

Phi Décides In Favor Of CPU

The Phi assembly last night passed by a large majority a bill resolving "that the IRC should cease competition with the CPU in its policy of bringing speakers to the campus."

It was brought out in the discussion of the measure that the CPU was the older organization and had better contacts with the best-known speakers. The assembly concluded that the IRC was causing unnecessary confusion in pursuing its competitive policy with the CPU.

A second bill discussed by the assembly requested that all German diplomats in this country should be handed their passports because of espionage activities. This bill was defeated by a vote of 10 to one.

In the debate on this measure it was pointed out that "Roosevelt has already slapped Germany's face many times and once again might be too many." It was also decided that relieving diplomats of their duties would in no way stop espionage.

trouble to keep his checking account equal to his checks. He has been before the council twice for putting too much rubber in his ink. The first time he was warned and put on check probation; the second time he was put on conduct probation; next time he will be out of school automatically and will not be able to apply for readmission at any later date until he has cleared with the council, nor will his credits be accepted at many other colleges or universities without a letter from the council.

Martin cited another bad check case to show how punishment is carried out. The boy was expelled and was made to get out of town within 48 hours. Last year he returned to Mid-Winter Germans with a date. Rather than embarrass him with his date he was merely warned not to return to any other functions of the University, but he ignored the warning and came to another dance. Again because of embarrassing the girl with him the incident was passed up. The third time, he and his date were made to leave town.

The facts in the sex movies case tell of a boy who acquired some nasty 16 mm films and hired two others to help him show them for an admission price of 25 cents per customer. The three were caught immediately, tried and thrown out without further ado. They requested a retrial and were granted one, but the results were the same. They claimed they "didn't know there was anything wrong" in showing the pictures, though one of the helpers said that the boy who instigated it had told him that "the president of the student body had said it was all right."

Parallel Reading, Too

A professor decided one day to check on the page references on some of his book reports. He found that one fellow had reported about thirty more pages than were in the book even if fly leaves were counted. Since it was internal evidence, the case came before the faculty committee which placed the culprit on probation. When the committee's report reached the council, the boy was found to be already on the council's probation list. The council reviewed the case and deposited the defendant on the skids.

Known as a "nasty patient" by nurses in the infirmary, another of the anonymous brotherhood made the mistake of offering the wrong doctor a drink from his private stock. The doc had smelled whiskey in the room and asked the patient if he had been drinking. The answer was truthfully "No." Asked if he had any in the room he said "Yes," produced a glassfull which had been hidden on the doctor's approach, and, deciding on the bold method, took a swallow and offered the physician a drink. The physician poured it out. Soon after that the student left the infirmary without permission, and then, after trial for disorderly conduct, drinking, and leaving the infirmary without permission, he left the University on request.

and avoid bunching around the ball and excessive "sticks"—fouls.

Olivia Rhodes, right wing on the blue team, played an aggressive game, and Ditty Kelly, right fullback on the blues, backed up a strong defense.

The next game of the tournament will be played Monday, December 2, between blue No. 1 and red No. 1.

so "wholeheartedly to supporting the communist cause."

"The result of this minority control is that these liberal groups reflect at least the major changes in the foreign policies of the Soviet.

Cites ASU as Example

"As an illustration, the American Student union and other similar organizations changed in 1937, with the Franco-Russian pact, from a near-pacifist program to one of collective security and 'Stop Hitler.' But the signing of the Soviet-Nazi pact in 1939 resulted in an overnight reversal to an anti-war policy, and the ASU and similar groups have since maintained a pseudo-pacifist front.

"However, although I have no confidence in organizational cooperation with communists, I firmly believe that they deserve complete freedom of expression without jeopardy of life, job or property."

In his speech to the freshmen Monday morning, Sanders explained that the pacifist takes a positive position by seeking to remove the causes of conflict.

"Furthermore, no nation is likely to forsake its blundering traditions overnight for the daring adventure of pacifism. But pacifists themselves, no matter how small their numbers or how great the threat to their personal safety, feel obligated to keep vivid the better way of life rather than that of 'intolerance, greed and hatred.'"

To students whom he interviewed yesterday he explained possible alternatives for the conscientious objector to conscription. Such an individual may enter non-combatant service, take up civilian work in cooperation with the national defense program, or absolutely refuse to do any compulsory service.

CAROLINA SCOUTS

State once.

Since Dick Jamerson and Johnny Morriss scouted at least three teams, they named an All-Scout team from the schools they scouted. Jamerson's team lined up with Sparks, TCU, and Lansing, Fordham, ends; Kuzman, Fordham, and Dufour, Tulane, tackles; Caton, State, and Sherrod, TCU, guards; DiFilippo, Fordham, center; and Dudley, Virginia, quarterback, Eshmont, Fordham, and Hays, Tulane, halfbacks; and Kring, TCU, fullback.

Morriss selected his team from State, Davidson and Richmond. He placed Humbert, Richmond, and Stilwell, State, at end; Fronzcek, Richmond, and Bahnson, Davidson, at tackle; Katz, Richmond, and Caton, State, at guard; Stroupe, State, center; and Jones, Richmond, quarterback;

Senate Appoints Bagby To Council

Perrin Quarles, president of the Di senate, last night appointed Westley Bagby to the position of debate council representative for the Di. He will replace Maury Kershaw, who recently resigned the office.

A special order was passed by the senate providing that the rolls of membership in the organization throughout its history be drawn up in a complete and unified form. In this way the Di would have a separate record of all members of past years, and would be able to know what faculty members of the University once were Di senators and similar information.

Quarles also appointed a committee to plan a dance for a probable date in the winter quarter. The committee members are Louis Poisson, chairman, Hunt Hobbs, Elinor Elliott, and Jennie Newsome.

The president announced that the meeting next Tuesday would be an executive session and attendance on the part of all members would be required under penalty of fine for unexcused absence.

The Metropolitan Opera engaged him at once.

On Thanksgiving Day 1938 Bjoerling made a triumphant Metropolitan debut as Rodolph in "La Boheme," since then he has become one of the most valuable artists on the roster of this historic company. During the present season he is scheduled to add "The Masked Ball" and "Tosca" to his Metropolitan repertoire. His new Victor recordings have jumped to the best-seller lists throughout the country; and he is now heard annually in many recitals from coast to coast.

His program is planned to entertain and hold his admirers with the finest music. Bjoerling has been called
