

Not to Mince Matters

By Harry Hollingsworth

All kinds of drives for different organizations have been conducted on the campus in past years in an attempt to raise money to carry on the activities of the groups, but usually they were drives to collect money and offered nothing in return for what one shelled out.

But this game tomorrow night between the White Phantoms and the Goodyear team which George Glamack, former All-American basketball player here (need we tell our readers that?) has been sparking in its drive for the National professional league title this year, offers the student something in return for the 35 cents which he will be required to plunk down in order to see the Bantams tie up with what is probably one of the tallest basketball teams in the country. It'll be interesting for us to watch how well the Bantams (or how poorly, but we don't think that'll be the case) will be able to hold down the former college greats.

More men on the campus live in the dormitories than in any other place. That is a statement of which we are as sure as the statement that a sand pile still rests outside our window in Stacy (H) dormitory. And what could be a better cause than to help those men secure and decorate dormitory social rooms into which they will be proud to bring and entertain their parents, friends, sisters and girl friends? Just because a man happens to live in a dormitory there's no reason to deny him, as has been the case in the past, social rooms in which he can entertain people.

And we are thankful that interest is running high on the campus and in the state over the homecoming of George Glamack, one of the best liked and most popular athletes ever to attend the University of North Carolina. With interest high in the game, a large crowd is practically assured. There's a story that has been repeated several times about Glamack's coming here to play basketball with a professional team, but we think it bears re-telling here.

Last spring when the present editor of the Daily Tar Heel was canvassing the dormitories for votes in the spring election Glamack accompanied him as

Loop Cage Teams Enter Home Stretch in Battle For Tournament Places

Duke, Wake Forest, George Washington, South Carolina Lead Conference Play

By Ben Snyder

Over the week-end the 16 teams which comprise the Southern conference basketball league stopped for the moment to consider the last two weeks of the loop race looming immediately ahead.

Of the entire field, but four of the clubs seem certain to take a place in the conference tourney to be held in Raleigh in early March. Duke, riding along on the crest of a ten game winning streak is undoubtedly tournament timber, while Wake Forest in second, South Carolina in third and George Washington in fourth appear to be good bets for the championship affair.

On the other end of the ladder, Clemson, Davidson, the Citadel, Richmond, Maryland and Virginia Tech are out of the running entirely. It is the middle group of Furman, William and Mary, NC State, Carolina, Washington and Lee and VMI around which the speculation is raging.

Furman Likely to Make Tourney

Four of these six teams will play at Raleigh and the competition will be still in these last days of the current conference tussle. Furman, William and Mary and NC State are all tied for fifth with six wins as against three losses. The former looks to have the inside track of this trio. The Purple Hurricane hits the road this week for a quartet of games and although the club from South Carolina may be handicapped by playing away from home, their opposition, coming in large part from Davidson, Washington and Lee and VPI, should make them a favorite to pick up ground in the conference struggle.

State should win at least one of its three remaining games against Wake Forest, South Carolina and VPI, while William and Mary, playing exclusively in the weak Virginia half of the loop, should ease into the Raleigh competition.

Phantoms Should Be On Hand

Our own Tar Heels face three remaining sectional opponents. Maryland may be a tough nut to crack at College Park on Friday, Richmond should be taken at Chapel Hill a week from tomorrow while the Phantoms will be relegated to the position of underdog

ATO, Everett, Chi Psi Win Mural Games

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

BASKETBALL

ATO No. 2, 60; Sigma Nu No. 2, 12. Everett No. 3, 36; Old West 15. Chi Psi 36, Pi Lambda Phi No. 2, 30. Aycock No. 1, 34; Ruffin 24. ZBT 47, Phi Gamma Delta No. 2, 19. Pi Kappa Alpha No. 1, 35; Phi Alpha No. 2, 13.

The strong ATO No. 2 quint led by Long and Strain soundly walloped Sigma Nu No. 2, 60-12 to top the mural basketball play yesterday.

The winners had little opposition in the Sigma Nu club and scored at will. Frosty Long with 20 points and Bob Strain with 18 led the ATO scoring parade. Carl Pace with four topped the losers.

Everett No. 3 piled up an early lead to outclass Old West 36-15. Don Willard was again the leader in the Everett scoring, getting 12 points. Mac Geddis and Fred Norman with eight apiece were next.

Chi Psi pulled a big upset when it defeated Pi Lambda Phi No. 2, 36-30 in a close game. The Pi Lambda team led 14-13 at the half, but a late rally brought victory to the Chipseys. Behind 24-18 at the end of the third quarter, Chi Psi went on a wild scoring spree the last period tallying 18 points while the losers were able to get only six. Moore with 15 points was the leader.

Glamack Thinks Goodyear Team Greatest Quint He Ever Saw

HOWARD VOCKE, former St. Johns star guard, is one of the group of past collegiate all-stars who will play here tomorrow night.

