THE CENTRAL POSTOFFICE

Student Advisory Committee Goes Into Action

The Student Advisory committee, which has been working on the central postoffice plan all fall, endeavoring to get campus sentiment on the proposal, has made a very comprehensive report of advantages and disadvantages.

It has asked for more time before a decision is made to further ferret out the student's thought.

It expressed the opinion, however, that, since it believed the new mail distribution set-up would be beneficial to the University as a whole, it would be wise to install boxes in the basement of South building.

The committee believes the following advantages would result: 1) reduction of the cost of mail service (to the University); 2) better boxes, preventing easy access (the committee says) by those other than the box-holders; 3) improved mail service, four mails a day instead of two, with distribution on Saturday afternoons and Sundays; 4) quieter and cleaner first floors; and 5) the central location of the proposed site.

The committee admits three disadvantages: 1) box rent of ten cents per month to dormitory residents; 2) less convenient location of the proposed site; 3) increase of "traffic" around South building.

On the latter point, the committee feels that something can and will be done to alleviate this "traffic jam"—but "something" is indefinite. Ask the would-be budget balancers.

After sufficient time for more discussion, a vote of the students will be taken. Unless a decided opposition is shown, the central postoffice will be installed—BUT, since fraternity residents will not be affected by the plan, we can see no reason for this voting on the issue.

Frankly, we feel the committee, in its effort to cooperate with the wishes of the administration, has minimized the disadvantages and exaggerated the advantages. (Nor do we forget that it is the administration which makes the final decision).

It is not likely that the residents of the quadrangles, "K," "H," or the four women's dormitories will like to trudge to South building twice each day for mail. And who studies at the mail hours anyway? (Reference to the de-noise advantage).

We cannot deny that the central postoffice would reduce the cost of mail service to the University. 1) The students are paying the freight; 2) janitors' time, spent going to and from the South building offices, would be saved.

Perhaps from the assistant comptroller's point of view, he who deals in dollars and cents, the central postoffice would be a fine, money-saving innovation.

But the DAILY TAR HEEL, as student representative, cannot forget that most University service branches, the dining hall, the buildings department (?), and the Book Exchange (??????), are for the student's welfare.

There's still not much sense in robbing Peter to pay his brother Paul.

CAROLINA COMMENTARY

BY JOHN ANDERSON

SEEN 'ROUND THE HILL...

Lengthy lines at Swain, Jr., and somewhere almost hidden can be spotted Dr. Graham and Louis Graves—Betcha they are most impressed with the number of students who eat at the new dining hall than they are the food. . . . Dexter Freeman's absence from behind the circulation desk of the Library—Said he vacationed with flu for a week in the Infirmary. . . . Many men moving machinery, etc., from the audit department of South building to Swain hall—Hope they don't move the cashier's office away from the center of the campus, too. . . . Law students burning the midnight oil cramming for exams given this week—Good luck, boys! . . . Gibby Jackson looking well pleased over his selection of records played daily in Graham Memorial—Wonder how he'd look if he had a mike to announce each number? . . . And, also seen each night is a full moon almost made—Uh—Uh. . . .

DEAR J. A.,

I have a girl friend, Ophelia Rumpstein, who was very much disappointed that Shelley Rolfe failed to do homage to the idol of us coeds in Saturday's TAR HEEL. Imagine calling Dogbreath Grainger, Dodbread! And J. A., Ophelia and all the other able sexed sisters of our sex, want to know why all the horrid SAE boys make fun of Ike, for he seems so reticent and so sincerely interested in bringing about more relations with the coeds. I can truthfully say that there is no stronger, no more pungent personality on the campus than, Dogbreath Grainger.

Your girl Friday

THIS GUY POOSHING...

For five years one referee labelled "Pooshing" has been officiating most of Carolina's basketball games. For five years students have boomed more of his decisions than any referee's. For five years editorials, letters, etc., have condemned the students for the manner in which they tell "Mr. Pooshing" they don't agree with him. There's another side of the problem; can't the Athletic association get someone else to call at least a few of the games?

I WAS TOLD...

That Mary Simms Oliphant, campus beauty queen—according to the boys in the Library, broke her ankle while skiing in the alps last year. . . . That Horace Williams, the white-coated elderly gentleman often seen about, was the second person to register in the University after the Civil War. If he could have beaten his brother running up the hill to the registrar's office, he would have been first. . . . That every member of the glee club must have access to a full-dress outfit. . . .

LEFT IN THE COLD...

Tears oozed into the eyes of the clean-shaven sophomore as he searched desperately for his new coat among those hanging on the racks in Swain hall. . . . The coat wasn't there. And there would be no Christmas holiday in the near future so he could work and save enough money to buy another. But today, one week later, he feels that someone picked up his coat by mistake and will return it to the rack it was taken from. We hope he's right; We know he is wrong. . . .

Under No Censor

By DON BISHOP

North Carolina State college is going to bring subsidization out of its groundhog existence and let the entire system see the light of day. So reads an announcement from a prominent State alumnus who is president of the Wolfpack club, a group formed to provide scholarships to athletes.

"We believe that the time has come for athletic scholarships to be placed on a business-like basis, open and above-board from every standpoint. And that is exactly what we are going to do," the announcement declares.

Scholarships are to be awarded, the president says, on the basis of (1) the athlete's academic record in high or prep school, (2) his character and standing in his home community, (3) his ambition for an education, and (4) his ability as an athlete. Money for the scholarships will be furnished by loyal alumni.

Under No Censor favors such a standardization of help for athletes. Some Carolina athletes are aided. That fact is seldom denied. And certainly we would not begrudge them any aid they receive. If an alumnus wishes to help a deserving boy and at the same time help his Alma Mater's athletic team, no hindrance should be placed in the way.

But unless there is standardization of subsidization, there is danger that the entire set-up may collapse, with dissent in the ranks of the athletes as the motivating factor. When one athlete receives all expenses plus spending money, while another, just as deserving and equally as good, or at least equally as sincere in his team spirit, receives no help, sooner or later there is likely to be trouble.

Under No Censor makes no pretensions to being an athletic observer and commentator. But no deep insight is required to realize that an unbalanced subsidization system is an unsound one.

Subsidization is an established part of collegiate athletics. It cannot be swept away with idealistic by-laws; that was tried once, and the failure is a matter of record. Let's welcome subsidization. But at the same time, lay down regulations, such as State's Wolfpack club does, and the system will not bog down of its own weight.
