

'Romeo, Juliet' Tryouts Monday

Solo selections from "Romeo and Juliet" to be used in the tryouts tomorrow for the Forest theater production of the play have been placed on reserve in the library for those who are interested in trying for parts in the production.

The tryouts will be held in the Forest theater tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock for the purpose of testing diction and ability to interpret and project Shakespearean lines. The final casting will be made on the basis of Monday's results. In case of unfavorable weather, the tryouts will be held in the Playmakers' theater.

Chosen as the opening production in the re-designed Forest theater, "Romeo and Juliet" will be directed by Dr. Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers. It will run for three nights beginning Thursday, May 22.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

year that saw student spirit reach an all-time high on a certain afternoon last November (Carolina, 6; Duke, 3).

The club's program for the year got under way during orientation week with a freshman smoker, attended by 900 members of the class of '44. Planned during the summer by President Taylor, the get-together was designed to introduce the incoming freshmen to one phase of Carolina's way of living through meeting members of the athletic department, administrative officers, student-body officers, and cheerleaders.

On High School Day the members of the club served as hosts and guides to the more than 2000 high school students from all over the state who attended the football game with Appalachian State teachers college.

Pep Rally
Pep rallies were sponsored by the club before the Wake Forest, TCU, Tulane, and Duke games, and send-offs were staged before the Davidson, State, and Virginia encounters. In addition, the club met all visiting football teams and acted as hosts to them.

For the homecoming game with Tulane, the club sponsored a torchlight parade and handled the annual display contest.

Efforts by Taylor, assisted by Comptroller W. D. Carmichael, resulted in the northward trek of nearly 1,000 Carolina students to New York to see the Fordham game and to participate in a parade down Park Avenue and a 15-minute NBC broadcast featuring Kay Kysner.

Defense Rush Order
As the spark that set student spirit off, the club staged a surprise rally at the regular Thursday night football clinic preceding the Duke game, presenting a portable radio to Coach Ray Wolf as a gift from the student body and a letter of confidence to the team. The pep rally on the eve of the game, following a torchlight parade, packed Memorial hall with one of the largest crowds in its history. Following the rally the crowd moved to the intramural field for a bonfire. "Carolina spirit" and the game was described by a Duke drum major as sounding like a "defense rush order in a boiler factory."

At a special ceremony the following week, the club presented miniature gold footballs, bought with student contributions, to all lettermen and coaches.

During the fall quarter the club also cooperated with Graham Memorial Director Worley in sponsoring Sadie Hawkins Day.

The club's activities during the winter quarter included meeting all athletic teams that came to Chapel Hill; serving as hosts, assistants, and ushers at the Southern conference indoor games; placing 400 faculty members for luncheon and tea on Student-Faculty Day; and the detailed process of selecting the new members of the club.

During the spring quarter the club will cooperate with the University during High School Week and act as host to all visiting athletic teams.

NEWS BRIEFS

This sensational report was not confirmed from any other source. It would mean that the Nazis not only had broken the first line of defenses but also had grabbed the eastern anchor of the second line, which is thought to run from Larisa to Yanina.

What was known definitely was that the air force on each side was in constant action, pounding the rear lines of each opponent. British attacks were centered on the passes and roads leading southward into Greece from Yugoslavia. The Luftwaffe concentrated on the port of Pireras and the Salamis Roads where, according to the Germans, the British have transports standing by in the event they are driven from the foothold on the continent.

In Yugoslavia there was still severe fighting going on, and various reports claimed that the Serbs in the vicinity of Skopje were still attempting counter-action against the Germans. The Germans tacitly admitted that Serb resistance was far from broken, despite the crushing blows inflicted in the six days of blitzkrieg warfare.

German reports had little to say about fighting in the south, dealing mostly with efforts to crush the Yugoslav army still holding out in the northern part of the country. In Berlin it was confidently expected that the occupation of Belgrade would be announced at any moment, and many in Berlin thought German troops already had entered the Yugoslav capital.

Russia's criticism of Hungary was uttered by the vice-commissar for foreign affairs in reply to the Hungarian minister, who called to tell him of the Hungarian march in.

The Russian minister, with possible significance, pointed out that Hungary had minorities of her own and speculated on Hungary's plight if some day "Hungary should get herself into trouble and be torn to bits."

One of Hungary's minorities is Russian, another is German.

