

CPU Signs Robert Minor As November Speaker

Afternoon Rally Is First Blow In Fight Against Duquesne

Gathering To Feature Grid Stars

Scrap Metal Is Admission Price

Craven Turner, junior end from Raleigh, Billy Myers, sophomore tailback from Lexington, and end coach Andy Bershak, will be the speakers at the scrap pep rally to be held this afternoon at 5:30 in Memorial hall.

The rally will be the main feature of the "Beat Duquesne" festivities which begin today. The rally will begin with a parade which forms in front of the YMCA, march down by the coed dorms, back up main street, and on to Memorial hall. The University band and cheerleaders will lead the student line.

It is urged by Denny Hammond, president of the University club, that everyone who attends the rally bring some scrap metal to help swell the University's pile.

"We are going to take a picture of Memorial hall during the rally and we want the building to be full. The downstairs should be filled first," stated Hammond.

Also on the program will be Bill O'Sullivan, chief cheerleader of the Navy Pre-flight school, who will assist in the cheering. A new yell song will be introduced by Tiny Hutton and Charlie Nelson and taught to the student body with the assistance of the Carolina cheerleaders.

Hammond also called attention to the fact that "the rally is being held at 5:30 p.m. this week because the Navy will be using Memorial hall during the evening."

Mrs. Tankersley, 101 Years Old, Dies Tuesday

Within a few months of her 101st birthday, Mrs. Frances Adele Tankersley, a resident of Chapel Hill for 85 years, died Tuesday night in the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. E. Earl Rives.

Born here, January 6, 1842, Mrs. Tankersley had witnessed a century of University life.

In 1862, at the age of 17 she was married to Felix A. Tankersley, a student at the University from Livingston, Alabama. Barely three years had passed before Mrs. Tankersley was notified that her husband, a first lieutenant in the Confederate Army, had been killed at the Battle of the Five Forks. This was five days before Lee's surrender at Appomattox. In 1911, by special action of faculty and trustees, he was granted an A.B. degree.

Her son, William Little Tankersley, attended the University from 1880-1882, afterward setting up in business here in Chapel Hill.

Until failing health caused her to move to Greensboro 15 years ago, Mrs. Tankersley made her home on North street. She is survived by three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Draft Will Hit 80,502 Teen-Age Carolina Boys

By Walter Klein

Approximately 80,502 North Carolina boys 18 and 19 years old will be hit by the new draft law to be passed by Congress within a week.

This news was received at the DAILY TAR HEEL offices yesterday from an authoritative source. The data in this story is now being computed in Washington and will not appear in state newspapers for several days. When the figures are released from the marshal general's office in Washington, they will be relayed to North Carolina newspapers through the attorney general's office in Raleigh.

The facts are:

Approximately 56,514 white men in North Carolina will be taken under the new draft statute. Negroes will num-

Two Alumni Lose Lives

Winkler, Rowe Victims of Crash

Two University alumni, John Lawrence Rowe, and Harry B. Winkler, Jr., were killed recently while serving with the armed forces.

Lieut. Rowe was killed August 28 in an airplane crash. The War department said he was killed on "non-combat duty" in Australia, where he had been for only three weeks.

As a self help student, he worked in the Book Exchange, and was to have graduated last June.

He left the University last spring, and received his basic training at the Greenville (Miss.) Army Flying school, winning his wings and commission as a second lieutenant on July 3.

His father, judge of the Moore county recorder's court, was graduated from the University in 1915; his mother attended the Woman's College.

Judge Rowe served in World War I as a sergeant in the military police. He now lives in Aberdeen, where his son went to high school, and maintains a law office in Southern Pines.

Lieutenant Rowe is survived, in addition to his parents by an older brother, Lt. J. Vance Rowe, Jr., U. S. Navy Air Corps, also a university alumnus, three younger brothers, and three sisters, all now living in Aberdeen.

Harry Winkler, Jr., was killed September 17 in an airplane crash near Sarasota, Fla. He was flying a pursuit.

Klein Picks Survey Staff

Seven students have been appointed to the directing board of the Intercollegiate Literary Survey, Walter Klein, chairman, announced yesterday.

