

Student Entertainment Series To Feature National Symphony

Dr. Hans Kindler

... impressive record ...

Dr. Hans Kindler To Conduct Concert Wednesday Night

The second student entertainment of the winter quarter will be held next Wednesday evening in Memorial hall, when Dr. Hans Kindler once again brings his National Symphony orchestra to the campus.

Emmanating from the nation's capital nine years ago, the National Symphony has steadily grown in the eyes of the leading music critics. Among the staunchest supporters of the Washington orchestra have been Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and other figures in the Capitol Hill political and social circles.

The symphony is now making a tour of the South which will cover Winter Park, Sarasota, St. Petersburg, Palm Beach, Rock Hill, and Lynchburg. Among the other cities in which Dr. Kindler's organization has played are Syracuse, N. Y.; Fall River, Mass.; Ithaca, N. Y.; Elmira, N. Y.; Hamilton, N. Y.; Troy, N. Y.; and Hartford, Conn. At Hartford the orchestra made its fifth appearance in a series of concerts at Bushnell Memorial auditorium, on which the Boston, Philadelphia, and other leading philharmonic organizations of the nation are annually scheduled.

Since its first meager backing from 97 Washington music lovers, the National Symphony has grown until it now claims over 6,000 subscribers. In several concerts in Constitution hall in the nation's capital this year, an average attendance of 3,500 persons has been present.

Before organizing the Symphony, Dr. Kindler had an impressive record with several of the leading philharmonic orchestras. He has conducted the Philadelphia orchestra in one of its regular series concerts at the invitation of Leopold Stokowski. He has also led the New York Philharmonic-Symphony at Lewisohn stadium, and has appeared as guest conductor of the world-famous Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam.

Carolina Boxers Lay Duke Low, Carry Off State Championship

Kimball Shines; Frosh Win Easily Over Little Blues

By WILLIAM L. BEERMAN
It may be said, first, that Carolina beat Duke in boxing last night by a score of 6-2. It may be said, secondly, that approximately 4,500 fight fans watched with utter enjoyment the rout of the Blue Devils as the dual meet season ended with a state championship for Carolina. And it may be said, thirdly, that Gates Kimball is on the threshold of a national intercollegiate title.

Kimball caused more noise and created the biggest sensation in Woollen gym since President Roosevelt visited the sporting emporium in 1938—and did it by sending big Bill Bailey, 225-pound Duke football player, to the canvas before the second round of their heavyweight clash was half over. FROSH WIN

Earlier in the evening, Carolina's freshman boxers concluded a 50-50 season by running through Duke frosh 5-3.

Other than Kimball's great triumph, it was difficult to pick out the best fights of the night. Nearly every man on Mike Ronman's accomplished team did well for himself. Only one boxer, newcomer Zan Carver who filled in at 175, lost a decision. Duke's other point came on two draws.

Bob Farris drew with Ed Morel at 155, and conference champion Billy Winstead was tied surprisingly by Dan Brandon. Two technical knockouts, Kimball's and one by Red Sanders, were included in the results.

Gates put on a masterful show. The giant Bailey, a former Lexington high school boxer and All-Southern end at Duke last fall, towered above Kimball and had a decided weight advantage, but that was all. Kimball, a grade A footballer himself, took it easy in the first round, feeling Bailey out with left jabs and an occasional right (Continued on page 2, column 3)

Taft To Speak Thursday On 'Industrial Future Of South'

CPU To Sponsor Ohio Senator's Address Here

Senator Taft

... budget balancer ...

With the latest reports from Washington giving him the inside track for the GOP nomination next June, Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft will come to the campus to speak on "The Industrial Future of the South," next Thursday evening in Memorial hall at 8:30.

The Buckeye state's hope for the presidency next November has been conducting an extensive campaign throughout the east during the past two months. Among the highlights of his tour has been his acceptance of the President's challenge to show how the budget can be balanced. Although he inaugurated his Southern campaign in Greensboro last month, reports from the Republican national committee indicate that his speech here Thursday will be the first major address of his campaign below the Mason-Dixon line.

While several of the leading weekly magazines have carried approving and degrading features the Ohio candidate, it was reported that the GOP convention delegates who met in Washington over the weekend were leaning toward Taft for the nomination. The convention is slated to be held in Philadelphia June 24.

This week's Life magazine carried a whole section on Taft, picturing the more informal side of the Buckeye senator's life. Two weeks ago, Time magazine reviewed his life and hinted that he was the strongest man the GOP could nominate.

The son of ex-President William Howard Taft, the Ohio Senator has risen rapidly since his election to the upper chamber in 1938. An ardent New Deal foe, Taft's chief attacks on the President's program have been made on national debt and the devaluation of the dollar. In the September special session, he supported the repeal of the arms embargo.

In his campaign for the Republican nomination, influential GOP political supporters as well as several state delegations have fallen into line, most prominent of whom was Governor Bricker of Ohio. After his speech in Greensboro, the North Carolina Republican delegation voted to support Taft in the Philadelphia convention.

Palms Of Your Hands Show Latent Talents Says Sally Buckbee

By BEN ROEBUCK

Sally Hunter Buckbee, currently appearing at Kenfield's sporting goods store, is not a fortune teller and she positively does not find lost articles and that sort of thing. By looking at your hands she can tell you all about your latent talents and abilities and what to do to develop them to get full benefit of what you have.

"Many men and women go through life with dormant talents, with no knowledge as to how to develop them," she says. "Few people actually plan ahead as to their best talents."

NEWSPAPERWOMAN

Mrs. Buckbee was connected with newspapering for 20 years—she was the first woman in the city room of the Springfield (Mass.) Union before the war. Her articles have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's Weekly and, under a nom-de-plume, in the popular Esquire, men's magazine. Every now and then she dashes off a story for the magazines. She often conducts radio interviews.

While on the Springfield newspaper, she was asked to interview Chiro, the great Australian hand analyst — he has offices in London and Vienna. He was impressed with her adeptness for the art and asked her to go into the study of it more fully. Thereupon, as a hobby she studied with Chiro.

Recently the hand analyst appeared at Cornell university, Wellsley college, Chatauqua institute, Boston college and Yale university. Often featured at private parties, she confers (Continued on page 4, column 3)

Friday evening, the debaters will engage two representatives of the Women's college of William and Mary in a debate on the same question, with the University forces taking the same side.

The question to be debated in both debates is the Pi Kappa Delta question being debated all over the country as a standard statement of the isolation question.
