

Incendiary Bomb Treated In Defense School Here

Civilian Defense Course Concluded

A practical demonstration of the highly inflammable thermite incendiary bomb, was broadcast over station WPTF in Raleigh from the demonstration grounds in back of the Institute of Government building at 7:30 last Wednesday night.

The demonstration was the climax of the three-day course in civilian defense sponsored by the State Defense Council and conducted by the local Institute of Government, of which Albert Coates is director.

Ben Douglas, head of the State Defense Council, Frank Bennett, chief of the Durham fire department, and Sherwood Brockwell, state fire marshal were the main figures in the show which lasted for 15 minutes.

Bennett demonstrated the various methods of putting out the bombs, which when left alone will burn for twenty minutes. The first method tried was the old popular idea of using a spray of water to put out the fire. This method has been used previously due to the belief that a steady stream will cause the bomb to explode. The bombs can usually be put out in two minutes by this method. Also tried was the new practice of using a steady stream of water. This squelched the incendiary in one minute flat.

The running commentary was carried by Brockwell who also answered questions on the technical aspects of the demonstration.

The bombs used for the demonstration were not real ones, but they had all the inflammable qualities of them. The real ones are fourteen inches long and have an aluminum casing on them. The body is made of a magnesium alloy, highly inflammable, and the inside consists of thermite, known before the

Former Consul Asserts Ceylon Lies in Japs' Path

By Margaret Morrison

If Japan makes any definite move towards India, Ceylon will be one of her first "points of interest" stops, according to John Higgins Williams, former United States vice-consul in Ceylon.

This island lying 60 miles off the southeastern coast of India, controls the Bay of Bengal, the body of water between India and the Malay Peninsula. Though the Japs hold the Andaman Islands, as long as Britain holds Ceylon, Japanese use of the Bay for the transportation of troops and equipment "will be dangerous if not well nigh impossible."

Now here working on his Ph.D., Williams is a member of the Washington and Lee University faculty which he joined after serving with the Foreign Service branch of the US Department of State for many years.

Twelve years ago when Williams was stationed in Colombo, principal city of Ceylon, it was a busy but peaceful island with around 5,000,000 inhabitants. The five millions of people

Enrollment Figures Show 5% Decrease in Coeds

Final registration totals for the second summer session, belatedly tabulated because of numerous cancellations and late registrations, exhibited the customary decrease over first session registration there being only 1375 students enrolled, I. C. Griffin, director of Central Records office announced yesterday.

In addition to the normal decrease in enrollment, a 5% reduction in the number of coeds registered was evidenced which is attributable to the fact that an increasing number of men students are taking advantage of the University's wartime speed-up program. Men students enrolled stopped short of the 900 mark, 899 being registered, in comparison with the 475 coeds now students on the campus.

Georgia again surged far ahead in the number of "out-of-North-Carolina" students registered amassing a total of 66. Closely following were Virginia with 60 students enrolled, South Carolina with 45, and New York with 42.

With 30 states out of the 48 represented at the summer session in addition to seven foreign countries, New Jersey had 27 enrollees, Florida 26, Pennsylvania 25, the District of Columbia 24, Tennessee 14, Mississippi 13, Connecticut 11, and Alabama 10.

Students from Louisiana numbered 8, Ohio 7, Arkansas 6, Maryland and Kentucky 5 each, while Michigan, Massachusetts and Washington have contributed 4 each, Delaware and Illinois 3, and Texas and Missouri 2. California, Colorado, Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Oklahoma, and Rhode Island each contributed 1 student.

With Arizona, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire

Melon Slicing, Dance Lead Activities Slate

Heading the week's activities announced today by the Student Activities Office is a gala watermelon slice to be held this evening at 8 o'clock on the terrace behind Graham Memorial.

Started several weeks ago, the slicings have proven to be extremely popular and a large crowd gathered last week to indulge in the feast.