The board, still incomplete, will manage a nationwide survey of what professors and students are reading. Results will be published monthly in the Saturday Review of Literature and 50 college publications.

Newly-appointed board members include Norman Tepper, Randall McLeod, George Stammer, Helen Eisenkoff, Arty Fischer, Dorothy Stephany and Jud Kinberg.

Coeds, Frats Sign Agreement Over House Visiting Rules

Fraternities All Agreed On Ruling

Ditzi Buice, president of the women's senate and Bucky Osborne, president of the interfraternity council, announced yesterday that all particulars of the agreement between fraternities and coeds had been completed and that coeds would be allowed in all social and professional fraternity houses and all cooperative houses which have signed the agreement beginning today at 12 a. m.

After almost two weeks of discussion, the agreement has finally been passed on by the interfraternity council, the interdom council, the coed senate, the Dean of Women's office, and the Dean of Student's office.

A new requirement of the agreement is that each member of an organized house which desires to entertain coeds must sign the agreement besides having a representative sign it in the name of the house. Commenting on this, Osborne and Buice stated, "Individuals as well as the house representatives are asked to sign due to the fact that it is necessary to make sure that all persons concerned have read and understood the agreement."

"This pledge does not mean that a failure to report a violation is a violation of the Honor System. We don't want to stretch our Honor Code to cover too many things. All it means is that the person signing understands the agreement and will cooperate in every way possible to make it work. The interfraternity council representative in the house, however, is on his honor to see that any violations of the agreement are reported."

"Any proposed changes in or criticism of this agreement, if made in writing, to the house privileges board before Monday will be welcomed."

All fraternities signed the agreement which enables coeds to visit any house.

The provisions of the agreement are:

1. Houses may entertain women students only in the social rooms, halls, porches, and dining halls on the first floor of their houses. The conduct of both men and women must always be in acceptance with the Campus Code (or as ladies and gentlemen).

2. No alcoholic beverages may be served in the presence of coeds who are guests of the house.

3. Fraternity houses shall be open to women students from 12:00 noon Mondays through Fridays (and from 10 a. m. on Saturdays and Sundays) until

Spence Asks Pep Ralliers To Bring Scrap Tonight

"Every person who attends the pep rally tonight is asked to bring a piece of scrap metal with him and drop it on the pile in front of South building," said Bob Spence, chairman of the campus scrap committee.

If every member of the student body will do this it will mean that the scrap goal will be reached by Saturday, Spence indicated. According to reports yesterday, the scrap pile is mounting faster now than it has since the drive started. Reason for this is the increasing number of trucks being used to collect the scrap and the growing number of students participating in the drive.

The University, in addition to furnishing trucks, is donating scrap in the form of all the metal pipes which were being used around the edges of walks to hold the chains. The chains, since they are not scrap metal, will be used for other purposes. It is estimated that the combined weights of the pipes will approach 1000 pounds.

"Students are urged to participate in the scrap drive," Floyd Cohoon, chairman of the scrap drive, said.

Bond Prize Highlights Tomorrow's Grail Dance

One lucky couple will win a $25 War bond at the Grail dance tomorrow night. Sam Gambill, exchequer of the Order of the Grail, said yesterday that each couple will be given a ticket upon entering the dance, and that at intermission, one number will be drawn. The holder of the stub with the corresponding number will get the bond.

Homecoming Plans Set

Contest Tops Festivities

Nightfall will see Carolina's fraternity and sorority houses, dormitories and town store windows plastered with annual Homecoming Day propaganda displays as student leaders hurry preparations for tomorrow's long-awaited festivities.

Three days of rain prevented inspired student decorators from working toward tomorrow's competition but all promise crazier and more ingenious displays than ever.

The Alumni association will sponsor an open house tomorrow morning in the Carolina Inn's alumni room. Monogram club officers announced an open house at their field house club-room. All fraternities will have open house throughout Homecoming Day.

Private Sammy Cohen's Fort Bragg bandmen will play for the Grail's dance in Woolen gym tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow afternoon's program will be devoted entirely to the defeat of Duquesne.

