

Straight Stuff
by BILL BEERMAN

This is the story of a man who might have been a millionaire today. Back before the depression and Hitler, John F. Kenfield was a Sugar Daddy in the real sense of the word, being vice-president of the Curtis Candy company, which is known principally for Baby Ruths, Butterfingers, and other sweetly sticky confections.

Picture it if you can: Kenfield—with a smaller waistline than now, of course—parked firmly behind a desk and barking orders that made lesser figures in the bon-bon world hop to obey. He was visibly shaken when the important figures on Cuban sugar dropped so much as one-tenth a point.

But if William Tilden dropped a tennis match in those years, Kenfield was shaken just as much in fact, Kenfield was no better off than the office golfer. Every afternoon, soon as his work wound up, he motored in great haste to the nearest tennis court, and then spent the time until dark batting balls back and forth with some other net addict. He was a prominent instructor at the Lakeshore Country club, Chicago.

Let us progress rapidly to the year 1927. Times were aggravating in the candy business. Little children had no money with which to purchase Baby Ruths, and Kenfield saw writing on the wall. There came the day when the company president called his partner to a conference.

"Johnny," said the pres., "it looks bad. In fact, it looks like bankruptcy." Therefore, John F. Kenfield severed relationships with the Curtis Candy company and set forth on a journey. In the course of this journey he arrived at Chapel Hill, where boys played tennis all day long but had no coach. "I will coach the lads," Kenfield said to himself. And he did.

No one at Carolina has regretted Mr. Kenfield's choice as tennis coach. The Chicago boy, who went to work instead of college, has turned out some of the finest tennis players and teams in the nation in the past 12 years.

He's had time to reflect on life, too. "If I had stayed with the candy company, look where I'd be today," Kenfield says. That's true, for the Baby Ruth is definitely staging a comeback.

"On the other hand," Kenfield adds, "I'm having fun here, so what the heck?" The short, affable, rotund fellow might add that he hasn't lost his business sense altogether. His sporting shop downtown buys bread, butter, and baked beans just like a coaching salary does.

Actually, economic considerations need not be discussed here. Rather, we mean to dwell on John F.'s accomplishments while instructing in the net sport. A few years after he came to Carolina, Kenfield had Bitsy Grant and Wilmer Hines on his hands. Anyone who can distinguish between a baseball diamond and a tennis court can tell you who those two gentlemen are. And, among others, Ed Yoe-manns, Eddie Fuller, Ramsay Potts, and Archie Henderson developed here.

Coach Kenfield recalls with pleasure his 1930 team. "Ah, that was a gang," he sighs. "Grant and Hines were both on it, and we slaughtered everybody." For that matter, from 1928

HODGES BEATS BELMONT, 10-2

By Harry Hollingsworth
Howard Hodges pitched ball that he has demonstrated himself capable in practice sessions and set the Belmont high school team down with five hits yesterday afternoon as the Carolina frosh tapered off their batting eyes with a 10-hit-10-run slaughter in preparation for their game with the Duke Blue Imps this afternoon. The final tally showed that Belmont had been successful in getting two runs.

over the left field barrier, pounded out two long triples, one of which would have been a home run had there been a base coach to send him home.

Although the frosh committed four errors, the infield came to life on three occasions to complete double plays and stifle brooding rallies. Hodges started one, Johnny Hearn another, and Tommy Oswald the third.

Indians To Play Loyola Squad At Baltimore Today

BALTIMORE, April 26.—Carolina's Indians arrived in Baltimore late tonight, prepared to give Loyola university's crack lacrosse team plenty of fight tomorrow at three o'clock on Loyola field. The Indians, who lost a rough battle to Duke yesterday minus the services of four of their first-stringers, goalie Bill Darden, Bronco Remy, Milt Harris, and Co-captain Fred Berdan, have these boys back but the May Frolics claimed Bill Broadfoot and big Gates Kimball.

The Indians will find the going plenty rough when they line up opposite the Loyolas, because Loyola is situated in the perennial hotbed of lacrosse. Lacrosse first saw the light of day in Baltimore, the first game being played in 1811. Year after year the nation's number one team comes from the vicinity of Baltimore. This year is no exception, for Loyola's lacrosse men are now fighting to overshadow the south's Maryland Old liners and the East's Army for the leadership in college circles.

