Wolf To Present Awards To Varsity Grid Players

Duke Movies To Be Shown Tomorrow

Color movies of the Duke-Carolina game will be shown tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in Memorial hall following the presentation of gold footballs to 29 football lettermen and five coaches, it was announced yesterday by Graham Memorial Director Fish Worley.

The footballs to be presented to the varsity players by Head Coach Ray Wolf were purchased by contributions from the student body. They serve as tokens of appreciation from the students to the football men for their work on the gridiron this year. The small gold watch charms are embellished with the University monogram and the name and position of the player receiving the honor.

In addition to the gridmen, footballs will go to Coach Wolf, Line Coach Johnny Vaught, Backfield Coach Chuck Ericson, End Coach Bill Lange, and Trainer Chuck Quinlan.

Shortened Program

Due to exam week, the program will be cut as short as possible. There will not be a lecture on the technical points of football as has been Wolf's custom at previous football clinics sponsored by the student union.

The University club, campus spirit organization, handled the collection of contributions through its representatives in the dormitories and fraternities. The club also purchased the footballs, acting for the student body.

Speaking for the student body, University Club President Ferebee Taylor said, "These tokens express the student body's feeling for the players for the brand of football they have played throughout the season."

The color shots of the famous Duke-Carolina game conclude the quarter's series of football movies sponsored by Graham Memorial.

Choirs, Bands Participate In Carol Service

An All-Community Candelight Carol service will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Memorial hall, with Chapel Hill elementary and high school choirs, a brass ensemble from the University band, and a bell ensemble from the high school participating.

The program will begin a few minutes from 5 o'clock, with the playing of Bach Chorales by the brass ensemble in the balcony of the auditorium, and immediately afterwards the elementary and high school singers will form a processional to march through the aisles with lighted candles, singing Adeste Fideles.

The program will include Christmas carols, interludes, and hymns, ending with the recessional, "Christmas 1588," from the Lost Colony song book.

Hobbs Named Circuit Head; GW Admitted to Conference

Loop Makes Changes In Eligibility Rules

CHARLOTTE, Dec. 14 — A. W. Hobbs, dean of the School of Arts and Science at Carolina, was elected president of the Southern conference here today in the annual meeting of the circuit. He succeeds W. H. Wannamaker of Duke university.

George Washington university of Washington, D. C., was voted into the conference, places for conference meets were assigned, a seven-year eligibility rule was passed with certain modifications, an eligibility rule concerning junior college graduates was adopted, and a motion to increase payments to a football officiating agency was tabled until next year's meeting.

Since the conference constitution reads that a school does not become eligible to participate in conference events until the following year if it is voted into the conference during the year, George Washington does not become eligible for participation in athletic events until September 1, 1941.

Modifications placed on the proposal by N. C. State college to allow athletes called for national emergency duty in the army seven years in which to complete their athletic eligibility was modified to allow a man who serves one year six years to finish his athletic career and a player who serves two years seven in which to play three years of varsity ball and one year of freshman competition.

Carolina again gained the conference indoor games, but the conference swimming meet, which was held here last year, was moved to Virginia Tech. Duke was voted the loop tennis tournament, and the basketball tourney was given to Raleigh again. Dates established for the court tourney are February 28, 29 and March 1. Other conference meets were placed at William

Hitler Pushes Pierre Laval From Office

Italians Retreat As British Forces Smash to Libya

By United Press

Pierre Laval, the swarthy little Frenchman who rose to power with the swoop of German arms across northern France, fell from his high office Saturday with repercussions that may affect the immediate course of the war.

With the approval of Adolf Hitler, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, Laval's only superior in France, stripped the vice-premier of his offices and emoluments, and according to some accounts had him taken into custody.

In Laval's post as foreign minister was placed Pierre Eteinne Slandin, who had been mentioned often in reports trickling over the French border as competing with Laval for the post of "middleman" in Franco-German negotiations looking toward ever closer collaboration of the two nations.

Placed on what may prove to be the first rung toward power was Gaston Bergery. He was, according to German reports, made secretary-general of the foreign office, a key post in the dissemination of propaganda.

