Junior-Senior Set Engages Red Norvo

By Bob Hoke

Red Norvo, his orchestra and Mildred Bailey will appear for the Annual Junior-Senior dances, May 15 and 16, Steve Peck and Dean Williams, cochairmen of the junior-senior dance committee announced yesterday.

Touted as the "world's greatest xylophonist," Norvo is scheduled to play for three dances and a public concert of the famous set for the University upperclassmen. The dances will feature and climax the elaborate Senior week activities scheduled to begin May 11.

Detailed arrangements as to places and times of dances is in the formative stage, dance leaders indicated.

Norvo's new band, termed by Metronome, music trade paper, as "first-rate, and the most showmanly of the several outfits that he has led" will appear on the Carolina bandstand as part of its southern tour.

With Norvo will be Mrs. Norvo, "the magnificent Mildred Bailey." Other featured performers with the band are Kay Allen, lovely vocalist; Fran Snyder, male vocalist and arranger; and Eddie Bert, "the white deadringers for J. C. Higginbotham," famous tromquet and induction of new editors to-
