florida are already enrolled for the summer session in dramatic art for high school students at the University during the first summer term, June 8 to July 18.

There were 70 boys and girls from this and many other states enrolled in the course here last year. This year, however, the enrollment is being limited to 50.

Directed by John W. Parker, executive secretary of the Carolina Dramatic association and business manager of the Carolina Playmakers, the session will consist of courses in dramatic literature, playwriting, scenery and lighting and voice and diction.

A number of outstanding specialists in these fields will be instructors and advisers. Among them will be Dr. Frederick H. Koch, founder and director of the Carolina Playmakers and head of the University department of dramatic art, who will act as consultant for the session.

Paul Green, who is now professor of

PLAYMAKERS GIVE FIFTEENTH CAPER

Program To Feature "Congo" Tomorrow

Featuring a dance interpretation of Vachel Lindsey's poem, "The Congo," the Playmakers will present their fifteenth annual Caper in the Playmaker theater tomorrow night at 8:30. The rest of the program will be made up of short skits, plays, songs, and burlesque improvisations, and the awards for the year will also be made at this time.

"The Congo" will be presented by members of Mrs. Ora Mae Davis's dancing class. Mrs. Davis has worked out the choreography to a choral reading of the poem by a chorus trained by Earl Wynn. Wynn has recorded the reading with drum accompaniments and the records will be played over the amplifying system in the theater.

THREE SECTIONS

The poem is divided into three sections: the first showing the Negro as basically savage; the second allows the irrepressible spirits of the race to break through; and the third depicts their hope in religion.

Three groups of masks and costumes will be used. The costumes, designed by Mrs. Davis are very primitive in the first section, bizarre in the second, and conventional and realistic in the third.

The presentation of the Playmaker masks for outstanding contributions in acting, stagecraft, and playwriting, of the Roland Holt cup for excellence in playwriting, and the Playmaker plaque for excellence in acting and technical work will be made.

Wm. Bankhead, Visiting Here, Discusses War, Taxes, Fish

Visitor Predicts July Adjournment For Congress

By BILL RHODES WEAVER
Relaxing with his coat off and old-fashioned "galluses" showing, Speaker of the House William Bankhead, thinking about the international situation, said he is "more at ease" since the arrangement of a "tentative agreement" among England, France and Russia.

Admitting that the Munich conference had him worried, Speaker Bankhead placed confidence in the action of France and England in increasing their armaments. However, he would not venture an opinion on what might be expected from Hitler or Mussolini within the next few months.

CONGRESS

Congress, he said, will probably be in session until the middle of July. He accounted for the long session because of the large program yet to be considered. House bills will deal with the social security act, and the house ways and means committee will consider the tax bill, of which the so-called "nuisance" taxes are important since many of them will expire July 1. The main consideration will be a means by which the present revenue income may be kept from reduction.

A deterrent tax, dealing with the distribution of private profits, will be on the house program.

PROUD PAPA

Turning from the nation's capital, Speaker Bankhead remarked that the play in which his daughter, Tallulah, is starring, "The Little Foxes," "seems to be quite a hit . . . I think her plan is to take it on tour after its Broadway run."

The former Alabama football player is particularly interested in his alma mater . . . Will possibly visit Wallace Wade at Duke . . . played baseball at 'Bama.

After stretching and getting more comfortable in the camp chair, Speaker Bankhead commented on the University: "We hear about the University

THREE COMPANIES GIVEN CONTRACTS FOR NEW BUILDING

Entire Structure To Be Occupied By Zoology Department

Contracts on the new zoology building, totaling $149,650, were granted to three companies yesterday by the administration. All awards are subject to the approval of the Public Works administration which is jointly financing the building.

The new three-story structure will be erected at the intersection of the Raleigh and Pittsboro highways. Construction is to begin next Monday, and is to be concluded within 165 days from that date. The zoology department, now housed in Davie hall will take over the complete building, which will be equipped with offices, laboratories, and classrooms.

CLASSES

Classes will be held in the new building beginning in the winter quarter of 1940. Upon entering the 144 foot long by 59 foot wide structure, the zoology department will leave the entire Davie hall to the Botany department, which has expressed its lack of facilities at the present time.

The contracts were awarded to the company bidding the lowest in each case. Bids were granted on the general contract, the plumbing contract, and the heating and refrigeration con-

New Photographic Association Gives First Exhibition

Organized last fall, the University Photographic association now has on display in Person hall and the lobby of Hill Music hall the first exhibit of the organization to be shown on the campus.

The exhibit includes photographs by Mrs. Bayard Wootton, Miss Josephine Sharkey, S. W. J. Welch of the Bureau of Vocational Information, Dr. D. A. MacPherson of the medical school, Paul E. Shearin of the physics department, and J. A. Joyce. Those on display in the Person hall are gallery were chosen by the art committee of the association and those in Hill Music hall were selected at random from the pictures submitted.

Membership in the society, of which Welch is president, is open to students, faculty members, and townspeople. The exhibit will remain open to the public through Commencement.

Yackety Yacks Are Still Available

There are still a few more Yackety Yacks to be distributed. Those who have not yet received theirs may get them by calling by the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial this afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock.

GRAHAM SPEAKS BEFORE BOARD ON IMMIGRATION

University Prexy Advocates Admission Of Refugee Children

Speaking before the immigration committee of the House of Representatives in Washington Wednesday, President Frank P. Graham endorsed a proposal to admit 20,000 refugee children from Germany into this country.

Graham, one of several witnesses testifying before the committee in behalf of the proposal, said that it would be most unfortunate if the United States became a stronghold for bigotry instead of a haven for the persecuted and oppressed.

The bill, asserted the president, would affect Catholics, Jews and Aryans.

First Trumpeter Tompkins Is A Doctor Of Medicine; Band Will Play Here Next Friday

When you hear the swinging jive rhythms of Jimmie Luncford and his orchestra at the Tin Can during the second day of the Finals set next Friday don't jump at the conclusion that swing music is just a lot of notes thrown together by a crew of wild, un-musically instrumentalists.

As a matter of fact, 10 of the boys in the band are college graduates and one, Eddie Tompkins, the first trumpeter, is a Doctor of Medicine. Aside from that, they are students of music.

Jimmie builds a case for his theory that swingsters are good musicians with the following facts: when Arturo Toscanini was building his NBC symphony orchestra and found he lacked a few key instrumentalists, he went to Paul Whiteman for Sam Lewis, trombonist; to Fred Waring for Donald Bryan, trumpeter; and to Tommy Dor-

Junior Playmaker Organization

Here are the Junior Playmakers at the University. They are high school students from this and many other states who have organized a junior edition of Dr. Frederick H. Koch's famous drama group and who will get down to work on playwriting, acting, directing and other phases of dramatic art when the summer session in dramatic art for high school students gets under way June 8 and continues through July 18. In the front row in the above photo Dr. Koch is seen in the white suit smiling at a young high schooler. Next to her is John W. Parker, business manager of the Playmakers, who is again directing the high school session here.