Annual fall business session of the Alumni association will be held tomorrow during a 12:30 luncheon at the Inn. Major L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, president, will be top speaker at the get-together.

Council Unable To Count Ballots

Due to other pressing business, the Honor Council was not able to count votes cast on proposed amendments to the Constitution of the Legislature in time for publication in today's Daily Tar Heel. Results of the voting will be announced tomorrow but attendants at the polls announced unofficially that they did not believe fifty percent of the student body had voted, in which case balloting will be continued for another day.

Spencer Dorm Store Reopened by Coeds For Second Season

By Gloria Caplan

Spencer girls took action last week against demon "Three-to-Five, Eight-to-Twelve Hunger" when they launched their little cooperative store upon its second year of hunger-quenching.

Hatched as a remnant of the YW's little store-sponsoring days in each of the girls' dorms, the idea struck at Spencer last fall. The coeds were serious about installing water coolers on each of the floors and set out to do it. By the end of the fall quarter, the enterprise on fourth floor had raked in a net $75.

Well-equipped with soft drinks, candy and crackers, the store this year as last is under the direction of Martha Horton and Kitty Flannagan.

Opening this year with an initial stock of $50 Miss Horton anticipates clearing at least $30 a week. Hesitating to commit herself, she made the estimate, explaining that last

No Subject Announced For Address

Bard Scheduled For Later Talk

By Jimmy Wallace

Plans were completed yesterday for the presentation of Robert Minor, assistant general secretary of the communist party, speaking from a Carolina Political union platform November 9, Dick Railey, CPU chairman, announced.

Minor, a specialist on war in Europe and Latin America, spent nearly two years with the republican armies in Loyalist Spain as chief correspondent of the Daily Worker and 16 associated American and Canadian papers. Previously he was associated with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and later the New York Evening World and the New York Call. During the first World War he was a war correspondent in France and Italy for "N. E. A." of the Scripps-Howard group.

During Earl Browder's stay in prison on a passport charge, Minor assumed the head of the party and led the successful fight to free Browder. Since his connection with the communist party Minor has been candidate for the governor of New York and mayor of New York City.

Minor played an important part in the Tom Mooney case in 1916, "dropping all work for a year and a half to become the first organizer of the nation-wide movement of trade unions of the American Federation of Labor for the defense of Mooney." He also fought for Sacco-Vanzetti and the Scottsboro boys.

PU Board Begins Review Of Y-Y Budget

The Publications Union board yesterday began to adjust the budgets of the three student publications by reviewing the Yackey-Yack budget. Yesterday's meeting will be followed up by one this Monday, perhaps the most important of the year, to determine the amount of the budgets of the two other publications, the DAILY TAR HEEL and the Carolina Magazine. The only action taken at the meeting was to approve in general the Y-Y budget, pending approval of the other budgets.

The importance is in the fact that these budgets determine the amount of money that can be spent on pictures, etc. Thus, indirectly, the action will affect the policy of the whole publication.

After the budgets are finally passed by the PU board, they will go before the student legislature for final approval. In all probability the passage of the budgets will be quickly consummated.

Bridge Match Slated For Wednesday Night

The weekly match-point bridge game will be held at the Carolina Inn Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The next meeting, scheduled for October 21, will include several tables composed of players from the Raleigh bridge association.

All bridge players interested are invited to attend these weekly meetings.

Band Assembles This Afternoon

The University band will assemble in front of the YMCA at 5 p.m. today for the pep rally.

Social Group Makes Plans For Third Sunday Session

Social committee heads are making final arrangements for the third in the series of newly planned Sunday night sessions to be "the snappiest show" yet. Joe Harper will be master of ceremonies.

Hobart McKeever, chairman of the group, announced yesterday that the show will be scheduled from 8:30 until 9:30 o'clock but could not give any definite information of the possible broadcasting of the program. The 82-piece University band has agreed to present its first public concert of the year in a program of school and fight songs and popular marches.

Words for the community singing will be mimeographed in booklets similar to the plan used at the first session. The remainder of the program will consist of imitations, a hypnotist, and Earl Easter, former vocalist with Hal Thurston's orchestra.
