Eleanor Craig and Nancy Laird were leading in the race for WGA representative to student legislature, with 240 votes and 212 respectively. The amendment passed with 367 votes for and 78 against. The "Y" and Smith votes were not included in any of the above totals. In race for house president See GOLDEN, page 4.

University Band Presents Concert Sunday Afternoon

The University Concert Band, under the direction of Earl Slocum, will present its first concert of the season Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Hill Music Hall. Hubert Henderson, former president of the concert band and warrant officer with the 773rd Army Air Force Band in Italy, will be featured soloist on Sunday's program. He will play a muted trumpet solo, "Deep Blue" by Lou Singer. The rest of the program will vary from serious music such as "Symphony In C Minor" by Ernest Williams to modern music such as "Mexican Hat Dance" as styled by Les Brown. Enrollment in the band has recently been greatly increased by returning G.I.s. Sunday's concert will be directed by Earl Slocum.

Above, left, is Fran Golden who will be new president of Woman's Government Association if later returns follow the same trend press time returns showed. When the Tar Heel went to press all but the Smith vote had been tabulated. Ann Robinson, above, right, will automatically become vice-president of WGA on the basis of press time count.

Campus Red Cross Drive Goal Set at One Thousand Members

Representatives from Dorms, Fraternities, To Meet Thursday Night at Graham Memorial

Campus Band To Highlight Friday Frolics

The campus's newest dance band, The Carolinians, will highlight the Friday Night Frolic in the student union this weekend, Graham Memorial directors revealed yesterday. Topping the entertainment side of the affair, director Martha Rice stated, will be the introduction of a new song written by a Carolina student. The most recent band to organize at the University, the Carolinians have been organized about one month, and have been quite well received. Composed of eight student musicians, the band puts emphasis on sweet dance music. The group also features vocals and novelty numbers. Four of the eight members are former swing band leaders themselves, including Chick Burroughs, pianist, who led a band on the UNC campus in 1940-41. Two featured members of the band also number Jim Thessie, on the clarinet, and Marshall

Income from GI Bill Exempt from Taxation

In reply to numerous queries on the status of veterans' subsistence payments with respect to income tax, the Veterans' Administration office requested yesterday that the following statement, taken from "Your Federal Income Tax," issued by the Treasury Department, be quoted: "Benefits and subsistence allowances furnished to discharged veterans for education and training, or vocational rehabilitation, under the so-called 'G. I. Bill of Rights,' are by law exempt from income tax and therefore should be excluded from gross income."

FPHA Allots More Houses For Veterans

Time of Arrival Still Indefinite

Carolina will get 176 prefabricated housing units from the Federal Public Housing Administration, instead of the 150 originally contracted for, according to Assistant Comptroller C. E. Teague. There is still no word as to when the units will arrive.

Topographical maps of the wooded area south of the Med Building on the Mason Farm Road, where the houses will be located, have been prepared and will be submitted to the regional FPHA office in Atlanta. A University representative will work with authorities there to map a layout for locations of the individual units. This layout will depend on the size of the individual blocks of houses.

Quantity Uncertain

The University has requested 35 percent one-bedroom units, 50 percent two-bedroom units and 15 percent three-bedroom units to make up the total allocated to Chapel Hill. The units will come in groups of two, four, six and eight, but there is as yet no indication as to how many

ROTC Unit Elects Frank Williams

Frank Williams was elected ROTC representative to the student honor council in the special election held yesterday. Williams received 135 votes to his opponent Bud Stanbach's 64 votes. Williams was running with the backing of the University party and Stanbach was supported by the United Carolina party. The vacancy was left open by the resignation of Jim Burdin. There were five write-in ballots handed in for various other members of the ROTC unit.

DR. MILTON BURTON

Coed Singers Tour Camps

Glee Club Members Sing to Service Men

This morning 100 members of the Women's Glee Club donned traveling clothes and climbed into three busses, beginning a tour of Camp LeJeune, Kinston, and Cherry Point, where they will present programs and be entertained at dances.

Tonight the girls will sing for the men at LeJeune and be guests at a dance on the post. They will sleep in regular army style, occupying the barracks there.

