Stockton Gets Post On Yackety Yack; Jones, Allen Named

The Publications union board yesterday named Charles F. Barrett for managing editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL for 1940-41; Norman Stockton for business manager of the Yackety Yack; Bill Brunner for business manager of the DAILY TAR HEEL; Bill Allen for business manager of the Carolina magazine; and Harry Jones for business manager of the BUCANEER.

For three years a member of the DAILY TAR HEEL editorial staff, Barrett has served as reporter, city editor, deskman, night sports editor, and for the past four quarters as night news editor. Last spring, he was elected to the junior class honor council. He was also managing editor of the Freshman Handbook this year.

BUSINESS MANAGERS

Brunner, selected for business manager of the DAILY TAR HEEL, also worked on the business staff for the past three years. During that period, he served as Durham advertising manager and local advertising manager. Among his other activities are membership in the University club, and last year membership on the sophomore executive committee.

Stockton, Jones, and Allen have also worked on their respective publications for the past three years, serving in various capacities. Today's selections take office next Tuesday with the editors who were elected in Thursday's elections.

GRAHAM SAYS INVESTIGATION IS WELCOMED

Clark's Letters Urged Survey Of Education

Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the House committee for the investigation of un-American activities, has confirmed that his committee will conduct an investigation here because of reports that Communism is "very strong."

Dies added that "I don't know whether the reports are true."

No official notice has been sent to the University administration, it was learned yesterday, and President Frank Graham merely commented, "We will welcome the investigation."

CLARK URGES

The probe into subversive activities here, part of a nationwide survey of Communism in the nation's schools, was decided upon after letters to the committee from David Clark, publisher of the Textile Bulletin, urged an investigation of communistic education.

Clark specifically mentioned that Communism is strong at Carolina and at Emory University, although he did not definitely request that they be investigated. He wrote Dies some time ago and had not heard from him when the announcement of the investigation here was made. Dies did not attribute his probe here to Clark alone but said he had several complaints.

Dean of Students F. F. Bradshaw interpreted the investigation as an opportunity "to show the nation the process of democratic living and leadership which through a century and a half has gathered momentum in Chapel Hill."

Britt, Lobred Gain Ground But Remain Close Behind

Carolina's most confusing election in a decade dipped into a series of unexpected twists and turns yesterday as the total number of votes mounted to 2,451 instead of 2,140 as announced early Friday, a complete reversal taking place in the sensational race for editor of the Yackety Yack when Bill Broadfoot (SP) emerged a one-vote victor over Byrd Merrill (UP and CP), 1173 to 1172.

Mitchell Britt (SP) was boosted into within nine votes of Bill Cochrane (UP) in a struggle between party veterans for speaker of the student legislature 1144 to 1163, while Leonard Lobred (SP) whittled down to one vote the lead of Richard Morris (UP) for senior representative to the Publications Union board.

Dave Morrison (SP) slightly improved his standing in a close race with Bill Dees (UP) for president of the student body, taking a lead of 1138 to 1020. Warner Washington (SP) was lifted by one vote into a run-off with Johnny Hearn (UP) for president of the sophomore class.

Other major offices shifted somewhat but not enough to greatly alter tabulations.

APPLICATIONS

Jim Davis, president of the student body, anticipating numerous requests for re-counts in close races, said yesterday written applications for run-offs and re-counts must be made by 8 o'clock tonight.

It was believed the student council would renew counting some time Sunday to definitely determine narrow races.
