Chester Signed For Fall Germans Tulane Weekend

Duke Game Seat Shortage Changes Date

Price of Bids Reduced From $7 to $5.50

Bob Chester and his orchestra, featuring beautiful Dolores O'Neill, will play for the German club fall dances the weekend of the Carolina-Tulane game, October 25 and 26, Tom Wright, dance chairman of the German club, announced last night.

In the past the annual Fall German dances have come the weekend of the Duke-Carolina game. This year it was impossible for the athletic association to provide tickets to the Duke-Carolina game for the imports, so members of the German club felt it wise to change the date.

Contracts for Chester's orchestra have already been signed. The band will play for a concert from 4:30 until 6 o'clock on Friday afternoon; a formal from 9:30 until 1 o'clock on Friday night; a tea dance Saturday afternoon from 4:30 until 6:30; and a formal on Saturday night from 9 until 12 o'clock.

According to Wright, a sophomore figure will be held on Friday night, and officers and members of the executive committee of the German club will lead the Saturday night figure.

Bids for the dances are much cheaper this year than in the past. Members of the German club may secure bids for the concert and three dances for $5.50. Last year bids sold for $7.00.

Tickets for Game

Tickets for the Carolina-Tulane game may be secured at the athletic office. Only one will be allowed to a person. Owners of student passes (Continued on page 4, column 5)

Class Absences Investigated

Hobbs Asks Faculty For Suggestions

Dean A. W. Hobbs, of the arts and science department, yesterday urged members of the faculty to offer suggestions to him dealing with the handling of absences.

Written in the form of a letter to the faculty Dean Hobbs said in part: "There has come to me during the past few years a considerable amount of complaint about the present method of handling absences from class. The present method is that each instructor handles the matter himself, but with the provision that departments can make uniform rules within the department. Instructors are supposed to report to the deans cases of three or more absences in succession.

Consider Discipline

"While I am writing this letter it occurs to me that we might consider some other matters as well. Discipline in this institution depends almost entirely upon the vigor with which we teach our subject and the speed with which we let the loafers know that we will not tolerate them.

"Already in a class of 32 I have discovered four who have not yet made a move. It is well that we let such students know their standing, the earlier the better, while there is (Continued on page 4, column 6)

Mason, Sharkey Play Comedy Roles

Donald Mason, fourth-year drama student at the University, and Josephine Sharkey, of Chapel Hill, who have been on many tours with the Carolina Playmakers, will again play their comedy roles in Paul Green's historical drama, "The Highland Call," which is to be presented October 14 through November 2 at Fayetteville. The drama will not be given this year at Chapel Hill as it was last year, so many persons from this section are expected to see it in the Cape Fear city.

A number of other University students and alumni have parts in the drama. Katherine Moran, of Millidgeville, Ga., who has the lead role of Flora MacDonald, was awarded a Master of Arts degree here. She was last year's Queen Elizabeth in "The Lost Colony" at Manteo.

Harrison Takes Part

Pendleton Harrison, who was graduated here in 1929, serving as an actor and general stage manager for the Playmakers, will play the role of Allan MacDonald. He has been in many Broadway shows and has appeared in repertory in 44 different states. In 1939 he was in "The Lost Colony"; last summer he played with a stock company at Ridgefield, Conn.

Nazis Move into Rumania; London Gets Worst Bombing

Britain Prepares Long Range Raids

By United Press

BUCHAREST, Oct. 8—(Tuesday)—A German expeditionary force has started moving into Rumania, establishing various headquarters as far eastward as the Black Sea to instruct the Rumanian army in "the Nazi style of warfare," reliable German quarters said early today.

The number of German troops established on Rumanian soil may reach a total of 50,000 to protect Rumania's vital oil fields against British sabotage usually well-informed Rumanian sources said.