Immediately following the slicing, a square dance will be held in the Y court beginning at 8:30. The square dances, instituted on the campus several years ago by Fish Worley, have turned out to be a big success this summer and many couples are expected to take advantage of the cool weather tonight by displaying their promenading ability at the dance.

Five addicts will have their fun tomorrow night when a "Jam Session" is held in the lounge of Graham Memorial at 8:30. An informal dance is also scheduled for tomorrow evening from 9 o'clock until 11:30 in the Y court with recorded music to serenade the dancers.

A full day of activities has been arranged for Sunday, Miss Helen Dugan, director of the Activities office, announced. At 4:30 in the afternoon, Mary F. Schinhan will give an organ recital at the Methodist church followed by a Negro Quartet recital at 5 o'clock in Memorial hall. This recital is an annual affair sponsored by the Epworth League of St. Joseph's church.

At 6:30 Alderman dorm will give a supper party. Jean Afflick, Alderman social chairman, is in charge of arrangements. Music Under the Stars in Kenan stadium, a regular feature of the week's activities, will be given at 8:30 Sunday night. Closing out the day's program, John O'steen, noted student musician, will give an organ recital in the Episcopal church at 8:30.

The popular Community Sing, very popular among the summer students and faculty since its inauguration several weeks ago, will again be presented Monday evening at 7:30 on the steps of South building. DeArmond Moore will direct the singing and Mary Faust Plonk will be the accompanist.

Highlight of next Tuesday's program will be another address by Dr. William Kilpatrick, visiting professor in the summer school, who will have as

Clark, Former Student, Cited by Great Britain For Raid on Bengasi

First Lt. Walter Clark, who graduated from the University in 1940, has been cited by the British Air Ministry for heroic action over Bengasi, a strategic supply base in North Africa held by the Axis.

Clark, piloting a large United States Air Corps bomber, accomplished a perfect "bombing run" on Bengasi and scored a direct hit on an enemy ship in its harbor. After the raid Lt. Clark succeeded in bringing his plane back to his home base although it was on fire and had one dead motor. For bravery under tremendous difficulties, Lt. Clark has been the subject of much praise.

While in school here Clark was well known for participation in campus activities. An outstanding athlete, he was all-campus in intramural football for four years. Clark was vice-president of the senior class, on the class honor council and also on the Interfraternity Council. He was a Phi Delta Theta and a member of Gimghoul.

After receiving a B.S. degree in Commerce Clark returned to Carolina to do graduate work. He took flight training at Randolph Field and was commissioned in the Army Air Corps at the completion of his training there.

Coaches Here Learn Navy Training

Coaching School Numbers 165 Men

One hundred sixty-five coaches—the largest contingent ever to attend a Coaching School here—are learning the aims and objectives of the Navy's intense physical fitness program during a two-week stay on the University of North Carolina campus.

The school, sponsored by Carolina and the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight School here, is the first of its type ever attempted. The visitors are from eighteen states and the District of Columbia and are handled in strict military fashion from reveille at 5:30 a.m. until taps at 9:30 p.m. and during the day the idle moments are few.

The men are put through stiff military drills under the supervision of Naval officers, partake of mass exercises and all athletic activities and observe the more than 1,000 Naval cadets in the numerous forms of activity that will make them the best and toughest fighters in the world.

In the past some coaches considered a Coaching School as a vacation when the newest ideas in sports could be learned. The ideas are new in the school here but the tough routine cannot justly be called a vacation because restful hours in the shade are missing.

It is the Navy's objective to build tough bodies and a fighting, unconquerable spirit and, with the cooperation of the University coaches and officials, are giving visiting coaches a thorough idea of what the youth of the nation needs today.

Football, considered one of the best body tougheners because of the physical contact it demands, is playing an important part in the program. Heading that department here is Lieut. Comdr. James Crowley, former head coach of Fordham, and he is assisted by Jim Tatum, Carolina's head gridiron mentor.

