GM Mediators Fail To Make Any Accord

Labor Crises Arise In Four Big Cities

Absolutely nothing has been accomplished at the latest series of General Motors negotiations. The CIO United Auto Workers have announced tonight that no agreements have been reached. And the union has called a national conference of striking GM locals for March 1st and 2nd.

For the moment, the General Motors strike has been crowded off the center of the labor stage by municipal crises in four large cities. New York's Mayor O'Dwyer is hopping from one conference to another, working frantically to head off the transit strike that may come any time after tomorrow midnight. The latest development is that Edward McGrady, the man who was instrumental in settling the recent tugboat strike, has been working on the transit problem. So has David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of RCA.

Midnight tonight is the deadline for another power shut-off in Pittsburgh. Last-ditch mediation conferences between the independent union and the Duquesne Light Company at the mayor's office ended tonight in failure and union president George Mueller ominously announced: "Unless the company has something to offer, I'm not coming back."

The third of the three cities with public service crises on their hands is Houston, Texas. Some 40,000 union members are getting ready to march on City Hall tomorrow to show their opposition to the firing of 700 striking city workers. The so-called "one-day holiday" has been ordered by AFL leaders in Houston.

Finally, in Detroit, both bread and milk are scarce tonight. A strike of truck drivers has resulted in the shutdown of 15 bakeries, and the CIO's United Dairy Workers are continuing their week-old strike against major creameries.

GOP Poll Indicates Pauley Will Lose

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—A high Congressional source says that an off the record poll by Republican Senators indicates that California oil man Edwin Pauley will lose the Navy Undersecretary nomination by at least four votes. The source says that since some of the legislators paged still are doubtful; their final decision may even increase the margin of defeat.

Defense of OPA Makes Stocks Drop

New York, Feb. 25.—The nation's groping for industrial peace was reflected indirectly in a sharp dip in the stock market today, the sharpest since May 14, 1940. The break came on the heels of a demand by Chairman Marriner Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board for extension of the OPA, whose price ceilings have been tied in with the refusal of certain key employers to grant wage boosts. Eccles coupled his demand with a warning that the government's new wage-price policy may possibly raise living costs another 10 per cent.

Union Presents Drama Artist Saturday Night

Mary Hutchinson Will Appear in Theatre

Mary Hutchinson, talented young actress and Broadway star, will be presented in the Playmakers theatre this Saturday night under the auspices of Graham Memorial, director Martha Rice disclosed yesterday.

Miss Hutchinson will relive for the audience some of the theatre's best known characters, in a lively program of interpretations including "Salome," "A School For Scandal," "Rosie the War Worker," and "East Lynne."

Dramatic Monologue

The audience will see a unique type of entertainment in the field of dramatic monologue. Miss Hutchinson changes from character to character swiftly and easily without any waits for costume changes. Yet, costumes, even wigs, are changed right on the stage by means of a small portable dressing room made of collapsible translucent screens. As she retires to this stage dressing room she continues with her lines, all the while preparing the audience for the next scene to follow.

Little Theatre

First appearing in her mother's Little Theatre in Eastern Pennsylvania, Miss Hutchinson's new style of dramatic monologue was greeted with excellent reactions. Since that time she has spent four successful seasons touring throughout this country and Canada.

Relationships Are Important, Says Pearson

Canadian Ambassador Evades Spy Question

The greatest post-war problem for Canada is adjusting her relationship to the great powers of the United Nations as one of the more important smaller nations and as the go-between for the United States and Great Britain, Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Ambassador to this country, said in an address here last night.

"It is all important to Canada that the United States and Great Britain maintain good relations, for if it came to a showdown, we couldn't make a choice—one is as important to us as the other. There would just be no more Canada if she had to make a choice," he declared.

Ambassador Pearson spoke in Memorial Hall under the auspices of the International Relations Club, headed by Buddy Glenn, of Shelby, who presided. He was introduced by Josephus Daniels, Raleigh publisher and former Ambassador to Mexico.