Turkey stood aloof from the struggle but had little doubt that her day was approaching. Diplomatic quarters in Istanbul heard reports that Germany might move against the Ukraine wheat fields and the Mosul if she cleans up the Yugoslav campaign as rapidly as was hoped by the Nazi high command.

The first signs of a German pressure and diplomatic offensive to wean Turkey away from her British alliance and allow passage of German troops across Asia Minor were reported.

In Africa there were indications that a major test of strength between the Germans and the British may develop speedily in the Tobruk region. German forces were not more than 15 miles from Tobruk, and possibly much closer. The Royal Air Force launched a pre-battle offensive against enemy planes and bagged 33 of them in a widespread series of actions.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — (Via Berlin)—April 12—The Danish Foreign Office tonight declared void the agreement between the United States and the Danish minister at Washington placing Greenland under American protection.

At the same time the Foreign Office announced they would recall Heinrich de Kauffman, Danish minister to Washington.

The agreement, which gave the United States permission to establish air and naval bases and other military facilities at Greenland, was said by the Foreign Office to be void under international law.

(Announcement of the agreement in Washington said it had been signed by Kauffman "on behalf of the king of Denmark." Denmark is German-occupied territory.)

WASHINGTON, April 12—America is considering persuading Eire to give Britain naval and air bases in return for U. S. lend-lease aid, it was reported in official quarters tonight in one of a series of actions to insure delivery of full aid to the British Empire.

The United States moves under the British-aid program, picking up momentum under the leash of President Roosevelt's call for action and more action, are developing along the lines of forming two great sea bridges for supplies. One is over the north Atlantic and the other is the path to the Near East and Egypt, either through the Pacific ocean or around the Cape of Good Hope.

Schnell Would Be Proud Of These Two Walkers

Displaying no sore feet or strained muscles, Ben Aycock and Powell Jenkins, residents of "H" dormitory, bravely related yesterday they walked from Durham Friday night "just for the exercise."

Ben, a junior and a chemistry major, and Powell, a sophomore who plans to enter chemistry, said they traversed the 12 miles between 10 and 2 o'clock, stopping three times for 10-minute rests and once for 15 minutes to refuel with cold drinks and hamburgers.

The refueling stop was made at the bottom of the hill just outside Chapel Hill. They reported no particularly exciting or unusual happenings. "The farmers' dogs did bark at us, but they were enclosed so we didn't bother with them," they said.

TRACK

Virginia's Tom Todd, who tied with Teammate Ken Rathbun for the meet's individual high scoring honors, took both hurdle events from Warren Mengel and Mike Mangum, but was pushed in both divisions. In the high hurdles Todd clipped off a sparkling :14.9 to shade Mangum in the last 20 yards. In the longer event Mengel seemed well on his way to breaking the Cavalier's streak when he lost his stride and fell into the last barrier.

Feature Event
For sheer competitive thrill, the two-mile race featuring Wimpy Lewis of Carolina and "Biv" Tucker of the home club, was tops in every sense of the word. From the outset it was apparent that this was to be a two-man affair when the pair moved out in front on the second lap. It was Tucker by ten yards right up to the beginning of the last lap when Lewis made his bid.

And a courageous bid it was, as the little Tar Heel moved to the fore with a terrific sprint that put him out in front of the Cavalier on the turn leading into the backstretch.

But Tucker had too much left and really put on the pressure in that backstretch to win in 9:56.4. The time was the only dual meet record established and supplanted the mark of 10:48 set by Lauck of Virginia in 1932.

Middle Distance Men

In the final analysis, it was the middle distance men who preserved Carolina's clean slate of three victories against no defeats, and Tar Heels' showing in the 880 was particularly encouraging. Henry Branch, Rich Van Wagoner and Johnny French were all well bunched in better than 1:58 and their showing gave promising indications for a crack two-mile relay team—if and when the Tar Heels compete in the Penn relays April 24.

Roy Cathey, in running against a stiff westerly wind, looked impressive in taking the 220 while Phil Haigh sustained a tough break in the same event when he fell in the last stretch drive after keeping right on Cathey's heels throughout.

Newcomers Teeny Hall in the hurdles, Don Baker in the quarter and Jim Lloyd in the pole vault all gave indications of real promise, while a group of the "old reliables" including Jim Toy, Holt Allen, Lamar Wood, Dick White and Bob Olive came through with valuable points.