Lieut. R. A. Raese, former head coach of basketball at West Virginia University, is in charge of the court sport and Lieut. William Neufeld, former head coach at Harvard, is in charge of the track and field activities. Swimming, soccer, hand-to-hand combat, rough and tumble wrestling, mass exercises, gymnastics and tumbling, boxing and the other sports are under supervision of an excellent Pre-Flight

First Order Made For Coal Under Cooperative Plan

The first order has been made for coal under the new coal cooperative plan sponsored by the Carolina fraternities group, Ernie Frankel, leader of the drive, stated yesterday.

Deliveries on the orders will be made within a month, Frankel assured. Any fraternities or private homes in Chapel Hill may make use of the service and orders may still be placed by applying at the TEP house, Frankel said.

Groups who buy coal under this cooperative plan will be enabled to save $1.20 on every ton of coal they buy, Frankel pointed out.

Jeff Hill Produces Posters In Union's Murk, Madness

By Randy Jennings

A George Franklin Hill who is 30 pounds lighter than he was when he first saw the place presides over the Art Dungeon in the basement of Graham Memorial.

Loudly bewailing the fact that there is little sex attached to putting out posters for campus organizations, he puts civilian defense priority orders to shame by turning out mass production requirements without benefit of man or machine.

The Poster Shop in Graham Memorial basement was instituted by Bill Cochrane, former director, this spring. A new idea at the time, it was originated to furnish commercial art work for the benefit of campus organizations.

"I don't mind," he says, "staying up 'til three o'clock every morning. It ain't that. And I don't mind the flying cockroaches and the Playmakers' stage props falling into the paint. And the mice that walk the pipes just make me laugh . . . keep me awake, as it were. But why the *!?!: they had to

Sufficient Rooms Found by Survey In Town Homes

Possible Housing Shortage Alleviated by Town Facilities

Student speculation as to a possible shortage of rooming facilities at the opening of the fall quarter was temporarily cut short yesterday following official release of facts from the recently-made room survey of Chapel Hill

"Housing prospects look good," Roy Armstrong, director of admissions and chairman of the faculty committee on Housing, stated yesterday in announcing the survey.

The house-to-house canvass of Chapel Hill homes revealed 851 places in town for students, with approximately 100 houses yet

New Freshmen Number 630

Class to Enter In September

In announcing that 630 freshmen have been admitted into the University to date for the Fall quarter, Roy Armstrong, Director of Admissions, stated that this number is just 47 less than the number admitted at this time last year. Since June 21, applications that have been received are just as many as last year at this time.

"It is difficult to predict fall enrollment by summer acceptances," said Armstrong. "The number of acceptances in a given month varies from year to year, and while there are 47 fewer acceptances at this time than last year, there are 90 more than the year 1939-1940."

Pointing out that material this year is as good as ever before, Armstrong stated that entrance requirements have not, in any sense been changed or lowered and this year's class rates extremely high.

Advance estimates made early last spring on the basis of a survey of students then in school gave the indication that the enrollment of the Fall quarter would be on nearly the same level as that of last Fall quarter. Slightly over 4,000 students were enrolled at that time while the freshman class numbered over 800.

A small freshman class entered the University during the summer session—the first in the history of Carolina. The new step is part of the University's speed up program enabling freshmen to enter the University in September, January, March and June instead of the previous single entrance time of September.

Powell Appointed Business Manager For 'The Tar Heel'

Bob Powell, of Burlington, N. C., has been appointed as the new Business Manager of THE TAR HEEL, a position from which Charlie Nelson resigned last week.

A transfer from Davidson, where he worked on the Quips and Cranks, Powell has been a Carolina student only since January. He will hold the position for the remainder of the summer.

Nelson's resignation was caused by the fact that he must graduate in the summer in order to enter Naval training. He has been Business Manager only during this summer.

Before coming to Carolina, Nelson worked on the Charlotte Observer for two years. Since then, he has continued to work on the publication during the summers. At Carolina, he worked one year for the University News Bureau before becoming Business Manager of the DTH. Nelson hopes to graduate at the end of this session with an AB in journalism.