Guests at Dinner

Preceding the address, Ambassador and Mrs. Pearson were guests of honor at a dinner given by members of the IRC at the Carolina Inn.

Many questions were asked the speaker at an open forum following the address. The inevitable query about the atomic bomb spy ring went unanswered. "I wouldn't comment on that even if I could," Ambassador Pearson said.

Veto An Objective

If the United Nations organization is going to be effective in promoting peace and international harmony, every nation, both large and small, will have to give up something, he said. "And that means the veto power, but it would be folly to make that change now. It should be the ultimate objective, though," he declared.

Ambassador Pearson said "Canada is much stronger and it is more important for the United States to work with us now than it used to be because we have developed as a smaller power. Our contribution to the war effort (we were fourth in the production of war supplies) is recognized. We are developing fast in air communication, making us one of the ranking air See RELATIONSHIPS, page four

French Relief Volunteers Make Plans For Assistance

On Thursday night a meeting of all students who are interested in taking part in the work being done by the American Relief for France was held in Graham Memorial.

Mrs. Charlotte Huse, the Chapel Hill chairman of the national organization, told the students how much work was being done, and how there was so much more to be done, in order to bring relief and aid to the peoples of the war devastated areas of France. The children, especially, must be clothed, fed, and even given the proper medical care. There are projects of the ARF that include knitting and sewing all types of garments,

Spring Term Registration Procedures Streamlined

Simplified Method to Allow Students Five Day Vacation from March 20-25

A completely revised registration procedure for the Spring Quarter, which will eliminate the cumbersome methods of previous student registrations, was disclosed yesterday by Edwin S. Lanier, Central Records Director and Chairman of the Registration Procedure Committee which formulated the simplified, streamlined plan.

House Approves

The new procedure, approved by Chancellor House last Friday, will be used—with such minor modifications as may be found necessary from time to time—for subsequent quarters, for the General College, college of arts and sciences, school of commerce, school of pharmacy, and the graduate school.

A pre-examination registration will make possible a free period, or short spring vacation, from the last day of final examinations, Wednesday, March 20, until Monday, March 25. The schedule is as follows:

March 6-16. Registration for all students now enrolled.

March 18, 19, 20. Final examinations for the Winter Quarter.

March 21 (Thursday). Open. March 22-23. Registration for all new students.

March 25 (Monday). Classes for the Spring Quarter begin.

Late Registration Fine

Students are urged to note, Mr. Lanier said, that late registration will cause great difficulties both for the student and for the University officials. Consequently, a fee of $5.00 will be charged all late registrants, who can be excused only by a special committee, on the basis of a written application for exemption supported by evidence of illness, death in the family, or military orders, which made registration during the registration period impossible.

By the new plan, this procedure See SPRING TERM, page four

Piano solos will be played by Richard Cox and William Waters. William Fitzgerald, clarinetist, will present Bournonville's "Fantasie-Improvisation."

Everyone has been invited to attend the recital.

MONA BRADFORD

'Vienna' Show Will Feature Young Singer

Mona Bradford, young American contralto, will be heard here in Charles L. Wagner's production of "A Night In Old Vienna" Thursday, March 7 at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Miss Bradford's musical career began in Hollywood and dates back to her childhood, where her home environment was centered around the cultural arts. She was in demand as a child actress for many years, later becoming a proficient pianist and dancer, before her interests concentrated on her voice. Her first teacher in Hollywood was Eduardo Sacerdote of Los Angeles. Her splendid vocal qualities won recognition and provided her with considerable radio work, both in Hollywood and San Francisco.

When her family moved to Chicago, she took up voice culture with the famous opera diva, Mme. Anna Fitzu, of the Chicago Conservatory of Music. As in the west, her remarkable voice, and unusual flare for dramatic expression rapidly won attention and in the fall of 1940 See BRADFORD, page 4
