Debate Tryouts Set For Tonight In Grail Room

Tryouts will be held tonight at 8:45 in the Grail room of Graham Memorial for two debates to be held in the near future with Emory university and William and Mary college, according to Walter Kleeman, president of the debate council.

Both debates are on the same subject, the Pi Kappa Delta question, "Resolved, that the United States should follow a policy of strict isolation toward all nations outside the western hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict."

In each contest, the University's debaters will uphold the same side, the affirmative. The first debate will be here at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of February 21 with Emory university. On Friday evening, February 23, Carolina's forensic representatives will debate two opponents from the Women's college of William and Mary.

All those members of the debate squad who wish to try out for these two debates should prepare five-minute speeches, according to Kleeman. They should be on the affirmative side of the above question.

After the two contests mentioned above, the debate squad will engage in another on March 1, this time with George Washington university on the question, "Resolved, that the United States should withdraw from the Orient." The University has the negative side of that question.

Two Local Youths Arrested For Several Overcoat Thefts

Two Seized Friday Are Released Under $500 Bond

Two youths, Hoyle McBane, 20, a former student at the University and a graduate of the Chapel Hill high school, and Thomas W. Lacock, 19, of Carrboro, were arrested last Friday night by Chapel Hill police who allege that the boys had in their possession three overcoats stolen from the University campus, Chief W. T. Sloan announced last night.

Both were released under $500 bond and were to have been tried in municipal court today, but their case was continued for one week by Judge A. C. McIntosh.

Sloan said that officers on his force had been watching the boys for several days prior to the arrest, and had trailed them Friday night when they started for Durham in McBane's automobile. They were arrested about halfway between Hillsboro and Durham, Sloan said, and the stolen goods were found in the car.

THREE MORE COATS

Following the arrest, the officers were able to trace three more coats to a Durham pawn shop where they were confiscated. Sloan said that the boys readily admitted the stealing of five coats from the campus but denied having stolen anything else.

In case the owners of the coats value them at less than $20, the boys will be tried in the municipal courts for a misdemeanor, but if the coats are valued at more than that amount, the cases will be turned over to state courts as felonies, Sloan said.

Chief Sloan also reported the ar-

Collegiate Editors Oppose Abandonment Of Trade Agreements

(By ACP)

International trade, and the accompanying question of retention or abandonment of the reciprocal trade agreements policy of the present administration, is getting more and more attention from collegiate editorial writers. And their attention, for the most part, is taking the form of a campaign for the support of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's trade pacts. There is little or no sentiment for abandonment of the pacts as proposed by some congressional leaders.

Here is a review of the college sentiment of the Trade Agreements act:

INCREASE COMMERCE

The Evansville College Crescent: "To date, under this act, the state department has entered into 22 of these pacts with 21 nations. Centering their appeal in the offers of tariff reduction up to 50 per cent Secretary Hull was able to consummate these pacts in every quarter of the globe, much

CAMPUS PRIMARY BILL NOT FORCED FROM COMMITTEE

Campus Will Decide On New Provisions In Spring Election

By GENE WILLIAMS

The Student legislature last night voted unanimously, with 40 present out of the total membership of 48, in favor of the new constitution presented to it last week, and also defeated Chuck Kline's motion to bring out of the ways and means committee's hands the bill providing for primary elections, by a vote of 21 to 19.

The bill providing for primary elections was introduced last week by Kline with the purpose of democratizing campus elections. The ways and means committee considered the bill two afternoons of the latter part of last week, and by a vote of 3 to 2 decided to report the bill unfavorably to the legislature. After the committee's report last night, Kline made his motion that the bill be brought out of the committee's hands, and heated arguments followed on both sides. The vote was finally taken by "ayes and nays."

After the new constitution was approved by the body a vote 37 to 3 in favor of the constitution's being put to general campus elections in the spring was made. Nominations will be made for the new positions formed by the new document, and will be placed on the ballots with other nominees. Then if the new constitution is passed the officers for the new posts will take their seats; if it does not pass the elected persons will naturally not hold office.

The constitution accepted by the body provides for a membership of 50. Representation will include three members elected at campus elections from each class (neither a campus or class officer); 14 from the inter-dormitory council elected by the council; five elected from and by the interfraternity council; one from each of the following: law, medical, and pharmacy schools; one non-officer of the Woman's association; one from the Pan-Hellenic council; one from each of the women's dormitories; six town students (Continued on page 4, column 3)

YMCA CABINETS HEAR MISS TERLIN

Speaker Points Out Christian Duty

"To say nowadays that 'the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof' is sheer mockery," asserted Miss Rose Terlin, economics secretary of the National Intercollegiate Christian council, in her discussion of "The Relation of Christianity to Modern Social and Economic Life" at the supper forum of the junior-senior and freshman cabinets last night.

Economic life has taken on the form of an increasingly smaller spiral which continues to leave out more and more men without sufficient livelihood, she said. The result has been man's loss of dignity.

"Consequently, never before has there been so great a need for a prophetic, arousing voice from the Church to give people something to give their lives for. And the Christian God alone is worth giving oneself to."

The duty of all Christians, Miss Terlin pointed out, is to restore to man his former dignity by democratizing the economic and social life. Miss Terlin took a prominent part in the American Youth conference in Washington last week. She has returned to the United States only recently from Europe and China where she has been studying and working. She is also former secretary of the World Student Christian Federation.

Turn In Graduate Catalogs, Please

The office of the Graduate school asks that all professors and graduate students turn in any extra copies of the Graduate catalog to them.

There has been a shortage in the current issue of the catalog and it would be greatly appreciated by them if those copies not needed are turned in to the Graduate office.

You're Ready For WPA If This Series Dosen't Fix You

Student Union Feels Serious Need For Number Of Vocational Guidance Programs

By LOUIS HARRIS

"If you can't find out what you are fitted for after taking advantage of our vocational guidance program, you must be good material for WPA," Bob Magill, director of Graham Memorial, and at present chief sponsor of "Vocations for Today," stated yesterday.

Considering the present unemployment situation, the Graham Memorial student union felt it necessary to present a series of programs designed to aid University students in making a choice of a profitable and enjoyable occupation. The first program of the series took place last Thursday evening, when Southern Bell personnel manager, Kendall Weisiger spoke to an audience of over 100.

The series will enter into specific fields next Thursday when Charles Parker, city editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, will tell students what sort of opportunities lie open in journalism. The Raleigh newsman will point out the advantages of the newspaper game and will show potential reporters how they can find out if they are fit for journalism.