LONDON—(Tuesday)—Adolf Hitler last night unleashed his most savage aerial assault thus far upon besieged London, but early today machine-gunning British "nighthawk" planes met the waves of the raiders in a clear sky, asserting to have broken the fury of the attack.

For a couple of hours the 31st night of London's siege was a thunderous hell with bombs of all sizes, "bread-baskets" and cluster of incendiaries falling on at least 13 London districts, and four suburbs.

The night assault—by waves of Nazi raiders smashing in from all directions—followed today's long, furious air battles that spread over all England and out to sea "almost to France."

The rest of England and even towns of Scotland were under similar bombing attacks.

The election will be held one week from today, Tuesday, October 15, at a special meeting of the association in Gerrard hall.

For the past week the association has been organizing its several committees and all those interested in serving have been put to work.

Although one handball team and three tag football teams have been entered in fall intramurals, only two tag teams have participated so far, and the handball team is still incomplete. All those interested in either are requested to see Manager Craig Phillips or Pat Winston.

Rush Week Produces Usual Quota of Comic Boners; Carolina Inn Continues To Turn Down Pledges

By Paul Komisaruk

Every year it happens, and this year's classic comes from Delta Kappa Epsilon where a young energetic freshman bounded out of his car, bounced over the fenders, hopped up on the porch and quaintly remarked, "What's the dues at this frat?" So freshman rushing got under way.

At Pi Kappa Alpha, an ambitious upper classman was momentarily set back when a freshman remarked that he would be only too happy to make a date for "tomorrow night," if the date would include "one small brunette."

Art Exhibit Attracts 400

Person Gallery Formally Opened

Nearly 400 people attended the formal opening of Person art gallery Sunday, the largest turnout an exhibit has ever drawn, when an exhibition of original Old Masters was presented under the direction of John V. Allcott, new art department head.

Pictures which received special attention by the reviewers were "The Children of Charles I," by Van Dyck; a study of a head for "The Father's Curse," by Greuze; Beerstraaten's "Skating at Slooten"; and "Miss De-Christyn" by Van Dyck. Mieris's "A Tippler," although a small picture, displayed amazing detail, and attracted much attention. A portrait by Raeburn in his vigorous style, and a marine study by Ruysdael were well received. Other artists in the collection, which displayed the solid tradition of European painting of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, were Cuyt, Gael, Van Ceulen, Lawrence, Molyn the Elder, Netscher, Romney, Teniers, Wilson, Le Clerc, Lepicie, Michel, Nattier, and Van Loo.

Students' Works

The art studio was open for inspection and the work of some of the students was displayed. A few pieces of sculpture, and charcoal sketches of life and still life were shown.

The paintings were arranged in the gallery by Allcott, with the assistance of Edgar Thorne, art student, and Miss Harriet Adams, new curator. (Continued on page 4, column 5)

Local Negro Charged With Shooting Man

Leonard Powell, local Negro charged with assault with deadly weapon, gave bond yesterday morning for appearance in coroner's court on October 14.

Powell allegedly shot Buck Jones, Durham man, in the leg early yesterday morning when they met in the home of Powell's sister, Mamie Powell, in Mitchell Lane.

Jones was taken to a Durham hospital immediately after an examination at the University infirmary.

Policeman C. H. Wright who investigated the case stated that his conviction was not serious.

Student Union Has Amateur Show Tonight

Contestants May Turn In Entries Today

Registration for the amateur program sponsored tonight by the Student Union will be continued in the Union office until 2 o'clock this afternoon, Richard Worley, director of student activities, announced yesterday.

"We're exploiting the freshman class with the enticement of big money," he said. "There will be five dollars for the winner, three for second best, and one for third."

Roy Armstrong, director of pre-college guidance and former fly-weight champion of Rowan county whose motto was "catch-as-catch-can-and-no-holds-barred" will begin the program at 7:30 in the lounge of Graham Memorial. Judges are to be selected from the audience.

