

PU Board To Discuss Mag Tomorrow

Circulation Issue Calls for Action

With the announcement that Tom Corpening, Carolina Magazine circulation manager, resigned yesterday, the PU Board will seriously consider increasing appropriations for Mag circulation at tomorrow's meeting in Graham Memorial.

Long a thorn in the side of publications, the problem was forcibly brought home yesterday to Fred Flagler, PU Board president, when it was pointed out that the succession of circulation staff resignations is caused by the meagerness of funds to carry out the job.

Present budget allowance call for $6.00 an issue to be given the manager for delivering 3100 copies. This month's printing of the Magazine will be over 3800 with no increase in sight for the circulation manager. Corpening told this reporter that, "it is impossible to give every subscriber a copy outside of a small circle in Chapel Hill." Students and faculty living in West University Drive, Hill Billy Hill, Westwood and other outlying suburbs cannot be reached unless a sizeable increase in wages is voted by the Board.

Unofficial figures place the total cost of complete circulation at around $30.00 an issue since delivery boys must make two trips due to the weight of the Magazine. Indications point to the Board's discussing the possibility of combining both staffs and increasing the salary of the present Tar Heel circulation manager so that he could make arrangements to deliver both publications with his same staff.

That dirty white Ford you saw whipping up Franklin street the other day was Sound and Fury's president, Pokey Alexander, hurrying to Durham for an order of twenty lamposts of assorted sizes and shapes and that flash just a minute ago was none other than the director, Jack Dube on his way to make a final checkup on the costumes for the chorus line.

Tickets are on sale at Ledbetter-Pickard's, at the Y, or from any member of S and F.

When the confusion settles down to a dull roar and the curtain rises Friday night, S and F will be putting on their first post-war show, a show from which a large contribution will be given to the American Red Cross drive.

The tournament, which is the official contest of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, will be held in New York March 21 and 23, and the winner of the playoffs between Carolina, NYU, Harvard and Ohio State will meet the winner of the western half of the tournament March 26 for the grand championship. Oklahoma A. and M. is favored to take the western division.

For the Phants, who have played 31 games already, it will be a welcome week's rest, as it will give them all time to get rid of all remaining ailments. Bones McKinney is still nursing a cold.

Fund Drive Nears Goal

Cooperation Urged By Drive Chairman

The Red Cross membership drive, now being conducted on campus, is progressing satisfactorily, according to Chairman Lib Henderson. Funds are being solicited in the dormitories and houses. The goal for the university is 1000 members.

Representatives from each dormitory, sorority, and fraternity are asked to turn the membership money in Friday afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00 in Roland Parker Lounge.

"Giving to the Red Cross Fund Drive," says Chairman Henderson, "is the best way that we students can help further Red Cross work and aid the adjustment of the returning veterans."

All students are urged to contribute to the drive. Facilities will be provided in Lenoir dining hall and in the Y for contributions. Representatives will collect membership donations from dormitories and houses until Friday afternoon.

For a college to offer to these students such subjects as mechanical drawing, typing, shorthand, newspaper reporting and other subjects along this line, with some history, government, sociology, music and art, is perfectly justifiable. It may be ideally such students should not be present on the same campus with students of medicine, law, higher mathematics and philosophy."

Playmaker's 'Blithe Spirit' To Feature New Campus

By Elaine Patton

The attention of the campus is turned to a new star, Lois Warnshuis, who plays the role of Ruth in the "Blithe Spirit" which is to be presented March 13 through 16 in the Playmakers' Theatre.

Lois, whose father is a missionary of direct Dutch descent and whose mother is from Scotland has a most varied and interesting background. She was born in Kodaikanal, India where her father was working. After leaving India, her family made their home in Staten Island, New York, where Lois later followed some of her numerous interests including reporting for the "Staten Island Advance," advertising, USO work and work for the Nursing Education League. However, her "heart's preference" was the work she did in Henry Street Settlement Playhouse where she directed plays for both children and adults, made costumes, and supervised children's programs. While there, she learned to speak Russian and Yiddish and learned many foreign songs.

Although she was a German major at Vassar, Lois worked with the outdoor Theatre Group there doing costuming, scenery, playwriting, and was recognized as an expert pianist.

This fall she came to Carolina as a graduate student from Vassar and she has worked diligently "behind the scenes" on all the major Playmaker productions. She directed Twelfth Night Revels, was responsible for the costuming in "Chimes of Normandy," played a minor part in