All-Stars Play White Phantoms Here Tomorrow

"Take me off of it, and it's the greatest basketball team I ever saw."

That's what George Glamack, Carolina's ex-All American, says about his now famed Goodyear All-Stars, who will meet the Tar Heels here tomorrow night at 8:30 in a benefit feature for the University dormitory social rooms.

The "Blind Bomber" was talking to Orville Campbell, editor of the Daily Tar Heel, which is sponsoring the benefit, by long distance from Akron, Ohio, and this is what he said about the Wing-foot club.

The treat of seeing the great Glamack in action again with one of the nation's great pro quints had local fans on edge today, and all indications pointed to a full house tomorrow night.

Goodyear Favored

Goodyear ruled favorite due to its galaxy of talent. But the speedy, scrappy collegians were looking forward to a shot at the All-Stars. And the hope was for an interesting test as well as a pro treat for the fans.

The Tar Heel squad, which was rushing preparations yesterday for the event, even took time out for a wise-crack or so about meeting their former ace.

"I'm not worrying about stopping Glamack," joked Big Bob Rose, who once devoted most of his attention to setting up plays for his mate and pal. "All I want to do is to out-score him one more time."

"Say, our midgets ought to have a field night," another added. "Those pros are so big we should be able to dribble between their legs."

The All-American Glamack, of course, was being modest, as always, about taking himself off the team. However, one glance at the Goodyear roster shows he had ample ground for what he said about this being the greatest team he ever saw.

Wingfoots in Second Place

The Wingfoots, who are now in the thick of the scrap for the National Basketball League crown, rank second in the standings at present, and recently beat Oshkosh, the present national champions, 53-43.

The squad of 12 players averages 6 feet 3 in height and 190 pounds in weight. Ten of its members captained leading college teams, while nine of them made their All-Conference selections.

In addition to Glamack, Captain Ben Stephens led the whole pro loop in scoring.

Four Events to Open Second Interclass Track Meet Today

Contests to Give Team Competition For Indoor Games

Competition begins once again this afternoon in the Tin Can when the second interclass track meet held this month starts at 4 o'clock.

Originated two weeks ago by the coaches to condition the team for the coming indoor games, the first meet proved so successful that plans were immediately started for another one, and this week's meet is the result. The current meet will provide the men with their last stiff competition before the conference indoor games on the 28th and whip the Tar Heel speedsters into shape to meet some of the nation's top track teams two weeks hence.

Seniors Favored

The seniors, victors in the first meet, are favored to repeat this time but will face some stiff competition from a junior class team that almost caught them in the stretch last time and sophomore and freshman teams that have high hopes of better things this time than last.

The senior class will probably jump off to a big lead today in the first day's events. Dick White and Warren Mengel will give the fourth-year men two places in the shot put, very likely first and second. Mike Wise and Roy Cathey assure the defending champs of two more high finishing positions in the three-quarter mile run. Both Wise and Cathey chased junior Rich Van Wagoner across the line last time in a close race and will be trying to better their performances this afternoon. Mengel should continue his winning ways in the high jump and Wise and Cathey are favored to repeat fine races in the 330-yard dash.

The meet will continue through Friday afternoon and if it produces half again as many of the fine performances and surprising showings of the first one, it will probably satisfy the coaches—but they are hoping for even better results.

Harry Dunkle Looks Forward To Life in Navy V-7 Class

Ace Football Kicker Joins Naval Reserve For Midgee Training

By Ben F. Park

The navy scores another touchdown! Harry Dunkle, kicking star and co-captain of the University of North Carolina's 1941 football team, has joined the Navy. Harry has signed up with class V-7 of the Naval Reserve for training as an officer after graduation at the University in June.

"I believe it is the best branch of the service," says Harry, who has had four summers of training in the CMTC toward a commission in the signal corps. This he gave up when he decided to try for the Navy.

Dunkle, who as a sophomore led the nation's punters with an average of 46.6, has a lot of smoke on the ball, not only in a football uniform, but as he goes about the campus. He is a handsome, clean-cut fellow with far more than average intelligence. He is well informed on many subjects.

Dunkle is president of the Athletic Association, a prominent member of the Monogram Club, and, in addition to being a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, he is a good student in the Department of Political Science. He has maintained a better than 85 average.

Tar Babies Play Kannapolis High Tomorrow Night

The freshman basketball game with Kannapolis high originally scheduled for tonight has been moved up until tomorrow night and will be played as a preliminary to the varsity-Goodyear game.

The Tar Babies now face the home stretch of their schedule with four games remaining. After tomorrow's tilt with Kannapolis high, the frosh have to play Lees-McRae Junior college here Friday night and next week they wind up the schedule with Raleigh high and Duke frosh.

Doc Siewert's team has won nine out of eleven games this season. Only the powerful undefeated State college frosh have been able to stop the Tar Babies. They turned the trick twice in close games. In Big Five competition the frosh are second behind the Techlets.