The significance of these events was—as is customary in the Nazi-dominated area of Europe—observed in secrecy and censorship that cut Vichy off from the outside world for about 18 hours.

However, Petain in announcing the changes to the French people in a radio broadcast, made plain that Germany had given full approval to the shift and that it was designed to improve Franco-German collaboration and increase public support within France for such collaboration.

Petain has traveled widely in unoccupied France in recent weeks, and is known to be in possession of information indicating that not all the French populace has been lined up behind the program.

In London it was not thought that the switch greatly changed the situation. British sources regarded each of the men as committed to working with

Kyser Changes Theme Song To Own 'Tar Heels On Hand'

Student Union Gives Up Rights

By January 1, Kay Kyser will replace one of his present theme songs, "This Is My Lucky Day," with "Tar Heels on Hand."

Controller W. D. Carmichael yesterday received a letter from Kyser inquiring about the copyrights of the song, which the nationally popular bandleader and University alumnus wrote for Carolina several years ago. The impending fight between the American Society of Composers and Publishers and the Broadcast Music, Inc., will force Kyser and many other bandleaders throughout the country to change their theme songs at the beginning of the year for all nationwide radio programs.

Student Union Gives Permission

Investigation by Carmichael revealed that "Tar Heels on Hand" belonged to Graham Memorial student union. After conferring with Director Richard Worley, the controller wired Kyser at the Waldorf-Astoria in New

CPU Schedules Nye, Patterson For Programs Next Quarter

Alabama Senator May Debate Nye

Chairman Bill Joslin of the Carolina Political Union, yesterday set dates for addresses here next quarter by Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Republican and staunch isolationist, and Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war.

Nye will speak on January 16, the occasion for his address being a debate on the repeal of the Johnson act. Second speaker on the program has not yet been named, although Senator Lister Hill, Alabama New Dealer, is expected to accept within a few days.

Patterson's address on "Problems of National Defense" is scheduled for February 25.

The Johnson Act, which Senator Nye will uphold, prohibits the United States from extending financial aid to a belligerent power, and the Administration has indicated a desire to repeal the act if financial aid to Britain becomes necessary. It is certain to be brought up immediately upon Congress convening on January 3.

Joslin said that if the Administration should decide not to press the repeal of the act the debate would be "more of a general nature."

Nye Asks Investigation

Nye and his isolationist views recently attracted much comment when he proposed a resolution demanding an investigation of British Empire holdings and ownings in this country so that those holdings could be exhausted before the United States even considers extending credit to Britain.

Hill has been a loyal New Dealer, and has supported all New Deal legislation since his appointment several

New Flag Poles Given University

In Thursday's and Friday's conferences with architect A. C. Nash of Washington, University authorities made definite provisions for the two flag poles recently donated by alumnus George Watts Hill of Durham.

The masts will be mounted on a line perpendicular to Manning hall. Each will be set up about 30 feet inside the main walks running north and south.

Bases for mounting will soon be purchased.

Betas Sponsor Christmas Party

A Christmas party for the underprivileged children of Chapel Hill and Carrboro was held yesterday by Beta Theta Pi fraternity. The party is an annual event.

Santa Claus, played by Chris Sievers, president of the fraternity, gave toys to each child. The children played games, and refreshments were served.

3 Students To Attend Conference

Three Carolina student leaders, Dave Morrison, W. T. Martin, and Jane McMaster, will represent the University at the National Student Federation of America to be held at Rutgers college in New Brunswick, N. J., from December 27 to the 30.

Morrison, president of the student body, Martin, an officer in the national federation, and Miss McMaster, president of the Woman's association will join in a program headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt as principal speaker. The purpose of the meeting is to exchange ideas in student government among various student leaders all over the country.

Carolina Has Been Leader

Since its formation, Carolina students have been among the leaders in the federation. At the present time, Martin is vice-president of the Southern Federation of College Students and a member of the national executive committee, as well as a director of the southeastern conference of the national organization.

