London Raids Appear Geared To Balkan Push

Russia Remains Question Mark In European Scene

By United Press London was under its most vital air attack of the 38 days of the German siege last night and early Tuesday while 2,000 miles away at the other side of Europe, Adolf Hitler moved rapidly to bring the Balkans in his grip.

Swarming Nazi raiders heaped death and destruction upon London and other parts of the British Isles in intensified blows such as undoubtedly would be unleashed if Hitler and Mussolini were about to embark on a blitzkrieg in the Balkans.

The Italo-German axis has laid the groundwork for such a blitzkrieg in the same manner that Hitler opened the way for his conquest of Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium — claiming that he is beating the British at the game to use Europe's neutrals as springboards for blows at the Reich. Berlin Probably Bombed

Not only London but Berlin appeared to have been under a siege of bombs during the night. The Germans reporting what appeared to have been a brief air raid alarm in their capital, although the newly tightened Nazi censorship choked off details.

Britain's bomber squadrons still were climbing the rungs of their "ladder plan" of counter-blows against the Reich, and were reported on at least 50 Nazi objectives, including invasion ports along the Dutch and Belgian coasts.

Russia remained—as usual in international crises—the big red question mark of the spreading menace of war in the Balkans and threats of a double-barreled Italian and German drive on both shores of the Mediterranean into Turkey and the oil fields of Iraq.

Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, chairman of the faculty committee for national defense and newly-appointed assistant to C. P. Hinshaw of the local registration board, stressed the fact that all male aliens are also required by law to register.

Katsoff Speaks On U. S. Problems, Effects of War

Stating that "If our problems are to be solved, they must be solved properly and such freedom as is necessary to solve these problems is impossible when scientific terms are laid down," Professor T. O. Katsoff addressed a gathering of faculty members and students last night in Gerrard hall.

The address was the first in a series of talks, in cooperation with the national defense program of the University, to be delivered every other Monday evening. The general title of the series is "Freedom in the Present World Crisis—A Philosophical Interpretation." Professor Katsoff emphasized that scientific progress is only possible when compatible to the existing social order. He traced the awakening of the scientific spirit and pointed out that "Science only develops as man can tear away the fetters of society, and without freedom to follow facts, there can be no scientific development."

Revision Seems Likely In Organization Bill

BOB CHESTER

Student Union Will Present Free Concert

Director Richard Worley of Graham Memorial, announced yesterday that for the first time in history Graham Memorial will offer a free concert featuring the dance orchestra which the German club has signed for Fall Germans.

Bob Chester and his orchestra will give the concert in Memorial hall Friday afternoon, October 25. All students will be admitted free by presenting their identification cards.

In making the announcement Worley said that it was a "splendid gesture" of the German club to turn the concert over to Graham Memorial. "Heretofore many students have been unable to attend the concerts," he said. "Now every member of the student body will have a chance to see and hear one of the best dance bands in the nation in person."

Complete Dance Plans In connection with the announcement, the German club announced that plans were virtually completed for the three dances, which will be held the weekend of the Carolina-Tulane game.

Membership in the German club is open to every member of the student body. Initiation fees are $5.00, and tickets for the entire set of fall dances are priced at $5.50 to members. Last year bids sold for $7.00.

Committee Makes Final Draft In Session Today

By Phillip Carden

The Ways and Means committee of the Student Legislature probably will draw up its final draft of the proposed campus organization bill in a meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Graham Memorial, Chairman Terry Sanford said yesterday.

Tentative discussion in an earlier committee meeting indicated that the bill will probably be revised to create an advisory committee to the president of the student body instead of the student body organization called for in the original proposal.

De-centralization of the organization and other guarantees against its misuse appeared to be the motives for most of the changes proposed by committee members. The four chairmen originally specified to head the organization and work with the president of the student body probably will not be created.

Author of Bill A "committee on organization for national defense" appointed by Dave Morrison during the summer was the author of the bill.

The committee was appointed because leaders felt that the student body should have a direct voice in decisions on critical issues, especially in view of the sweeping changes made since the University embarked on its program of cooperation in national defense. The bill, however, is not a defense measure in itself, Morrison pointed out, since defense is only one of many subjects on which accurate student opinion is desired.

Organization Plan As proposed by this committee, the plan was to organize the whole campus geographically into 400 discussion sections of about 10 members. The chairmen of these sections would form 40 groups of 10, the chairmen of these groups form four areas of 10, (Continued on page 2, column 4)