Co-captain Coleman Finkel, whose fine performance was one of the few bright spots for the Indians in their loss to Duke yesterday, has some five yards of tape around his injured midriff and is ready to go the limit against Loyola. Also the other co-captain, Fred Berdan, is in excellent shape and will probably get the call at defense along with Milt Harris.

How They Line-up

Ohioan Wins Thriller

Carolina's tennis courts were ablaze with activity yesterday afternoon as high school hopefuls from all parts of the southeast assembled to play off the quarter and semi finals of the Carolina Intercollegiate tennis tournament. The most thrilling match of the day came about in the semi finals when Marshall Chambers of Cincinnati defeated Arthur Prochaska of Clinton, S.C. in a five set match that went the limit.

Prochaska after having won the first two 6-3, 6-3, had match points five successive times only to be upset (Continued on page 4, column 2)

TEAM OF EX-UNC GREATS THROWS MEET IN DOUBT

By Leonard Lobred

The Carolina freshmen had an easy time winning the Junior AAU meet yesterday, but the varsity Tar Heels will be pressed by Duke and a team of Carolina grads this afternoon in the Senior AAU competition starting at 3 o'clock at Fetzer field.

The Tar Heels defeated Duke, 7 1/2 to 5 1/2, in their meeting last week, but when the Tar Heel Athletic club, made up of Carolina graduates, begins cutting into the team totals, any of the three teams has a good chance of winning. Headlining the Tar Heel AC is Bill Corpening, co-captain of last year's varsity who won four events in the Indoor games, setting one world record, tying another and bettering one conference mark.

Corpening, Bill Hendrix, the other co-captain, Joe Hilton, Tom Holmes and Vaughan Winborne—ex-Carolina stars, and Boo Walker and Bill Price of Davidson, and undergraduate Norman Ganslen form the Tar Heel AC. Corpening, Hilton, Holmes and Winborne making what will probably be their final outdoor appearances on the local track.

Harry March, in Philadelphia for the Penn relays, and Jim Davis will be missing from the Carolina line-up, and it isn't known whether or not any of the Duke standouts are out of town. Frosh Pile Up Lead Carolina's frosh started slowly but midway the Junior competition went far into the lead and won with a total of 66 2/3 points. Duke was second with 36, Belmont Abbey had 34, State college 31 1/2 and Wake Forest 2.

Times were fairly fast and all performances were good, wind favoring (Continued on page 4, column 4)

This was the fastest time March has ever been timed in for the 400-meter hurdles. His best Chapel Hill time has been :54. He was fourth in the National AAU meet last summer after winning his heat. Cochrane of Indiana, Simmons of Nebraska and Young of the Los Angeles AC all finished ahead of Harry in that one. Winning time was :51.9.
The Penn Relay record in the event is :53.4 set by David Lord Burleigh of England some 15 years ago. March had no chance to break it because of the slowness of the track and the poor weather conditions.

RALSTON PITCHES AGAINST MIDDIES IN TRIP FINALE

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 26—

Carolina's baseball team made it two straight over Maryland here today, 2 to 0, although Red Benton, the Tar Heel hurler, was outpitched by Pershing Mondorff. Both are husky right handers. Earlier in the season North Carolina defeated Maryland at Chapel Hill, 8 to 7, in 11 innings. Carolina plays Navy at Annapolis tomorrow. George Ralston will probably pitch.

Maryland slammed Benton for eight hits while Mondorff allowed only four, but the Tar Heels played faultlessly afield, being brilliant at times, while the Terps made four miscues and had some mental lapses.

Carolina's first run, in the second inning, which proved to be enough to win the game, was earned, however. Mallory started with a single, but was forced by Reynolds who in turn was forced by Jennings. A theft put Jennings on second, and he counted on Rich's single.

Some sloppy work gave the Tar Heels their final marker in the fourth. McHale's error gave Mallory a life, and he went all the way to third on his steal when Burns threw past second. Rich then walked, and after he had been caught between the bases, (Continued on page 4, column 5)
