Worthwhile Listening

Tonight in Hill hall pacifism—a viewpoint strange in these times—will be heard.

With conscription number 158 plastered across headlines in newspapers over the country and with clamor for United States entrance into the war growing into open enthusiasm, Dr. A. J. Muste, head of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, will speak on the first Carolina Political union program tonight.

What Dr. Muste will deal with tonight will be the pacifist's alternative to war. This viewpoint entails an ideal, almost a faith, that it is an absolute evil to kill. The hope of the pacifist idea lies in a world that someday might consist of individuals, none of whom would kill another of his fellow humans.

We agree with the pacifist that the world would be a better place to live in should no one have the desire to kill, but we also believe that the present world crisis has to be dealt with in practical terms, so as to insure the preservation of our way of life. There are forces abroad in the world today that must be halted, although war cannot be taken merely as a joy ride to oblivion.

Although some disagree with Dr. Muste's outlook on the present crisis, they must recognize his undeniable right to be heard. We should be thankful that the times are not so critical, yet, that only one side of a question can be given. Under war-time conditions, it is not possible to have freedom of expression. Until the real thing comes, we should cling to this right with all our strength.—L. H.

Indifferent Seniors

The senior class set a good example for underclassmen when they passed their class budget the first time it was presented to the class. Last year Benny Hunter made four attempts to get a quorum together in Gerrard hall, but every time it fell short. Finally in desperation the budget was passed by mail.

Hunter sent cards to every member of the class, and all they had to do was say yes or no and place them in a postoffice box.

While the DAILY TAR HEEL thinks it is fine that the budget was passed at the first meeting it still wonders why no more seniors participated.

A total of only 341 seniors was on hand, just 15 over the quorum needed. The rest of the class is expected to attend junior-seniors, and a larger number will be on hand for all activities on the senior week program.

More than likely some will complain about the way things are being handled. Yet they certainly have no right to do so if they did not think enough of their class to be present when the budget was passed.

Mud in Your Eye

A Godsend shower of rain yesterday washed part of the foundation from under the DAILY TAR HEEL's crusade for paved sidewalks. But, the flood over, we tramped along muddy paths, scraped part of the mud off our feet, let the remainder come off on the fine floors of Graham Memorial, and then took up the cudgel again.

Our spirits undampened—or at least only half as damp as the paths over which we traveled to dormitory, to classroom, to DAILY TAR HEEL office—we remained convinced that gravel paths—dusty or muddy—are impractical from just about every standpoint. Wet or dry, gravel wears out shoes. Wet or dry, it is carried on shoes into buildings, where it wears out floors. Carolina students, wet or dry, prefer paved walks.

She Walks Alone-With Men

By Martha Clappitt

One big week-end has passed, and another one is coming up which has possibilities of being even bigger. Those who are traveling up to the Big Town for the game think so, at any rate. But the game isn't the only excitement of the trip. There's the mystery and glitter of New York, and all the excitement of a big city week-end. There are a lot of things to do if there's any spare time at all, which ought to make things pretty interesting.

For instance . . . for the sight seers who have never been in N. Y. before . . . there's always the ride atop the 5th Ave. bus . . . and the Statue of Liberty . . . and St. John the Divine . . . not to mention the Times Square news flashes . . . the Museum of Natural History, Central Park and the Planetarium . . . then there're always the shops . . . Lord and Taylor's, Saks, Peck and Peck, and that wonder of department stores, Macy's . . . Wall Street is still going strong . . . and Grant's tomb still looks grey and depressing . . . and another tourist stop is "Tobacco Road," now in its seventh year, at the Forrest Theater on 49th street . . .

Other shows worth taking in on Friday or Saturday night are . . .

the new "Hellzapoppin'" at the Winter Garden, Broadway at 50th . . . the risqué "Du Barry Was A Lady," with Gipsy Rose Lee at the 46th Street Theater, and is still wowing 'em . . . "Louisiana Purchase" is at the Imperial, 45th and B'way . . . outside of musical comedies, there is "The Man Who Came To Dinner," at the Music Box on 45th . . . "Life With Father," Clarence Day's clever sketch at the Empire . . . and the William Saroyan play "The Time of Your Life" at the Guild . . .