"The response to this first in a series of amateur hours has been very good thus far," Worley commented. "The program already includes several contest winners and recruits from the Greensboro music festivals. There are thirty students who checked an interest in this on their activities sheets, and I am very anxious to have them stop by before two."

Graham Memorial Begins Vocation Series Tomorrow

The first in a series of vocational guidance programs sponsored by Graham Memorial will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the main lounge, Director Fish Worley said yesterday.

S. W. J. Welch, University director of vocational guidance will speak on "How to Prepare for a Job after Graduation."

These programs are designed especially to help freshmen and sophomores plan their work so they will be well fitted for a particular field after graduation, Worley said. Meetings will be held about every two weeks.

At each program a speaker from a different field of business will give some advice on his special field.

The program will be over by 8 o'clock and will not interfere with rushing if freshmen plan their dates with fraternities tomorrow night after that time, Worley said. All students are invited, but the series will be of special value to freshmen and sophomores, he said.

Hopkins' Son Accused

One always finds political discussions in full swing soon after the freshman becomes slightly acclimated. Bob Hopkins, son of the former Secretary of Commerce, was asked if the politically active Hopkins in a nearby city were any relations. When Bob found out that the Hopkins in question were Republicans he quietly remarked, "They must be of a different family."

Alpha Tau Omega is seriously considering the installation of a ventilating system. Members reported that freshman were so warm and generally ill at ease some one might have thought they were being subjected to a sweat box treatment.

The Carolina Inn is turning down its usual quota of freshmen who walk up and ask, "What fraternity is this?"

Shelves Talk Of U.S.-Jap Relations

Speaker Reaffirms State Department Pan-American Policy

By Ransom Austin

Assistant U. S. Secretary of State Adolph H. Berle, speaking under the auspices of the International Relations club last night in Memorial hall, lashed out bitterly against the tactics of forceful-minded nations and simultaneously pointed out that existing differences between the United States and Japan were more than "tin and rubber."

Berle refrained from detailed discussion of the Japanese situation because of the State Department's policy of giving official sanction to speeches made by staff members. The speech has not yet been read by department officials.

Speaking suavely and concisely, the Assistant Secretary reaffirmed this country's policy of "cooperative peace" among the 21 American republics. He said the apostles of force "cannot continue their development," leaving with the audience the pleasure of interpretation.

He listed the many efforts of America to prevent hostilities and at the same time cited the close bond of friendship existing in this hemisphere. "We have never had the illusion," Berle said, "that you could chop the world up into sections."

He said the United States, with its prodigious and rich supply of resources, could have embarked easily on an imperialistic program, obtaining a great empire, but chose instead a "friendly policy."

Berle mentioned the coming conscription program as a defense of American rights and said that this country would defend its "successful way of life" against any external force.

He frequently associated Latin problems with those of this country, pointing out that their insecurity was detrimental to the well-being of the United States.

He was introduced by Dean of Administration R. B. House, who was previously presented by Manfred Rogers, president of the International Relations club. The speech was broadcast over WDNC in Durham and later rebroadcast by recording over station WPTF in Raleigh.

Students Help National Defense

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

The nation's college students are not being permitted to forget that the United States is straining every effort toward strengthening the national defense.

Men within the draft ages of 21 through 35 who are now registered in college have been automatically deferred from compulsory military training, at least until July of next year, although they will be required to register October 16 with all other men of those ages.

At the same time men and women of college age have been urged by President Roosevelt to continue their college educations.

Nevertheless, the nation's collegians are being made to realize they are an important link in preparedness plans.

Typical of defense messages to students at scores of colleges was that presented by Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard college, New York. It is more important, said she, for students to continue their college educations until needed than to participate actively in helping their country.

Dean Gildersleeve explained that should the stream of students stop, the country would find itself short of trained and educated citizens.

Are You Identified?

Identification cards for all those students who have not yet called for theirs should be secured today at the Central Records office on the third floor of South Building.
