

Jimmy Howard Slated To Fill Stirny's Position At Second

Third Baseman Will Try Out New Bag Today

The answer to Coach Bunn Hearn's prayer for a second baseman to replace George Stirnweiss will probably turn out to be Jimmy Howard, third-sacker for two years with Charlie Rich and boasting a bang-up game at second base in last year's Wake Forest game.

Howard has dominated second base in practice sessions so far this year. His fielding and ball-handling are much improved over last year's, and although his batting isn't up to Stirnweiss', he has a .280 average and can boast of being able to tease opposing pitchers to death.

Experienced
A test of whether Jimmy can handle the second base post will come this afternoon when the squad holds its first intra-squad game, postponed for several days until today because not enough men reported early enough to begin. No other candidate looms as a threat to Howard's staying at second, unless Coach Bunn Hearn should decide to shift one of his other veterans to that position. Bobby Gersten, a second baseman on his freshman team two years ago, is probably Hearn's next choice for second.

JIMMY HOWARD, third baseman for two seasons, moves to second today in the first practice game of fall baseball workouts. He takes the place of George Stirnweiss.

Today Is Last Day Students May Enroll In Physical Ed Class

Since action of the University Board of Trustees requires that each undergraduate male student take a course in physical education, all men students who have not yet been enrolled in a physical education class must sign up. Students are to be enrolled according to their class, in Physical Education 1, 21, 31 or 41, and all who haven't yet been assigned to an activity should see either Floyd Siewert or Marvin Allen in 308 Woollen gym this afternoon. Today is the last day on which students may enroll in physical ed without drawing penalty.

Frosh Stage Practice Grid Match Today

By dusk tonight any interested bystander will know what to expect of this year's frosh grid team, for the first practice game of the campaign will be run off this afternoon on Emerson field for the edification of Coach Jim Tatum and his staff and any stray individuals who may be attracted by agonizing sounds of bodily contact and cries of "Keel hem, Tony."

Just a week away from the first game with the State Wolf cubs in Raleigh, the squad should give an excellent indication of its progress thus far. Two picked teams will go at each other in dead earnest, for first team berths are far from settled and the scrimmage will probably determine a good number of starters for the game next Friday. Two weeks of organized practice will be finished today, and considering the large number of candidates from which to glean the most promising material, much has been accomplished. The

Placekicking Is Newest Of Tar Heel Traditions

Sigler and Snyder Now Show Promise

One of the newest traditions to be added to Carolina's long line is that of fine placekicking. Although Carolina had such great toe artists in the old days as George Tandy, Ernest Graves, and George Sparrow, it was not until Babe Daniel appeared on the scene in 1934 that this placekicking tradition was initiated.

Tom Burnette of Tarboro found himself in Daniel's shoes the next two years and no better fit could have been found. In 1936 and 1937 he kicked 29 extra points in 33 attempts. It was during the Carolina-NYU in 1936 that the full value of his precision toe was realized. His two extra points after touchdown were the required margin to win the game, 14-13.

Next in line was Co-Captain Steve Maronic, All-American tackle of 13 consecutive conversions ranked him first in the nation and was instrumental in his being placed on several All-American selections.

Last fall the burden fell on the shoulders of a sophomore fullback, Harry Dunkle, who proved himself a worthy successor by making good on 16 of his 18 attempts to tie Turner of Holy Cross for first honors in the nation in highest number of conversions. Dunkle, who led the nation with a punting average of 46.5 last year, was ably assisted by Co-Captains Paul Severin and Gates Kimball. Severin placekicked four extra points and two field goals from difficult angles last season while Kimball also made several points by this method. This year finds Carolina with a

Passing Battle To Be Featured When Teams Meet

The only team of ten to out-pass the Tar Heels last year is well-equipped with two quite able tossers and a pair of pass-receiving ends, and for that reason observers can look forward to seeing a wide-open aerial battle when Carolina and Davidson meet at Winston-Salem tomorrow.