Kinston Tomorrow

Tomorrow the songsters will travel to Kinston where they will give two programs, one in the afternoon composed of light numbers, for both children and adults, and another in the evening for adults. These programs are being sponsored by the P.T. A. Council of Kinston. Also in the afternoon, Gwen Hughes, Lib Worrall, and Maude Baynor will be guests of the Lions Club and will give musical selections. Mr. Paul Young, director of the glee club, will also attend the meeting of the Lions Club at Kinston. Tomorrow evening the girls will attend a dance at the Kinston Air Base.

Cherry Point will be the site See COED SINGERS, page 4.

Burton Speaks On Atom Power Tonight

World Problem Is Stressed in Talk

Dr. Milton Burton, noted atomic scientist, will speak on "Atomic Energy as a World Problem" in Hill hall tonight at 8 p.m. The Association of Carolina Scientists and the Carolina Political Union are sponsoring this talk to enable the students and townspeople to learn from an authoritative source the importance of the atomic bomb.

After the speech there will be a question and answer period in which Dr. Burton will try to answer any question on atomic power.

Dr. Burton spoke Monday night at a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Durham and emphasized the more technical aspects of atomic power. After explaining certain releasable facts about the problems facing the engineers and scientists. Dr. Burton concluded his talk by saying that the scientists generally have been aware of what they have loosed on the world and their responsibility. Although tonight's speech will deal primarily with the political aspects of the atomic bomb, the layman will still learn many of the principles behind atomic power.

An informal dinner will be held for Dr. Burton at 6:30 p.m. in the Carolina Inn. Members of the association will meet in the lobby of the Inn and go through the cafeteria line together to one of the small dining rooms at the rear of the cafeteria. Many members are expected to attend the dinner.

Dr. Burton is a member of the Association of Oak Ridge Scientists and worked on the atomic bomb project.

Egyptians Threaten British With 'Holy War' Unless Garrisons Are Removed by Friday

(By United Press)

The two words which for generations have struck fear in the hearts of British leaders were spoken last night—"Holy War."

Following weeks of riots and demonstrations — following months of tension—student leaders in Egypt have threatened to call a holy war against the British. The decision was reached in a secret meeting between the students and Egyptian labor chiefs. After discussing the unrest which was climaxed in bloody riots last Thursday which cost 14 lives, the students decided to call the dreaded holy war.

The political situation is getting worse rather than better, the students say, and immediate action is imperative.

Therefore, they continue, unless some agreement is reached for the withdrawal of British troops by Friday, they will lead the nation in a holy crusade against the British.

Within a few hours after war is declared, a student statement says, news of it will have reached "remote fighting units." And within a few hours after that, the students promise a wave of sabotage and terror throughout the length and breadth of Egypt as underground attacks units swing into action.

Student leaders say they sent a delegation to see Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha to enlist his support in their fight. And they say Sidky told them—in these words—"If all political leaders were by my side I should proclaim Egypt's complete independence by a stroke of the pen."

With many parts of the empire already stirring uneasily under British rule, a holy war in Egypt would act as a lighted match to the discontented peoples. But perhaps more important, it would defeat the purpose for which British troops are stationed in Egypt.

When Britain negotiated a treaty with Egypt in 1936 to keep 10,000 troops in the Land of the Pyramids it was to protect her lifeline to the east—to guard the vital Suez Canal. And by risking a holy war, Britain puts that very lifeline in danger.

A major outbreak in Egypt would almost certainly result in new violence in Palestine and India. There already are almost daily acts of terrorism in Palestine. And tonight, for instance, British troops rounded up 5,000 Jews in search for saboteurs and terrorists. In India, where fighting continues in the port of Madras for the second day, British troops were forced to fire into frenzied crowds three times during the day.

China, too, has caught the fever of unrest loose in the East. Huge crowds demonstrated in six great Chinese cities, urging the government to get tough and force the Russians to evacuate Manchuria. Actually, Radio Moscow said tonight that the "greater part" of Russian troops had been withdrawn from Manchuria. But in a Washington news conference, Secretary of State Byrnes said he had heard nothing about a Russian evacuation.
