Two Campus Bands To Provide Music For Birthday Ball

Two of the campus' most popular and well known orchestras will play for the President's Birthday Ball Saturday night, it was announced yesterday.

President Says Carolina Doing Good Job in War

Before leaving tonight for a mid-week session of the National War Labor Board in Washington, President Frank P. Graham issued the following statement on the war job of the students of the consolidated University:

"In the struggle against the dictators University sons have already given their lives in the Spanish Civil War, with the Royal Air Force, on Pacific patrols, at Pearl Harbor, on Wake Island and in the Philippines.

"Our three institutions, which compose the University of North Carolina, are humbly proud of them and stand ready for any sacrifices in the cause for which they enlisted before the shock of Pearl Harbor united our people in the struggle for freedom imperiled in the world.

"We have reached the time when any decrease in enrollment is a badge of honor conferred upon Alma Mater by an increasing number of sons and daughters at the front and in production.

"To our students who volunteer for the armed services, we say our proud and affectionate Godspeed.

"To those who remain in college to train further for the war, for the gigantic work of production, and for a maximum effort in all fields, on all fronts, we would vouchsafe for them and their essential part the best which this University has to give in all its divisions, colleges, schools and departments.

"In the spirit of those who already

State Educators Seek New Setup

Appointment of a central State Board of Education is being sought through constitutional amendment, Guy B. Phillips, secretary of the State School Board association reported yesterday after a meeting here of the association's executive board.

Phillips said the constitutional amendment has been a major objective of the association for several years. The bill will be submitted to the voters next fall. It will, if passed, take over responsibilities and duties of several existing boards connected with the school system.

President W. A. Dees and former presidents H. E. Stacy and H. E. Isenhour of the association have been "especially active" in informing the public of the merits of the proposed change, Phillips stated.

Band of the Year

Charlie Spivak Started Rise From Famed Glen Island Club

An unprecedented engagement at the Glen Island Casino, popular New York dance spot hailed as the "Springboard to Swing Aristocracy," elevated Charlie Spivak from a freelance trumpeter to leader of the "Best Band of 1941."

The one-year old band was booked into the famous club for a few weeks at the end of the summer season. Huge crowds clamoring at the bandstand convinced the management and Spivak was signed to remain for the entire winter—the first time that the spot had remained open in the frigid months. He returned to play for the next summer season to complete the most phenomenal band engagement in music history.

IRC Pits Kuhn, Mowry, Newsome, House in Forum

International Relations club's round table forum tonight will integrate the opinions of Robert House, dean of Administration, A. R. Newsome, history department head, George Mowry of the social science department and Helmut Kuhn of the philosophy department.

Dean of Students Francis Bradshaw will serve as moderator for the panels session which begins at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

"Should the League of Nations Be Re-established?" is tonight's forum topic.

Members of IRC's committee yesterday declared that the round table participants can be expected to delve into proposals for world federation, alliance of democracies and union with Britain in their debate of the merits and faults of another League of Nations.

Hottest argument among the four faculty members will allegedly come in discussion of Germany's power in a post-war re-establishment of the League—Will Germany be allowed as much power as the United States and Britain in the League? Should Germany even be allowed to have a voice in any plan for world government? Will an international police force be a vital part of a new League? Will a balance of power have to be maintained in any world organization?

Immediately following the 8 o'clock forum, House, Kuhn, Mowry and Newsome will participate in an open discussion.

S&F Signs Freddie Johnson For 'Bagdad Daddy' Revue

The incorporation of Sound and Fury as a non-profit making organization and the signing of Freddie Johnson and his orchestra for the musical production of "Bagdad Daddy" were announced simultaneously yesterday by Randy Mebane, president, co-incident with final casting of all important roles in the annual student variety production.

The incorporation of Sound and Fury, requiring official tie-up with the University, brought Phillips Russell, head of the Journalism department, into the post of faculty adviser. Russell, who said that "all student organizations serve a definite and concrete purpose because they offer students the opportunity to work cooperatively, a phase of education denied them in the class-room," is known as one who evinces vital interest in all student creative groups.

The signing of Freddie Johnson, outstanding campus music leader of seven years standing, marks the introduction of "thorough and modern musical direction for the show." William MacDougal, ace arranger for the Johnson outfit, will orchestrate all the show numbers, including a ten-minute overture presenting bits of all the songs.

"Bagdad Daddy" will include fifteen musical numbers: three ballads, seven rhythm, two specialties, and one blues, and a finale that Mebane promises will be a "big surprise package."

Orchestra Rehearsal

The University Orchestra will hold rehearsal this afternoon at 5 o'clock in room 9, Hill Music hall.

Trustees Vote to Contest For Disputed Ackland Will

The sudden action was highlighted by vigorous debate between two former governors, O. Max Gardner and Cameron Morrison. Reports of the vote were first indication of an impending controversy over Carolina's rights to the $1,395,000 left by the late William H. Ackland of Tennessee, who died in Washington in 1940.

Doubt surrounds Carolina's legal right to the money. In 1936 Ackland made a will leaving his money to found an art school at Duke University. The will stipulated that if Duke did not want the money, North Carolina would be given it, and if Carolina refused it, the money would go to Rollins college.

But Ackland changed his will later, eliminating provisions concerning Carolina and Rollins, after having conferred with Dr. W. P. Few, Duke's president. But when Few died six months after Ackland, Duke's trustees refused the estate.

Former Governor Gardner stated that he believed Carolina had a fair chance of obtaining the money, despite the fact that the 1936 will has been superseded. But Morrison yesterday rose to demand more information. State government has indicated that

Thursday and Friday nights, February 5 and 6 at 8:30, on the stage of Memorial hall, the Carolina Playmakers and the Department of Music present "The Pirates of Penzance." The performance is sponsored by the Student Entertainment series.

It has been a yearly tradition for the drama and the music departments to collaborate to produce a musical production. Admission to the performances will be by Carolina Playmakers or Student Entertainment series season tickets. General admission will be $1.13, tax included.