A Blessing
The Virginia meet, seemingly indicative of Carolina track weakness, was a blessing in disguise for a number of Tar Heels who will be urgently needed against Duke next Saturday, were able to take a much-needed rest.

For example, there was very little doubling up in events by such men as Dave Morrison, who was able to idle along in the mile without extending himself, and Rich Van Wagoner, who may be called upon to take the post in a pair of events against the Blue Devils. The final verdict, apparently so close on paper, was even safe enough for the coaching staff to keep the ailing Mike Wise out of competition, and the versatile Warren Mengel out of the discus throw. However, this week it'll be all out for Duke and the entire club is expected to be in top shape for Saturday's meet at the Hill.

LEGISLATURE

after the general amendment has been approved. Several salient features, however, have been determined.

All present and future surpluses of fee-spending organizations would be automatically absorbed into the general activities fund. The legislature would either keep or modify a uniform per student fee of $13.83 plus individual class dues.

SOUND & FURY

"last scene," said Sanford Stein. "I only hope I can get it straightened out myself by the time I get around to writing it. I've spent a whole act getting tangled up in the plot, and now that that's finished, I've still another whole act left to explain it to myself." A look of worried anticipation crossed his face. "Gee," he said, "I hope I don't forget to get a husband for everybody in the end."

McGaughey, who was convulsed over the completed portions of the script when interviewed, was a little more definite about the show.

According to him, there will be four big dance numbers, directed by Katherine Charles and Arty Lavine featuring a new dance—the Pan America. Fourteen potential song hits will be produced in the show with lyrics by Stein, set to music by Jack Page, Tom Avera and Billy Middleton.

Settings are being designed by Lynn Gault and will be built under the direction of George Grotz and Walter Preston. Johnny Satterfield is already working on the musical arrangements which will be played by the orchestra that Guitarist Doug Gardner is organizing.

FROSH BASEBALL

was his second impressive performance of the year and will probably earn him a starting berth. Against Raleigh high Friday afternoon he hurled the last two innings and set the high school lads down hitless while fanning four of the seven men who faced him.

Leaders in Wake Forest's 12-hit, seven-run attack were Joe Scheldt and Bob Jordan. Each had three for five. Scheldt had a double and a triple in his five hits.

BASEBALL

making two misplays, while VMI kicked the ball around for eight errors, most of them figuring in the early scoring. However, the Keydets made four double plays that stopped several incipient Tar Heel rallies in the bud, one of them cutting off two runs at the plate in the seventh.

with Mangum. H used home runs by Footsie McCombs and Larry Holzman in providing the margin of victory. Town No. 1 came back the next day to take a 5-4 triumph over Graham in a close game. Don Wilson, the frosh basketball luminary, was the star of the Town win. He collected four singles in as many trips to the plate.

Scoring Spree
Pharmacy School in its debut into intramurals went on a scoring rampage to submerge Law School No. 2, 18-6. The pill-pushers showed a lot of power at the plate in their initial encounter. BVP opened its play with a 4-1 victory over Ruffin in a well-played game. The BVP club offered a fine fielding team and a crack pitcher in Paul Barnett, who gave up only four safe hits. Everett also opened its season with a win when it dropped Grimes No. 2, 9-3. Ed Shytle was the top hitter for the winners.

Navy Band Plays This Afternoon

A firm believer in the benefits of fresh air, Fish Worley yesterday noticed that Spring has sprung and most everybody should get outdoors to enjoy the beauties of nature.

So he engaged the United States Navy band, Arthur Prior and his band, John Phillip Sousa, and Goldman to present music under Davie Poplar this afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock.

But this array of musicians will not crowd the listeners off the grass, for Fish has arranged for a concert by remote control by means of Graham Memorial's P. A. tune box.

PRESS INSTITUTE

Makeups," "Business and Circulation," "Editorials and Editorial Features," "Sports," and "Women in Journalism," will be held. A special discussion for faculty advisers is also listed on the afternoon program.

The Institute will come to a close Saturday night with a supper meeting featuring a talk on editorial writing, introduction of new student officers, and awarding of prizes for the best high school editorial writing.

A new feature of this year's Institute will be the contest in editorial writing. Each paper has been invited to submit two editorials from the current year's files, one written by the editor of the paper and one by some other member of the staff. These will be judged by the journalism department and winners are to be announced at the closing session.