Students Rank Physically With World War Youth

Contrary to the beliefs of numerous old men and women and a few medical authorities—who have declared that the bodies of America's young men are slowly degenerating—the physical fitness of the younger generation of North Carolina is today just as high as it was during the last World War.

This fact is substantiated by the estimation of the physical condition of candidates for the recently-installed Naval Reserve Officers Training corps at the University by Captain Robert S. Haggart, head of the unit.

A conservative estimation, Captain Haggart has disclosed, is that "better than 60 per cent" of the students who applied for acceptance in the Chapel Hill corps were able to meet the physical requirements.

Captain Haggart pointed out that statistics were not kept on the exact number of students desiring admittance into the unit, but revealed that 113 passed the physical exam. He said that 105 men enrolled in the present active group.

Compared with data released by the United States Department of War concerning medical examination of draftees when America entered the war in 1917, Captain Haggart's estimate is approximately the same.

Tar Heels End Pre-Christmas Practice Season

By Leonard Lobred

Carolina's White Phantoms maintained their nine-point half-time advantage through to the end last night and defeated the McCrary Eagles, 46-35, in ending their pre-Christmas practice game schedule.

George Glamack, the Allentown Ambler, slipped from his three-game average by two points, but still registered 23 points although closely watched most of the evening by Earl Ruth, former all-Southern conference guard and captain of the Phantoms in 1938. The McCrary semi-pros, with a first team composed of former collegiate stars, had a record of eight wins and a defeat only to the High Point YMCA in nine starts.

First Half Slow

McCrary missed a total of 17 foul shots while making only seven. Morris Watts, a former Catawba standout and high scorer for the visitors with 21 points, missed the most—seven. Watts missed four in a row in the first half, which was one of the slowest ever seen on the local gym floor.

Fine defensive play featured the first period, which ended with Carolina ahead, 20-11. Hank Pessar sank two goals, Bobby Gersten and Glamack one each, and Carolina was ahead, 7-0, before McCrary even scratched. Glamack, Jimmy Howard twice and Pessar once pushed the count to 15-2 before Earl Ruth sank two in a row. When McCrary finally clicked, it was too late.

Glamack Opens Up

The Allentown Ambler really opened up in the second half, having only seven points to show for his first half efforts, and sank buckets from positions he never played in his two previous seasons of varsity ball. Overhead from almost any distance, he dropped them in, and dribbled and passed excellently.

Glamack pushed in five goals in the first six minutes, and when he rested, McCrary, with Watts doing most of the ball-hawking and shooting, rose to 32-21 and then 37-31 before Glamack, Julian Smith and Joe Nelson began popping again. Hank Pessar fouled out with five minutes left, and Glamack and Howard each had three personals called against them at that time.

Bobby Gersten again took the ball off the backboard regularly while the larger fellows pushed it up there. He and Jimmy Howard played the entire game at guard and each added to the score. Julian Smith worked with Joe Nelson and Hank Pessar alternated with George Paine at forwards.

Earl Ruth provided a show, as usual, for the old home folks with his tricky floor-manuevering and change of pace dribbling. His eye was able to gain only four markers, but his job of guarding Glamack was enough to keep him busy.

The Phantoms rest now until December 31, when they have a return match with Hanes hosiery here.

Union Sponsors Concert Tonight

Christmas tree lights and bright fires will be the setting in the main lounge of Graham Memorial tonight at 7:30 for the last of this quarter's fireside concerts.

The program will be semi-classical, including: "For I'm Falling In Love With Someone," "Toy Land," "Indian Summer," and "Habanera," all by Victor Herbert; "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" and "All The Things You Are," Jerome Kern; "Tales Of The Vienna Woods," Strauss; "On The Trail," Grofe; selections from "Porgy and Bess," Gershwin; "Missouri Waltz," Eppel.

Allcott Lectures On Abstract Art

A gallery talk on "Twentieth Century abstract art" will be given by John V. Allcott, head of the art department, at 4 o'clock today in Person Hall art gallery. The exhibit of paintings by Candido Portinari, which is currently showing, will be discussed in relation to the lecture.
