Pi Phi's Offer Strong Sextet In Cage Sport

Climaxing the Women's Intramural basketball tournament was the championship game Thursday night with the Pi Phi's victorious. They downed the runners-up the Town Girls 34-22. This triumph adds another star in the "Angels" crown, for they won the volley ball tournament in the fall.

Leading all the way, the Pi Phi had advanced to the tune of 22-14 at the half, then surged ahead after the rest period. Strangely enough all forwards for the Pi Phi's made nearly the same score. Ida Prince and Lou Hull tied for top scorer with 12 points each, Ida having reaped her score mostly in the first half, while Lou gained six of her points in the last section. Fran Miller followed her fellow players closely with 10 tallies.

Bill Lloyd, playing for the Town Girls, topped her team mates' scores and tied with Ida and Lou with 12 to her credit. Nan Murray held second place scorer.

Players for the Pi Phi's: Lou Hull, Ida Prince, Fran Miller, forwards; Meadie Montgomery, Eva Harris, and Ann Holmes, guards. On the Town Girls' roster were Nancy Murray, Betsy Ann Barbee, Mary Jane Lloyd, and Bill Lloyd, forwards; Barbara Cashion, Edythe Pell, and Evelyn Hamburger. Several girls from this list are included on the honorary varsity and sub-varsity teams. Ida Prince and Meadie Montgomery made varsity, with Lou Hull as an alternate. Nancy Murray and Bill Lloyd were chosen for sub-varsity. A game will be played between these two teams Monday night in the Women's gym.

Phants Prep For Tourney

Carolina's White Phantoms will return to the Woollen gym cage court next week as practice begins for the coming NCA A tournament in Madison Square Garden. Coach Ben Carnevale will have his team at full strength with the recovery of Bones McKinney and Johnny Dillon from minor ailments.

The National collegiate tourney will begin March 21 with Harvard, Ohio State, New York University, and the Phantoms competing. The Phantoms will be up against some of the best opposition they have met this season, and Carnevale has scheduled stiff drills to prepare his quint for the "big tset".

Of the three squad besides Carolina in the NCAA, the Phantoms have met only NYU before, winning by a slim margin in Madison Square Garden.

Carolina received the invitation to the NCAA after being upset by impotent Wake Forest in the Southern Conference tournament. The local quint has not played since that game, and, after a week's rest, is ready to return to the court in an effort to regain any prestige that may have been lost in the Southern conference tourney.

Bones McKinney, John Dillon, Box Paxton, Jim Jordan, Don Anderson, Jim White, Taylor Thorne, and Red Hughes are all expected to be on hand when the practice sessions begin.

Wake Forest Expects Fine Football Team

Wake Forest, March 8 (UP) Wake Forest College—which has consistently been up among the nation's better small college football teams in recent years—is looking forward to another good season next fall.

Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker has a squad of over sixty husky candidates working out these spring-like afternoons. And from all indications the Demon Deacons will be loaded next football season. The talent is plentiful—good, big talent that any football coach would like to have.

The complete Wake Forest schedule hasn't been released, but several games are already booked, including ones with North Carolina, Duke, North Carolina State, Clemson and Boston College.

The talk of the Wake Forest football camp is Johnny (Red) Cochran, who literally ran opposing teams daffy before he entered military service. Now Cochran is back, and things are looking rosy for Walker.

Cochran is a truly great triple-threatener, being equally adept at punting, passing and running. Other Wake Forest backs who are being counted on for a lot of service next season are Rock Brinkley, pile-driving fullback; wingback Bo Sacrinty; and blocking backs Ray Manieri and Nick Ognovich.

Several starting linemen have been lost since last season, but the Deacons will still be big and tough up front next fall. Tree holdovers from 1945 head the forward wall candidates. They're Jim Harris, guard; John Bruno, end; and Dewey Hobbs, tackle.