Then for the "spots," which are probably the most important of all . . . don't miss the German-American Rathskeller on 17th Street, the hangout of the college crowd . . . that where they serve beer in those huge scooners . . . and Max's on 86th street is good if you happen to be on the other side of town . . . one of the best floor shows on B'way is still at the Cotton Club . . . and in case you're interested, Wight Fisk is now at the Savoy-Plaza . . . the Marine room of the McAlpine is good for dinner . . . as are the Armenian and other brands of foreign restaurants . . . Paddy's Clam Houses are tops for sea foods if you're hungry for oysters . . . and the Longchamps are fascinating places . . . Radio City Music Hall is tops for movies, with the Paramount running a close second . . . Glenn Miller's playing at the Pennsylvania . . . and there's a swell ice show at the New Yorker . . . and the St. Regis . . . have fun . . .

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)
"College students compose the most conservative element in the country today, but the reason the public doesn't know it is that it's only the 'crackpot' student who makes headlines." Grimell college's new president, Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, debunks the notion that collegians are predominantly red.
"No wise person takes exception to a common-sense program of preparedness. The danger confronting us just now is that those who are whooping it up for war in the alleged defense of democracy will accomplish the destruction of democracy. The best defense of democracy is in the realm of the moral and spiritual nature. Educational institutions and churches are now faced with a terrific responsibility. We must keep alive the ideals of democracy." Pres. Daniel L. Marsh of Boston university sounds a warning "American problems today all lie against pseudo-patriotism. We approach significant economic, social and political questions with much of our citizenship illiterate in these fields. We vote, relying on catchwords and outworn formulas; capitalizing on group animosities; appealing to passions; calling names and challenging the motives of those with whom we disagree. We are seeing how easy it is for whole peoples to slip down the ladder up which they have climbed with infinite pain through many centuries. We are discovering how difficult it is to make wise choices. We are embarked on the hard road, the democratic way. If ever we needed civic competence, it is today." Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin and recently appointed national selective service director, points to the vital need for education.

Rockbottom

Strange are the workings of the inner minds. Nothing short of paradoxical are the two items we stumbled over during one of the occasional perusals of this daily except Monday sheet.

Uncle George Washington, veteran dean of campus janitors, spoke with oratorical eloquence at Homecoming day and welcomed the alumni in behalf of his colleagues while our dormitory domestic sat home and wished he could witness the big event. The price he had to pay for his ticket chewed too large a hunk out of his meager income.

W. T. Martin nobly resigned his membership in the Student legislature because he already had another high campus position. Ferebee Taylor was chosen to replace Martin. Taylor is also president of the University club.

CPU's Bill Joslin's accusation, that state journals are refusing publicity to Pacifist Muste because of his anti-preparedness views might be well-founded. If in these 'democratic' states a man's opinions are ignored it is certainly a pretty pass. On the other hand the lack of publicity could be due to the fact that the little known Muste is not very good copy for newspapers all over North Carolina.

At any rate, the fiery charge makes good copy.

Although several hundred male faces fell with a loud crash when Bob Chester's vocalist minced onto the Memorial hall stage the other day, when she had finished singing the conclusion was reached that she was pulenty sexy.

Trouble with a weekly column is that by the time you get around to printing something the public, the deah public, has completely forgotten what you are talking about.
Anyway, dig back for this. Dr. J. C. Lyons, faculty chairman of the fraternity committee, allowed as how he would like to see something done about the juvenile hell week tactics prevailing.

Unaware of whether Dr. Lyons is aware, it is a fact that one fraternity-on the campus decided last spring that childish antics for that hectic week were passe and took matters into their own hands. Hell week for that fraternity is no more. They point with pride to 12 or 15 happy, but slightly cocky, pledges.

Simple Simon's Almanac

Busted in the Belt
The movies (back when they entertained) used to be great, stirring, spectacular, etc. A program to be a joy forever—only two hours. Thirty cents bought a seat. It bought in addition the right to crackle candy paper, toss peanut shells, crunch popcorn—plus the privilege of expressing your ish fleet was saving America from everything from the Nazis to the devil.

The assumption is made that America has no fleet of its own, and that the billions being spent will not produce more battleships. Also, if the Committee expects its arguments to be passed without debate, it must assume that Americans are gullible fools. Whether or not the last is true will be seen soon enough.

In the meantime, to get my entertainment, I'll continue to play tag football for the government.

Four More Neophytes Added to Frats

Four new pledges were announced yesterday by the Dean of Students' office. They are: Joseph Schwartz and Edward Goodman, Tau Epsilon Phi; Mike Buss, Phi Kappa Sigma; and David Goell, Pi Lambda Phi.