Although Granville Sharpe, the Wildcats' triple-threat was out of the State game last weekend, he is expected back in the line-up tomorrow.

Students will be admitted to the Davidson game by exchanging Pass-book slip No. 3 and $1.00 for a reserved seat ticket at Bowman Gray stadium. Friends may obtain seats with them in the student section by paying the regular price of $2.00.

row to turn his best efforts toward passing, running and kicking. Even without Sharpe, Davidson has the passing.

Davidson was the only eleven on the Tar Heel schedule last year, including such big-name teams as Penn, NYU, Tulane and Duke, that showed a better passing record than the Tar Heels themselves, and Carolina can be sure to see more of that aerial game tomorrow and also again next week when Texas Christian comes here. The Wildcats completed 13 of 26 attempted passes and the Tar Heels connected with only eight of 20 in last fall's engagement at the Bowman Gray stadium in Winston-Salem, where tomorrow's game is to be played, beginning at 2:30.

HARRY DUNKLE, the nation's leading punter with an average of 46.6 last year, also deserves notoriety for tying Turner of Holy Cross with the highest number of extra-points kicked from placement.

37 Swimmers Hear Speech By Jamerson

Thirty-seven aspiring candidates greeted Coach Richard Jamerson Wednesday night at the first meeting of the varsity swimming team. Plans for fall conditioning were discussed and "get in shape" was adopted as the official war cry.

Coach Jamerson, in a short talk, stressed the fact that every position on the team is wide open and every man an unknown quality until he proves himself. He also was quite emphatic in pointing out that attendance at practice is compulsory and absences will be treated the same as in any class.

Of the 37 men registered, eight are lettermen and one a reserve from last year's conference champions. Of the others 12 are sophomores and 16 are upperclassmen.

Zetes, Steele, Old East Win In Openers

The feature game in the intramural tag football program of the day saw the Zeta Psi outfit, runner up for the fraternity title last year, eke out a second half score on ATO to capture their first contest of the year, 6-0. Other winners in yesterday's program were Old East, Steele, Kappa Alpha, K, and Manly.

With Tom Nash counting on a pass, the Zetes conquered a hard charging ATO team, sparked by Anthony and Ashby, who kept the losers in the fight all the way. Adams and Wals-ton were outstanding for the winners. In the only other fraternity contest of the afternoon, Kappa Alpha pushed over a touchdown and recorded a safety to down Pi Lambda Phi, 9-0, with Sebrell passing to Massey for a 35 yard gain and the only touchdown of the game.

Old East recorded a one point victory over BVP in the best dorm game of the afternoon. Sink scored for the winners, as both teams battled in a scoreless second half, which saw Shuke, Savarese, and Smith shine for the victors, with Slavin, Howard,

Graham Memorial Football Contest Closes Tomorrow

Graham Memorial's second weekly football guessing contest, with a $5 meal book at the grill offered as first prize, remains open until noon tomorrow for all expert and inexperienced at picking the outcomes of tomorrow's grid battles throughout the country.

Anyone may enter by guessing the score of the Carolina-Davidson game and picking winners in 19 other games. Fifteen people picked 17 out of 19 games last week in the first contest, but competition is expected to be stiffer this weekend now that more big teams are in action and considering the expected increase in number of entries.

Here are the games. Clip the list and take it to the office on the first floor of Graham Memorial before noon tomorrow.

1940 Grapplers Boast Return Of 7 Lettermen

Under the tutelage of diminutive Georgie Zink, outstanding 121-pounder of two years ago and captain-elect of last year's squad, Carolina's varsity wrestling forces got their earliest start since the initiation of the sport at Chapel Hill when they went through their first organized practice session yesterday in Woollen gym.

With the loss of but one man via graduation, 136-pounder, Walt Blackmer, captain of the 1940 outfit, the Tar Heel grapplers display a wealth of material in every department. Boasting the return of seven lettermen of last year's squad which dropped matches only to VMI, Navy, and Washington and Lee and with an abundance of material coming up