Bob Paxton Is Jumping-Jack Of Carolina's Court Quintet

Star Forward Will Get Out of Navy In June and May Play Here Next Year

By Jean Huske

Bob Paxton ranks tops on rebounds and follow-up shots. A good passer, floor-man, and defensive performer may not sufficiently describe the effective playing of 6 foot 2½ inch Paxton. He particularly likes to set up plays instead of shooting himself which denotes him as a team player all the way. However, fine work done on follow-ups won him number 6 scoring place last year and several All-Southern picks.

Paxton, better known as "Pax," is from Spokane, Washington. In high school in Spokane Bob concentrated on basketball where he was captain of the team and made All-State for two years. Not only was he outstanding for his cage talent but he was also recognized for his executive capabilities. He held the vice-presidency of the Letterman's Club, president of the Boy's Federation, treasurer of the student body and his junior year vice-president of the student body.

As for other sports Paxton says he likes to watch them all. Specifically, he went out for track last year, running and high jumping, but said "its too much like work." Bob says he likes football but would rather watch because its too rough. With a laugh he said he couldn't play tennis at all because his long legs were too much to fold under and they got all tangled up. However, Paxton likes very much to play golf. He is fond of anything out-of-doors.

Pax expects to get out of the Navy in June. "Then," he says, "I would like to stay here and play basketball another season. The more I stay down here the more I like it!" Bob says he is anxious to get out of the Navy because he doesn't like routine but likes to sort of loaf around and sleep late on Sunday morning. That new pair of yellow socks he is waiting to wear couldn't possibly suggest that he doesn't like uniforms. Sport shirts and slacks, but not saddle shoes, are what he wants most to get back to . . . to say nothing of a certain Kentucky brunette who is about 5 feet 2 inches tall.

Perhaps that is why when asked about his social life here Pax said, "Well, I have been a wall flower, so to speak, but I have really had fun." He likes to lie around his room, write letters, and listen to popular and light opera recordings. But very little dancing for Paxton . . . "no girl who has ever danced with me once would again," he says, "because my feet are always getting in the way!"

Paxton is majoring in marketing and hopes some day to own a grocery store perhaps in Spokane.

Pax says perhaps the most exciting thing for him was to play basketball in Madison Square Garden. With more games for the Phants on schedule in the Gardens Paxton is looking forward to playing there again!

St. Petersburg, Fla.—March 8 (UP) The team currently voted "most likely to succeed" in the American League—the New York Yankees—will start their grapefruit league exhibitions against major competition today—competition of the highest caliber—the Saint Louis Cardinals.

Monograms Sponsor Tilt Monday Night

SAE No. 2 and Marines No. 1 will meet Monday night in Woollen gym for the campus intramural basketball championship. The contest will begin at approximately 8 o'clock, immediately following a preliminary between two coed sextets.

Both the SAE and Marine quints have survived the current mural season undefeated. Both are respective winners of the dormitory and fraternity divisions. Their meeting Monday should be one of the best contests of the mural year, and a near capacity crowd is expected to be on hand.

The encounter is being sponsored by the Monogram Club, proceeds from the game going to aid in re-decoration of the Monogram club house. Price has been set at 25 cents.

The Monday game will feature an innovation in mural cage play this year. For the first time during the season, the large courts will be used. Stands have been constructed around the main court to take care of all spectators.

The preliminary match will bring together the coed varsity and a squad of second string girls. This fray will be held at 7 o'clock.

Duke Out of Chance To Go to New York

A sports bulletin was flashed on the United Press yesterday afternoon that Rhode Island State has accepted an invitation to the New York Invitational basketball tournament to become the eighth and final team to compete in the event.

This blacks-out Duke University's hopes of getting a bid to the annual tourney at Madison Square Garden.

The court classic gets underway next Thursday and the teams entered are West Virginia, Kentucky, Saint Johns, Muhlenberg, Bowling Green, Syracuse and Arizona.

Morton Cooper was credited with his first win of the Citrus circuit as the Boston Braves walloped the Philadelphia Phillies 5 to 1 at Fort Lauderdale.
